Construction of section. A litigant's right to appeal from a judgment, and his right to appeal from an order refusing a new trial, are distinct and separate rights. Vinson v. Los Angeles Pacific R. R. Co., 141 Cal. 151; 74 Pac. 757 (7 Cal. Unrep. 142, 72 Pac. 840, department decision). The provisions of the first sentence of this section are not affected or impaired by the provisions of the second sentence. Wall v. Mines, 128 Cal. 136; 60 Pac. 682. This section is not to be construed as authorizing the statement to be considered upon matters which cannot be determined upon an appeal from the judgment: it will be limited to such matters as are authorized to be heard upon such appeal. Wall v. Mines, 128 Cal. 136; 60 Pac. 682. The trial court is not authorized to say what papers shall be used on appeal: that is a matter regulated by the code. People v. Center, 54 Cal. 236.

Contents of record. A bill of exceptions, based upon errors of law occurring at the trial, settled within thirty days after judgment is rendered, becomes a part of the record on appeal from the judgment. Caldwell v. Parks, 47 Cal. 640. A statement becomes a matter of record without the certificate of the judge. Reynolds v. Harris, 8 Cal. 617. If the appellant desires to show error in the instructions to the jury, he must present the evidence in his record on appeal. People v. McCauley, 1 Cal. 379; People v. Baker, 1 Cal. 403; White v. Abernathy, 3 Cal. 426; People v. Roberts, 6 Cal. 214; People v. Honshell, 10 Cal. 83; People v. Byrnes, 30 Cal. 206; People v. Best, 39 Cal. 690. Where the record contains no copy of the pleadings, the appeal will be dismissed. Hart v. Plum, 14 Cal. 149. The opinion of the trial judge is no part of the record on appeal (Wilson v. Wilson, 64 Cal. 92; 27 Pac. 861; Wilson v. Devine, 67 Cal. 341; 7 Pac. 776); nor are the statements of counsel in their brief (Hood v. Hamilton, 33 Cal. 698; Porter v. Peckham, 44 Cal. 204); nor is a supplemental affidavit, filed long after the perfecting of the appeal (R. H. Herron Co. v. Westside Electric Co., 18 Cal. App. 778; 124 Pac. 455); nor is a mere loose sheet of unidentified paper (Youmans v. H. S. Clarke Co., 19 Cal. App. 784; 127 Pac. 799); nor is a statement, not prepared and filed within the time prescribed by the statute. Ryan v. Dougherty, 30 Cal. 218. Where there is no bill of exceptions or statement of the case, or other like record, the appeal being upon the judgment roll alone, the orders of the court, allowing or refusing amendments to the answer, do not constitute any part of the record which an appellate court may review. Segerstrom v. Scott, 16 Cal. App. 256; 116 Pac. 690. Where the record discloses no reason or sufficient showing why a motion for a change of venue should not be granted, an order refusing to grant such a motion cannot be justified upon the ground that the refusing or granting of such orders is in the discretion of the court. Carr v. Stern, 17 Cal. App. 397; 120 Pac. 35.

Opinion of court is no part of record. See note post, § 952.

Amendment and completion of record. Where the record is incomplete, the appellant should move the court below, at the earliest possible moment, to supply the lost papers, or by other means within its control, to complete the record. Buckman v. Whitney, 24 Cal. 267; Bonds v. Hickman, 29 Cal. 461. A stipulation as to the correctness of the transcript does not estop the respondent from pleading a diminution of the record and having it completed. California Wine Ass'n v. Commercial Union Fire Ins. Co., 159 Cal. 49; 112 Pac. 858. The lower court may amend the record and make it speak the truth. Morrison v. Dapman, 3 Cal. 255; Anderson v. Parker, 6 Cal. 197; Branger v. Chevalier, 9 Cal. 172; Browner v. Davis, 15 Cal. 9; Swain v. Naglee, 19 Cal. 127; Hagler v. Henckell, 27 Cal. 491; Estate of Schroeder, 46 Cal. 304. For the purpose of amendment, the record remains in the court below, although the appeal has been taken; and the lower court will grant amendments or supply lost records in all cases where such relief would have been granted in case no appeal had been taken. Buckman v. Whitney, 24 Cal. 267. A motion to strike from the transcript and to disregard a certain order and finding, on the ground that it is not a part of the record, will not be considered until the final hearing of the case. Estate of Williams, 4 Cal. Unrep. 511; 36 Pac. 6. The appellate court may order a document to be inserted in or stricken from the transcript, in order to perfect it; but it cannot vary or amend a document found in the record. Bonds v. Hickman, 29 Cal. 461; Satterlee v. Bliss, 36 Cal. 489; Thompson v. Patterson, 54 Cal. 542; Boyd v. Burrel, 60 Cal. 280; California Wine Ass'n v. Commercial Union Fire Ins. Co., 159 Cal. 49; 112 Pac. 858. The appellate court has no control over the record of the inferior court from which the appeal lies, and cannot make an order supplying lost records. Buckman v. Whitney, 24 Cal. 267; Satterlee v. Bliss, 36 Cal. 489; Thompson v. Patterson, 54 Cal. 542; Boyd v. Burrel, 60 Cal. 280. A bill of exceptions cannot be amended by the appellate court, which must review the order upon the same record upon which it was made. Baker v. Borello, 131 Cal. 615; 63 Pac. 914. The settled statement on motion for a new trial cannot be amended by the appellate court: the action of the trial court must be reviewed upon a transcript of the records of that court. Clare v. Sacramento Electric etc. Co., 122 Cal. 504; 55 Pac. 326.

Effect of insufficiency of record. Where the transcript does not contain a copy of the judgment roll, or of a bill of exceptions, or of a statement in the case, the appeal from the judgment cannot be considered. Welch v. Allen, 54 Cal. 211. Where the record fails to show that the complaint, answer, findings, and judgment, were ever filed in the court below, or that the judgment was ever entered, and fails to contain a certificate to the papers which would constitute the judgment roll, and further fails to show that the statement on motion for new trial was filed, or that the order denying a new trial was ever entered, the record is insufficient, and the judgment must be affirmed. Wells v. Kreyenhagen, 117 Cal. 329; 49 Pac. 128.

New record. Parties are powerless, without the consent of the court, to make up a new record based upon former rulings. Grunsky v. Field, 1 Cal. App. 623; 82 Pac. 979.

Notice of appeal. The notice of appeal should be included in the transcript on appeal. Woodside v. Hewel, 107 Cal. 141; 40 Pac. 103. An appeal cannot be taken from parts of two judgments, and from a special order made after judgment, by one notice of appeal, and on one undertaking on appeal. People v. Center, 61 Cal. 191.

Judgment roll. On appeal from a judgment, without a statement or bill of exceptions, nothing is part of the record, except the judgment roll, and no question arising outside of the roll can be considered. Wetherbee v. Carroll, 33 Cal. 549. An appeal by an administrator with the will annexed, from portions of a decree of partial distribution, is, in effect, an appeal from a judgment, and may be taken on the judgment roll alone, consisting of the petitions of the parties, the oppositions thereto, the findings thereon, and the decree based upon those findings; in such a case, no bill of exceptions is necessary: the clerk's certificate to the correctness of the transcript is the only certification required. Estate of Broome, 162 Cal. 258; 122 Pac. 470. The judgment roll, on appeal from an order denying a motion for a new trial of the contest of a will after probate, should include at least the petition for revocation of the probate, the answer thereto, the verdict of the jury, and the judgment. Estate of Kilborn, 162 Cal. 4; 120 Pac. 762. The bill of exceptions, when settled, becomes a part of the judgment roll. Lunnun v. Morris, 7 Cal. App. 710; 95 Pac. 907. A stipulation is not an exception, nor a statement on appeal, nor a part of the judgment roll. People v. Hawes, 41 Cal. 632. An order granting leave to a party to amend his answer is no part of the judgment roll, and is not required to be entered thereon. Segerstrom v. Scott, 16 Cal. App. 256; 116 Pac. 690. Where papers, not included in the judgment roll, are required upon appeal, no duty is imposed upon the clerk to certify them. Rose v. Lelande, 17 Cal. App. 308; 119 Pac. 532. An appeal from a judgment, where no bill of exceptions is filed, has the effect to bring up only the judgment roll, or such parts of it as are necessary to explain the points relied on; hence, as a petition for certiorari is not a part of the judgment roll, it is not brought up on such appeal. Reynolds v. County Court, 47 Cal. 604.

Necessity for bill of exceptions. There is no provision of law, which dispenses with a bill of exceptions, where the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain the decision is sought to be questioned on appeal. California Portland Cement Co. v. Wentworth Hotel Co., 16 Cal. App. 692; 118 Pac. 103. This section does not forbid the hearing of an appeal from a judgment, unless there is a bill of exceptions, but only provides that the court shall be furnished with a copy of any bill of exceptions upon which the appellant relies. Thompson v. Hancock, 51 Cal. 110. The absence of a bill of exceptions is not a ground for the dismissal of the appeal, but rather for an affirmance of the judgment, if there is nothing in the record upon which the action of the superior court can be properly reviewed. Howell v. Howell, 101 Cal. 115; 35 Pac. 443. The question whether the trial court erred in striking out portions of the answer, cannot be presented upon an appeal without a bill of exceptions. Spence v. Scott, 97 Cal. 181; 31 Pac. 52. Where the order appealed from is, in effect, a judgment, and can be reviewed on the judgment roll, a motion to dismiss the appeal for want of a bill of exceptions will be denied. Howell v. Howell, 101 Cal. 115; 35 Pac. 443.

Sufficiency and contents of bill of exceptions. On appeal from a judgment, any bill of exceptions settled may be used; and the fact that a bill of exceptions was entitled "A bill of exceptions on motion for a new trial," is immaterial. Bedan v. Turney, 99 Cal. 649; 34 Pac. 442. A bill of exceptions, to constitute a part of the transcript on appeal, must be settled as provided in § 649 or § 650, ante. Witter v. Andrews, 122 Cal. 1; 54 Pac. 276. It is not intimated that § 650, ante, is other than directory, or that the failure to serve the engrossed bill therein provided for, when certified, will preclude its use on appeal. Regents of University v. Turner, 159 Cal. 541; Ann. Cas. 1912C, 1162; 114 Pac. 842. On appeal from a judgment, the appellant is required to bring up only the judgment roll, and any bill of exceptions or statement in the case upon which he relies; hence, errors committed against the respondent need not be shown by such bill of exceptions. Klauber v. San Diego Street Car Co., 98 Cal. 105; 32 Pac. 876. An erroneous ruling of the trial court, in rendering judgment on the pleadings without a trial of the action, may be reviewed on an appeal from the judgment, without being incorporated in a bill of exceptions, when the judgment recites that it was rendered on the pleadings. Weeks v. Garibaldi, 73 Cal. 599; 15 Pac. 302. When the appellant presents his record in the form of a bill of exceptions, which presents the objection and rulings in such manner that no more particular presentation is needed to call the court's attention to the errors relied upon, the particular errors need not be specified in the bill. First National Bank v. Trognitz, 14 Cal. App. 176; 111 Pac. 402. Where the bill of exceptions shows that there was no error in refusing a continuance to the defendant, resort cannot be had, upon appeal, to the defendant's affidavit to show the contrary. Frost v. Witter, 132 Cal. 421; 85 Am. St. Rep. 53; 64 Pac. 705. Affidavits, used on motion after judgment, cannot be considered on appeal from final judgment, where they are not embodied in the bill of exceptions, or the statement is not settled in due form. Welch v. Allen, 54 Cal. 211.

May be used on all appeals. A bill of exceptions is equally applicable to any and all kinds of appeals provided for by the code. Brandt v. Clark, 81 Cal. 634; 22 Pac. 863.

Similarity between bill of exceptions and statement. The legal effect of a document is to be determined by the matter which it contains; when settled, there is no substantial difference between a bill of exceptions and a statement of the case, except that the latter, in addition to setting forth the exceptions taken at the trial, must also designate the particular errors attacked; the particulars in which the evidence is claimed to be insufficient must be specified in either document. Pease v. Fink, 3 Cal. App. 371; 85 Pac. 657. Where the appellant called a document a "statement," rather than a "bill of exceptions," he will not be deprived of his appeal, where he was not entitled to a statement of the case, but to a bill of exceptions. Witter v. Andrews, 122 Cal. 1; 54 Pac. 276. Where an appellant set forth in the transcript a document entitled an "Engrossed statement of the case," in which was set forth all the matters essential to a bill of exceptions, it is sufficient as such. Pease v. Fink, 3 Cal. App. 371; 85 Pac. 657.

Right to have statement settled. A party appealing from a judgment has an independent right to have settled a statement of the case to be used upon such appeal. Vinson v. Los Angeles Pacific R. R. Co., 141 Cal. 151; 74 Pac. 757 (7 Cal. Unrep. 142, 72 Pac. 840, department decision).

Waiver of statement. A statement, if not filed in time, is deemed to have been waived. Macomber v. Chamberlain, 8 Cal. 322; but see Bryan v. Maume, 28 Cal. 238; Kavanagh v. Maus, 28 Cal. 262.

Kinds of statements. The only statement that can be used on appeal is the one used on the hearing of a motion for a new trial, or the subsequent statement designated in § 661, ante. Wall v. Mines, 128 Cal. 136; 60 Pac. 682. Compare §§ 659, 661, ante, and §§ 951, 952, post.

Statement on motion for new trial. The principles applicable to statements on appeal apply to statements for new trials. Dickinson v. Van Horn, 9 Cal. 207. A statement of the case, used on the hearing of the motion for a new trial, is a part of the record, on which an appeal from the judgment may be heard. Sharon v. Sharon, 68 Cal. 326; 9 Pac. 187; Scott v. Wood, 81 Cal. 398; 22 Pac. 871; Brind v. Gregory, 122 Cal. 480; 55 Pac. 250; and see People v. Crane, 60 Cal. 279; Somers v. Somers, 83 Cal. 621; 24 Pac. 162. The requirement of this section, that the appellant must furnish a copy of any statement in the case, upon which he relies, must be held to include the statement prepared for use on the motion for a new trial, whether or not such statement had been actually used: the latter part of this section does not affect this right. Wall v. Mines, 128 Cal. 136; 60 Pac. 682; and see Brandt v. Clark, 81 Cal. 634; 22 Pac. 863; Jue Fook Sam v. Lord, 83 Cal. 159; 23 Pac. 225; Forni v. Yoell, 99 Cal. 173; 38 Pac. 887; Brind v. Gregory, 120 Cal. 640; 53 Pac. 25; Witter v. Andrews, 122 Cal. 1; 54 Pac. 276; Kelly v. Ning Yung Ben Ass'n, 138 Cal. 602; 72 Pac. 148. On appeal from a judgment, taken more than sixty days after its entry, the use of a statement settled to be used upon a motion for a new trial is not involved in a motion to dismiss the appeal. Wall v. Mines, 128 Cal. 136; 60 Pac. 682. An order settling the account of an executor is not a final judgment upon which a statement on motion for a new trial can be used. Estate of Franklin, 133 Cal. 581; 65 Pac. 1081. A statement on motion for a new trial, settled and filed subsequently to the date of the order denying a new trial, may be considered on appeal from the judgment, even though it cannot be resorted to for the purpose of reviewing such order. Blood v. La Serena Land etc. Co., 150 Cal. 764; 89 Pac. 1090.

Statement on appeal. The general purpose of statements on appeal, both from judgments and orders, is to provide for errors in other portions of the field of litigation than those covered by statements on motions for new trial. Quivey v. Gambert, 32 Cal. 304. A statement on appeal must specify the grounds or errors on which the appellant relies (Burnett v. Pacheco, 27 Cal. 408); and there is no distinction, as to the manner in which a statement is to be prepared, between an action at law and a suit in equity. Barrett v. Tewksbury, 15 Cal. 354; Hutton v. Reed, 25 Cal. 478; People v. Banvard, 27 Cal. 470; Haggin v. Clark, 28 Cal. 162; Cross v. Zane, 45 Cal. 89; Ferrer v. Home Mutual Ins. Co., 47 Cal. 416. Questions of law and fact raised must be distinctly set forth in a statement on appeal, accompanied with only so much of the evidence as may be necessary to show their pertinency and materiality. Barrett v. Tewksbury, 15 Cal. 354; Hutton v. Reed, 25 Cal. 478. A statement on appeal must be authenticated and served. Kavanagh v. Maus, 28 Cal. 261. The time for making and filing a statement on appeal may be extended. Bryan v. Maume, 28 Cal. 238.

Contents of statements on appeal from probate court. See note post, § 963.

Nature of case on appeal. The case made by the record on appeal is regarded as a new and distinct action. Davidson v. Dallas, 15 Cal. 75.

Examination on appeal confined to what. On appeal from a judgment, the examination is confined to the judgment roll, and to any bill of exceptions, statement on motion for new trial, and statement of the case, on which appellant relies; the question to be considered must arise on these papers, and if they do not thus arise, no duty devolves on the appellate court to decide them. Emeric v. Alvarado, 64 Cal. 529; 2 Pac. 418. The only papers which can be considered on appeal from a final judgment are the notice of appeal and the judgment roll, where there is no bill of exceptions: a stipulation for judgment cannot be considered. Spinetti v. Brignardello, 53 Cal. 281. The appellate court will not examine the evidence for the purpose of finding a fact. Ellis v. Jeans, 26 Cal. 272. A bill of exceptions, or statement of the case, may be considered on an appeal from the judgment. Mendocino County v. Peters, 2 Cal. App. 21; 82 Pac. 1122; Wall v. Mines, 128 Cal. 136; 60 Pac. 682. The appeal must be disposed of on the record as it comes up to the court: the appellate court cannot interpolate other matters. Davidson v. Dallas, 15 Cal. 75; Rogers v. Tennant, 45 Cal. 184; Parrott v. Floyd, 54 Cal. 534. The appellate court will not be controlled by the views or the reasoning of counsel, but will decide the case upon the record. Hubbard v. Sullivan, 18 Cal. 508; San Francisco v. Beideman, 17 Cal. 443. The appellant is required to confine himself to the objections taken at the trial and set out in the record (Clarke v. Huber, 25 Cal. 593; Davey v. Southern Pacific Co., 116 Cal. 325; 48 Pac. 117; Frank v. Pennie, 117 Cal. 254; 49 Pac. 208; Dikeman v. Norrie, 36 Cal. 94; McKay v. Riley, 65 Cal. 623; 4 Pac. 667; Howland v. Oakland Consol. Street Ry. Co., 110 Cal. 513; 42 Pac. 983); he cannot be allowed, in the appellate court, to enlarge the grounds of his objections, and urge new ones not presented in the first instance (Frank v. Pennie, 117 Cal. 254; 49 Pac. 208); but the respondent, on appeal, may justify the rulings of the court upon any ground, whether advanced in the discussion below or not. Clarke v. Huber, 25 Cal. 593; Davey v. Southern Pacific Co., 116 Cal. 325; 48 Pac. 117.

Contents of transcript. Copies of such papers as are designated in this section must be set out in and be made a part of the transcript. San Francisco etc. R. R. Co. v. Anderson, 77 Cal. 297; 19 Pac. 517. It cannot be said that the verdict shows prejudice as being excessive, where the transcript contains no testimony as to the plaintiff's injuries. Kirk v. Santa Barbara Ice Co., 157 Cal. 591; 108 Pac. 509. All matter that does not tend, in some degree, to illustrate the points made upon appeal should be omitted from the transcript. Estate of Boyd, 25 Cal. 511. The undertaking on appeal should not be embodied in the transcript. San Francisco etc. R. R. Co. v. Anderson, 77 Cal. 297; 19 Pac. 517. Where the appeal is taken on the judgment roll alone, the transcript need not contain a statement of the grounds of the appeal. Solomon v. Reese, 34 Cal. 28. Affidavits printed in the transcript, which form no part of the record, cannot be considered. Warren v. Russell, 129 Cal. 381; 62 Pac. 75. Where the transcript purports to contain a record of all the proceedings of the superior court, sought to be reviewed on appeal, it is sufficient to avoid a dismissal, under the rules of the supreme court. Tompkins v. Montgomery, 116 Cal. 120; 47 Pac. 1006.

Waiver of objections to transcript. A stipulation that the transcript contains all that is necessary for the purposes of the appeal, is a waiver of the objection that the transcript does not contain all the judgment roll. Solomon v. Reese, 34 Cal. 28. The appellant cannot predicate error on a record to which he has consented. Grunsky v. Field, 1 Cal. App. 623; 82 Pac. 979.

One transcript for several appeals. On appeal from a judgment, and from an order subsequent to the judgment, the record on each appeal may be included in one transcript. Sharon v. Sharon, 68 Cal. 326; 9 Pac. 187. Where, on four appeals, but one transcript is made up, so that the appellate court cannot determine on what the lower court acted, the appeals will be dismissed. People v. Center, 61 Cal. 191.

Time for filing transcript. As an appeal is not perfected until the undertaking thereon is filed, the period of forty days for filing the transcript does not commence until such undertaking is filed. Wadsworth v. Wadsworth, 74 Cal. 104; 15 Pac. 447. The time within which a transcript on appeal must be filed does not, in all cases, commence to run from the date of perfecting the appeal; if there is an unsettled bill of exceptions or statement which may be used in support of the appeal, the forty days does not begin to run until such bill or statement is settled. Somers v. Somers, 83 Cal. 621; 24 Pac. 162. The forty days' time within which the transcript may be served and filed, under the rule of the supreme court, cannot commence to run pending a proceeding in the trial court for the settlement of a bill of exceptions for use in the appeal from the judgment. Dernham v. Bagley, 151 Cal. 216; 90 Pac. 543. The time within which to file the transcript upon appeal from a judgment is required to be filed, is not extended by reason of a pending and unsettled bill of exceptions upon appeal from an order made after judgment, which is not applicable to the appeal from the judgment. Butler v. Soule, 117 Cal. 226; 49 Pac. 5. A bill of exceptions, used on the motion for a new trial, which can be used on appeal from the judgment, cannot be held to excuse the delay to file a transcript upon appeal from the judgment, where such bill of exceptions had been settled more than forty days before notice of the motion to dismiss the appeal from the judgment. Bell v. Southern Pacific R. R. Co., 137 Cal. 77; 69 Pac. 692. A bill of exceptions, taken upon the order of the court refusing to vacate its order for the issuance of a writ of assistance, has not the effect of extending the time within which the transcript on appeal from the judgment in the case must be filed. Pignaz v. Burnett, 121 Cal. 292; 53 Pac. 633. Where a motion for a new trial is pending, the time for filing the transcript on an appeal from a judgment is, under the rules of the supreme court, extended for forty days after the disposition of the motion. People v. Bank of San Luis Obispo, 152 Cal. 261; 92 Pac. 481. The transcript on appeal from an order refusing to set apart a probate homestead, or to exempt personal property, or to grant a family allowance, must be filed within forty days after the appeal has been perfected, notwithstanding the pendency of proceedings for a new trial. Estate of Heywood, 154 Cal. 312; 97 Pac. 825. The pendency of a motion to vacate a judgment is no excuse for a failure to file the transcript on appeal within time. Modoc Co-operative Ass'n v. Porter, 11 Cal. App. 270; 104 Pac. 710. The filing of the printed transcript on the day of the filing of the motion to dismiss the appeal for failure to file such transcript, will not defeat such motion: the filing of the transcript can defeat the motion, only when it is filed before the notice of motion to dismiss is served. Ward v. Healy, 110 Cal. 587; 42 Pac. 1071. The pendency of a motion to dismiss an appeal does not, of itself, extend the time within which the appellant is required to file his transcript. White v. White, 112 Cal. 577; 44 Pac. 1026. The filing of a printed transcript is not required under the new method of appeal provided by §§ 953a, 953b, and 953c, post; hence, the rule of the supreme court, requiring a printed transcript to be filed within forty days after the appeal is perfected, is inapplicable to such an appeal. Estate of Keating, 158 Cal. 109; 110 Pac. 109.

What constitutes filing. The fact that the printed transcript was in the office of the express company, in transit to the clerk for filing, when the motion to dismiss the appeal was served, is not the equivalent of filing such transcript. Ward v. Healy, 110 Cal. 587; 42 Pac. 1071.

Dismissal of appeal for defects in transcript. The objection that some parts of the judgment roll have been omitted from the transcript is not ground for the dismissal of an appeal, in the first instance; and the respondent must notify the appellant of his objections, and the appellant will then have an opportunity to supply the papers; and where he fails to do so, he must take the risk of having his appeal dismissed. Hellings v. Duval, 119 Cal. 199; 51 Pac. 335. An appeal cannot be dismissed, where the entire record in the transcript must be examined for the purpose of ascertaining the sufficiency of the grounds urged in support of the motion; hence, the ground for a dismissal, set forth in the notice of motion, that the transcript does not contain any specifications of errors of law, or the particulars in which the evidence is insufficient to support the verdict, cannot be considered. Jarman v. Rea, 129 Cal. 157; 61 Pac. 790. Where the transcript fails to show the papers used on the hearing in the court below, upon which the court acted in making and rendering the order appealed from, the appeal will not be dismissed, as the question involves an examination of the transcript, which will not be done on a motion to dismiss. Wolf v. Board of Supervisors, 143 Cal. 333; 76 Pac. 1108. Alleged defects in the statement of the case, embodied in the transcript on appeal, will not be considered on motion to dismiss the appeal, but when the case comes up on its merits. Richardson v. Eureka, 92 Cal. 64; 28 Pac. 102. Where the settled bill of exceptions, properly certified, contains the order appealed from, a motion to dismiss the appeal, because the order does not elsewhere appear in the transcript, is not tenable. Wolf v. Board of Supervisors, 143 Cal. 333; 76 Pac. 1108. Proof of service of the notice of appeal need not be included in the transcript, and its absence therefrom is not a ground for the dismissal of the appeal. Warren v. Hopkins, 110 Cal. 506; 42 Pac. 986; and see Modesto Bank v. Owens, 121 Cal. 223; 53 Pac. 552; People v. Alameda Turnpike Road Co., 30 Cal. 182; Ellis v. Bennet, 2 Cal. Unrep. 302; 3 Pac. 801. A motion to dismiss an appeal, for failure of the transcript to show service of notice of appeal, will be denied, where, at the hearing of the motion, proof of such service was made. Estate of Stratton, 112 Cal. 513; 44 Pac. 1028. Where the evidence of the service of a notice of appeal, as contained in the transcript, is defective, the appellant will be allowed to show, by proper proof, that a sufficient service had been made, and an appeal will not be dismissed for such failure in the transcript. Knowlton v. MacKenzie, 110 Cal. 183; 42 Pac. 580. Interlineations in a printed transcript are not, per se, ground for dismissing the appeal or for reprinting the transcript. Swasey v. Adair, 83 Cal. 136; 23 Pac. 284.

Dismissal for failure to file transcript. An appeal will be dismissed for failure to file the printed transcript within forty days after the refusal of the judge to settle or certify any bill of exceptions, which must be regarded with the same effect as its settlement. White v. White, 112 Cal. 577; 44 Pac. 1026. The appeal will be dismissed, where there is a failure to file the transcript within the prescribed time. Hart v. Kimberly, 5 Cal. Unrep. 532; 46 Pac. 618; Johnson v. Goodyear Mining Co., 6 Cal. Unrep. 274; 57 Pac. 383; Warren v. McGowan, 7 Cal. Unrep. 190; 77 Pac. 909. Where, after taking an appeal, a guardian ad litem failed to file a bill of exceptions or statement on appeal, and did not request the clerk of the lower court to certify any transcript of the record on appeal, and none was filed, the appeal will be dismissed. In re Moss, 7 Cal. Unrep. 172; 74 Pac. 546. Where, as to certain respondents, an appeal is to be considered upon the judgment roll alone, without a bill of exceptions, and no transcript is filed or served, the appeal, as to such respondents, will be dismissed, although they are included in a notice of appeal with others, on whom a bill of exceptions has been served, which has not yet been settled. Emeric v. Alvarado, 106 Cal. 646; 40 Pac. 11. Where no transcript on appeal was filed within the time prescribed by the rules of the court, and no extension of time was obtained for that purpose, the motion to dismiss the appeal will prevail. Galloway v. Rouse, 63 Cal. 280. An extension of the time within which to file the transcript may be granted by the supreme court; hence, an appeal will not be dismissed, where the transcript was filed within the time as extended. Meeker v. Hoffer, 57 Cal. 140. Where the transcript on appeal is not filed within the time granted by the supreme court, but the appellant acted in good faith, upon a mistaken construction of the order extending the time, and the transcript was served soon after such time, and the respondent is not injured, the appeal will not be dismissed. Brunnings v. Townsend, 6 Cal. Unrep. 647; 64 Pac. 106. Where the clerk of the supreme court permitted an appellant, on filing a written transcript, to have it printed himself, at his home town, instead of depositing the money to cover the costs thereof, as required by the rules of the court, and the appellant, some forty-eight days later, filed the printed transcript, but, prior to such filing, and on the same day, a motion to dismiss for failure to file was served on him, such permission of the clerk was a waiver, in effect, of the rule of the court, which, although unauthorized, so far excused the appellant, that, under the circumstances of the case, the appeal should not be dismissed. Ward v. Healy, 110 Cal. 587; 42 Pac. 1071. Failure to file the transcript within the time limited by the rule of the court and the stipulation of the parties, will not justify a dismissal of the appeal, where the facts and circumstances presented in the affidavit in behalf of the appellant are such as to excuse such failure. Esrey v. Southern Pacific Co., 4 Cal. Unrep. 402; 35 Pac. 310; and see Carter v. Paige, 77 Cal. 64; 19 Pac. 2. A motion to dismiss an appeal for failure of the appellant to file the transcript within forty days after the appeal was perfected, will be denied, where there is an uncertified bill of exceptions, which the judge declined to sign and certify, on the ground that the engrossed bill had been filed in the clerk's office, and that he had no authority to certify it. Jackson v. Puget Sound Lumber Co., 115 Cal. 632; 47 Pac. 603. A motion to dismiss an appeal from the judgment, because the transcript was not filed in time, will be denied, where the bill of exceptions, or statement on motion for a new trial, had not been settled. Estate of Walkerly, 4 Cal. Unrep. 819; 37 Pac. 893; Pignaz v. Burnett, 119 Cal. 157; 51 Pac. 48; Bernard v. Sloan, 138 Cal. 746; 72 Pac. 360; San Francisco Law etc. Co. v. State, 141 Cal. 354; 74 Pac. 1047; Castro v. Breidenbach, 143 Cal. 335; 76 Pac. 1114. Where the superior judge, after motion to dismiss the appeal for failure to file the transcript, settled the statement, which was objected to because of irregularities, it must be presumed that the act of the judge in settling the statement was within his jurisdiction, and the appeal will not be dismissed for failure to file the transcript. Estate of Scott, 124 Cal. 671; 57 Pac. 654. A motion to dismiss an appeal from the judgment, for failure to file the transcript, will be denied, though more than forty days have elapsed after the perfecting of the appeal, where the transcript was filed within forty days after the settlement of a statement on motion for a new trial made upon the minutes of the court, notwithstanding more than sixty days had elapsed after the entry of the order denying the new trial, before the statement was settled, and no appeal was taken from the order. Vinson v. Los Angeles Pacific R. R. Co., 141 Cal. 151; 74 Pac. 757. A motion to dismiss an appeal for failure to file the transcript in time will be denied unless the certificate of the clerk justifies it; the affidavit of the respondent as to the character of the records kept by the clerk is inadmissible to contradict the latter's certificate, upon which alone the motion must be heard. Chevassus v. Burr, 134 Cal. 434; 66 Pac. 568.

No dismissal for failure to serve transcript. Failure of the appellant's attorney to serve a copy of the transcript on the respondent's attorney, before or at the time of filing, is not a ground for dismissing the appeal. Estate of Boyd, 25 Cal. 511.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. 1. Notice of appeal. Transcript must show that notice of appeal was filed in due time. Franklin v. Reiner, 8 Cal. 340; Hildreth v. Gwindon, 10 Cal. 490; Coleman v. Wilkins, July term, 1872. It is not necessary that there should be a statement in the transcript that notice of appeal was filed and served. It is sufficient, within the rule of the cases cited supra, if a copy of the notice of appeal and of the proof of service appear in the record. Western Pacific R. R. Co. v. Reed, 35 Cal. 621. If the parties stipulate that notice of appeal was filed in the court below, and served, the appellate court will not receive evidence to contradict the stipulation, nor will it dismiss the appeal because no notice was filed. Bonds v. Hickman, 29 Cal. 460.

2. Undertaking. A statement that an undertaking in due form was filed within the time prescribed, is sufficient. Wakeman v. Coleman, 28 Cal. 58; Franklin v. Goodman, 31 Cal. 458; see also Franklin v. Reiner, 8 Cal. 340; Cook v. Klink, 8 Cal. 352.

3. Pleadings. Not necessary always to bring up pleadings in full. A summary, if agreed to by the attorneys, will in most cases be sufficient. Todd v. Winants, 36 Cal. 129.

4. Bills of exceptions, and other parts of the judgment roll. Where parties in the same action take independent appeals, each appeal must be heard on its own record. Gates v. Walker, 35 Cal. 289; Fair v. Stevenot, 29 Cal. 486. If an appeal is taken from the judgment, and also from an order denying a new trial, the appeal from the judgment must be determined on the judgment roll alone. Rush v. Casey, 39 Cal. 339. When an appeal is taken, and the parties rely upon the judgment roll, no statement of grounds is necessary. Jones v. Petaluma, 36 Cal. 230. But under this code a bill of exceptions, based upon the fact that the decision or verdict is not supported by the evidence, must contain a specification of the particulars in which the evidence is alleged to be insufficient. § 648, ante.

5. What should be omitted. The clerk's minutes. Mendocino County v. Morris, 32 Cal. 145. Matters that do not illustrate the point, Estate of Boyd, 25 Cal. 512. The original pleadings, where they have been superseded by amended ones. Marriner v. Smith, 27 Cal. 649.

§ 951. What papers used on appeals from orders, except orders granting new trials.

On appeal from a judgment rendered on an appeal, or from an order, except an order granting a new trial, the appellant must furnish the court with a copy of the notice of appeal, of the judgment or order appealed from, and of papers used on the hearing in the court below.

Legislation § 951. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 346, as amended by Stats. 1863–64, p. 247. See ante, Legislation § 950.

2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1873–74, p. 339, (1) inserting "of" before "the judgment," and (2) substituting "papers used on the hearing in the court below" for "the bill of exceptions relating thereto."

3. Amended by Stats. 1915, p. 205, striking out "or refusing," in the phrase "granting or refusing a new trial."

Construction of section. This section does not require that findings in supplementary proceedings shall be brought up by a bill of exceptions. Lyons v. Marcher, 119 Cal. 382; 51 Pac. 559.

Application of section. This section applies to records on appeal, prepared under §§ 953a, 953c, post: a notice of appeal must be included in every record. Merritt v. Los Angeles, 162 Cal. 47; 120 Pac. 1064.

Appeal perfected how. To perfect an appeal from an order heard and determined, at least in part, upon affidavits, it is necessary for the appellant to follow either the method prescribed by §§ 953a, 953b, and 953c, post, or that prescribed by the rules of the supreme court. Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc. v. Doran, 161 Cal. 118; 118 Pac. 526. Upon appeal from an order denying a motion to vacate a judgment, of dismissal, the burden is upon the plaintiffs appealing from the order to have settled a bill of exceptions, showing the evidence taken upon the hearing of such motion. Estate of Dean, 149 Cal. 487; 87 Pac. 13.

Copy of order appealed from. The appellant must furnish copies of the orders appealed from; and if the record has been destroyed by fire, he must have the record restored. Estate of Heywood, 154 Cal. 312; 97 Pac. 825. The requirement of this section, that the appellant must furnish the supreme court with a copy of the order appealed from, indicates that a copy of the order must be furnished the appellant by the clerk of the court in which it was made, and not by the clerk of the court to which the action was transferred. Mansfield v. O'Keefe, 133 Cal. 362; 65 Pac. 825. It is not necessary that orders appealed from shall be contained in any bill of exceptions or statement: copies of the orders, certified by the clerk, with a copy of the notice of appeal, are sufficient to sustain the appeal. Brode v. Goslin, 158 Cal. 699; 112 Pac. 280. On an appeal from an order dissolving a preliminary injunction, the order must be embodied in the transcript on appeal. Kimple v. Conway, 69 Cal. 71; 10 Pac. 189.

Papers used on the hearing. An appeal from an order dissolving an injunction must be heard upon the papers and evidence used on the hearing in the court below, which must be incorporated in a bill of exceptions, or authenticated by the judge as having been used at the hearing of the motion, and as being all of the papers and evidence so used; and upon failure to furnish such bill of exceptions or authentication, the appeal must be dismissed. Spreckels v. Spreckels, 114 Cal. 60; 45 Pac. 1022. The phrase in this section, "papers used on the hearing," means all of the papers. Muzzy v. D. H. McEwen Lumber Co., 154 Cal. 685; 98 Pac. 1062. This section applies only to orders which are themselves appealable, and does not relate to papers used on the hearing which resulted in the judgment; hence, papers used on the hearing of an application to file a supplemental complaint need not be authenticated by a bill of exceptions on appeal from the judgment. Giddings v. 76 Land etc. Co., 109 Cal. 116; 41 Pac. 788. Where the transcript contains no bill of exceptions, and no showing as to what papers were used on the hearing of the order appealed from, such order will not be reviewed. Ellis v. Bennet, 2 Cal. Unrep. 302; 3 Pac. 801. An appeal from an order revoking a temporary restraining order and refusing an injunction is heard upon the papers used on the hearing in the court below; and the testimony of witnesses contained in the record, identified by the judge as having been given on the hearing, will be treated on the appeal as written affidavits. Hunt v. Steese, 75 Cal. 620; 17 Pac. 920. Upon appeal from an order of confirmation, it is the duty of the appellant to make the return of sale, used on the hearing of the motion, a part of the record, or the order confirming the sale will not be reviewed. Estate of Robinson, 142 Cal. 152; 75 Pac. 777.

Necessity of authenticating papers used on hearing. Where the papers found in the transcript are not identified as having been used on the hearing in the court below, the order appealed from must be affirmed. White v. Longmire, 63 Cal. 232; and see Baker v. Snyder, 58 Cal. 617. When the record on appeal from an order changing the place of trial fails to contain any papers identified as having been used in the lower court on the hearing of the motion to change, such motion will be presumed to have been properly made. McAulay v. Truckee Ice Co., 79 Cal. 50; 51 Pac. 434; and see Pardy v. Montgomery, 77 Cal. 326; 19 Pac. 530.

Method and sufficiency of authentication. This section enumerates a list of papers, copies of which must be furnished the appellate court, but does not make any provision as to authentication; that matter is provided for by rule of court, requiring that the papers and evidence be authenticated by incorporating the same in a bill of exceptions. Harrison v. Cousins, 16 Cal. App. 515; 117 Pac. 564. The proper method of authenticating papers on appeal is by a bill of exceptions certified to by the judge. Muzzy v. D. H. McEwen Lumber Co., 154 Cal. 685; 98 Pac. 1062. On appeal from an order denying a motion to vacate a judgment of dismissal, all of the affidavits and evidence used upon the hearing must be authenticated by a bill of exceptions, purporting to contain them "all." Estate of Dean, 149 Cal. 487; 87 Pac. 13. A bill of exceptions, certified as settled by the judge, which merely refers to numerous papers and documents as used at the hearing, which are not incorporated in the bill of exceptions, is insufficient, and cannot be considered upon appeal; and documents omitted from the bill of exceptions cannot be properly authenticated by stipulation of counsel as to the correctness of file-marks and indorsements upon documents referred to, which are printed separately in the transcript. San Diego Sav. Bank v. Goodsell, 137 Cal. 420; 70 Pac. 299. Without a statutory provision authorizing the authentication of copies of papers in some other way, the only proper way that they can be brought into the record upon appeal and identified is by bill of exceptions or statement; and in case of appeal from any decision made after judgment, a bill of exceptions is the only proper mode of authentication: the certificate of the judge is not sufficient.

Herrlich v. McDonald, 80 Cal. 472; 22 Pac. 299; Somers v. Somers, 81 Cal. 608; 22 Pac. 967. The rule of the supreme court, providing that upon an appeal from an order the papers or evidence used on the hearing in the trial court must be authenticated by a bill of exceptions, when no other mode of authentication is provided by law, was intended to apply only to those appeals in which the order was sought to be reversed because of matters alleged to be shown by affidavits, or evidence used or taken on the hearing in the trial court, and does not apply when the order appealed from is attacked for matters appearing upon its face; hence, the findings of the court, in settling the account of an executor, need not be authenticated by a bill of exceptions, being a part of the judgment roll. Miller v. Lux, 100 Cal. 609; 35 Pac. 345. As the statute prescribes no mode in which the papers used on the hearing in the court below shall be authenticated, the appellate court has power to prescribe by rule how such papers shall be brought before it on appeal; and having such power, it has the power to ratify the mode adopted by the trial court; hence, where the transcript contains papers used on the hearing in the trial court, accompanied by the certificate of the judge, stating what papers were used, such papers are properly before the appellate court. Pieper v. Centinela Land Co., 56 Cal. 173. The certificate of the judge, reciting that the affidavits of certain persons were used and considered on the hearing of the motion, but failing to show that the affidavits set out in the transcript on appeal from an order after judgment are the same as those used and considered, or true copies of them, is insufficient, and the appeal should be dismissed. Somers v. Somers, 81 Cal. 608; 22 Pac. 967. On an appeal from an order for counsel fees and alimony, made pendente lite in an action for divorce, the certificate of the trial judge is a sufficient identification of the papers used on the hearing of the motion. Schammel v. Schammel, 70 Cal. 72; 11 Pac. 497; and see Pieper v. Centinela Land Co., 56 Cal. 173. Assuming that the clerk has power to authenticate papers used on the hearing of a motion, such authentication is insufficient, if it fails to state that the papers contained in the transcript were "all" the papers used on the hearing. Muzzy v. D. H. McEwen Lumber Co., 154 Cal. 685; 98 Pac. 1062. Unless the affidavits, etc., when used on a motion, are then indorsed or marked by the clerk, his certificate to the identity of such papers cannot be held to be determinative of the fact, as against his subsequent statement, that he signed the certificate by mistake, and that he did not know, and had no means of knowing, whether the affidavits were or were not used at the hearing of the motion. Baker v. Snyder, 58 Cal. 617. The certificates of the presiding judge and of the clerk, made after the service and the filing of the notice of motion to dismiss the appeal, do not supply defects in the transcript, in failing to contain proof of service of notice of appeal, undertaking, bill of exceptions, or papers used on motion from order in which the appeal was taken. Ellis v. Bennet, 2 Cal. Unrep. 302; 3 Pac. 801.

Contents of bill of exceptions. On an appeal from an order denying an application to fix the compensation of attorneys, which application was submitted "on the files, papers, and records in the case," a will and codicil, forming a part of such papers, are properly included in the bill of exceptions. Estate of Hite, 155 Cal. 448; 101 Pac. 448.

When no bill of exceptions necessary. See note ante, § 950.

Contents of transcript. On an appeal from an order setting aside a default, the transcript must contain a bill of exceptions, settled and signed as prescribed by the code. Grazidal v. Bastanchure, 47 Cal. 167. Where the transcript on appeal from an order granting a writ of assistance does not contain a copy of any motion or notice of motion for a writ of assistance, or order to show cause why such writ should not issue, it will be presumed that the order appealed from was made upon an ex parte application against the defendant in the action; hence, the appellants, not being parties to the original suit, and not having been made parties to the writ, are not parties aggrieved, and have no standing on appeal. Miller v. Bate, 56 Cal. 135. The undertaking on appeal should not be embodied in the transcript. San Francisco etc. R. R. Co. v. Anderson, 77 Cal. 297; 19 Pac. 517.

Transcript on appeal. See also note ante, § 950.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. See note to § 950, ante; Harper v. Minor, 27 Cal. 109; Glidden v. Packard, 28 Cal. 649; Paine v. Linhill, 10 Cal. 370; Freeborn v. Glazer, 10 Cal. 337.

§ 952. What papers to be used on appeal from an order granting a new trial. On appeal from an order granting a new trial the appellant must furnish the court with a copy of the notice of appeal, of the order appealed from, the judgment roll and any bill of exceptions prepared and settled as provided in section six hundred fifty of this code subsequently to the order granting the motion.

Legislation § 952. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872, reading, "§ 952. On an appeal from an order granting or refusing a new trial, the appellant must furnish the court with a copy of the notice of motion for new trial, and of appeal, and of the statement provided for in section six hundred and sixty-one, and of all the pleadings, papers, bills of exception, and affidavits referred to and made part of such statement."

2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1873–74, p. 339, substituting, at end, for former provision, "a copy of the notice of appeal, of the order appealed from, and of the papers designated in section six hundred and sixty-one of this code."

3. Amended by Stats. 1901, p. 174; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

4. Amended by Stats. 1915, p. 205, recasting the section.

Application of section. This section applies to records on appeal prepared under §§ 953a, 953c, post. Merritt v. Los Angeles, 162 Cal. 47; 120 Pac. 1064.

Notice of appeal. A notice of appeal must be included in every record. Merritt v. Los Angeles, 162 Cal. 47; 120 Pac. 1064.

Original papers to remain on file. The originals of the classes of papers referred to in this section should remain on file in the office of the clerk of the superior court, and not be sent up to the reviewing court. Knoch v. Haizlip, 163 Cal. 20; 124 Pac. 997.

Judgment roll. The judgment roll must be embodied in the transcript, on appeal from an order denying a new trial. Kimple v. Conway, 69 Cal. 71; 10 Pac. 189.

Affidavits used at hearing. Under this section, it is the duty of the appellant to bring up not only the judgment roll and the bill of exceptions, but also such affidavits as may have been used on the hearing, properly authenticated in the bill of exceptions; and in the absence of such showing, it will be conclusively presumed, that the motion was, in part, based on some ground upon which affidavits could be used; that affidavits were in fact used on the hearing; and that such affidavits were sufficient to justify the court in making the order appealed from. Skinner v. Horn, 144 Cal. 278; 77 Pac. 904. Affidavits used on the hearing of the motion for a new trial must be incorporated in the bill of exceptions, under the rules of the supreme court: a certificate of the judge, authenticating certain affidavits as having been used upon the hearing of the motion, without showing that these were all the papers used at the hearing, is insufficient. Melde v. Reynolds, 120 Cal. 234; 52 Pac. 491.

Statement or bill of exceptions. Upon an appeal from an order granting or refusing a new trial, the statement or bill of exceptions, as used on the hearing of the motion in the court below, must be brought up to the appellate court by the transcript on appeal: where the transcript is in such imperfect condition that it has to be disregarded, there remains no record upon which the appellant is entitled to be heard. Thompson v. Patterson, 54 Cal. 542. A stipulation as to the correctness of the transcript does not estop the respondent from objecting to the sufficiency of the statement to support the motion for a new trial. Carver v. San Joaquin Cigar Co., 16 Cal. App. 761; 118 Pac. 92.

Notice of motion for new trial. The notice of intention to move for a new trial constitutes no part of the record on appeal from an order granting or refusing a new trial. Hook v. Hall, 68 Cal. 22; 8 Pac. 596; Richardson v. Eureka, 92 Cal. 64; 28 Pac. 102. A copy of the notice of intention to move for a new trial, though printed in the transcript, cannot be considered as a part of the record on appeal, where it is not authenticated by a bill of exceptions. Dennis v. Gordon, 163 Cal. 427; 125 Pac. 1063. An order denying a motion for a new trial is a part of the record; and where it recites that the motion was made on the grounds set forth in the defendant's notice of motion, it sufficiently shows that the notice was given: it is not necessary that the notice shall be formally set out. Randall v. Duff, 79 Cal. 115; 3 L. R. A. 754; 19 Pac. 532; 21 Pac. 610.

Papers on appeal, where motion made on minutes. On appeal from an order granting or refusing a new trial, on the minutes of the court, or from an order granting a new trial by the court on its own motion, a statement prepared subsequently to such ruling of the court, with the judgment roll and a copy of the order, constitute the papers on which the same is to be heard. Emeric v. Alvarado, 64 Cal. 529; 2 Pac. 418.

Opinion of judge. The written opinion of the trial judge is not a part of the record on appeal (Classen v. Thomas, 164 Cal. 196; 128 Pac. 329; Goldner v. Spencer, 163 Cal. 317; 125 Pac. 347; People v. Quong Sing, 20 Cal. App. 26; 127 Pac. 1052), although printed in the transcript. Bouchard v. Abrahamsen, 4 Cal. App. 430; 88 Pac. 383.

Order granting new trial. The order entered in the minutes is the only record of the court's action in granting a new trial, and is to be measured by its terms. Classen v. Thomas, 164 Cal. 196; 128 Pac. 329.

Record on appeal. Except in the case of a bill of exceptions settled after judgment, or on an appeal from an order granting or refusing a new trial made on the minutes of the court, the record on appeal consists of copies of the notice of appeal, the judgment roll, and the bill of exceptions, statement, and affidavits used on the hearing of the motion. Frost v. Los Angeles Ry. Co., 165 Cal. 365; 132 Pac. 442. The undertaking on appeal should not be embodied in the transcript. San Francisco etc. R. R. Co. v. Anderson, 77 Cal. 297; 19 Pac. 517. On appeal from an order denying a new trial, a notice of motion for relief, under § 473, ante, and a minute-order granting it, are no part of the record on appeal, though printed in the transcript, if they are not embodied in a statement or bill of exceptions. King v. Dugan, 150 Cal. 258; 88 Pac. 925. On appeal from an order refusing a new trial, a copy of the notice of intention to move for a new trial, although printed in the transcript, cannot be considered as a part of the record, unless it is authenticated by a bill of exceptions. Dennis v. Gordon, 163 Cal. 427; 125 Pac. 1063. Affidavits used upon a motion for a new trial are no part of the record upon appeal, unless they are incorporated in a bill of exceptions; if not so incorporated, they cannot be considered. Skinner v. Horn, 144 Cal. 278; 77 Pac. 904.

Authentication. On an appeal from an order denying a motion for a new trial of the contest of a will after probate, it is not essential that the papers constituting the judgment roll, or the order denying the motion, shall be authenticated by being embodied in a bill of exceptions: the clerk's certificate is a sufficient authentication. Estate of Kilborn, 162 Cal. 4; 120 Pac. 762. It is not within the functions of the clerk of the court to certify or determine what papers were used on the hearing of the motion for a new trial, and his certificate is of no effect. Melde v. Reynolds, 120 Cal. 234; 52 Pac. 491. A certificate that the record contains complete copies of the records and documents on file, and, among others, of the last bill of exceptions, including the order refusing a new trial, is sufficient to make such order a part of the record, where a second bill of exceptions recites the hearing of the motion, and states that the court, having heard the argument of counsel, and being fully advised, orders that such motion be denied. Hagman v. Williams, 88 Cal. 146; 25 Pac. 1111. The record on appeal from an order denying a motion for a new trial sufficiently shows that the order was made, when a copy of the minute order to that effect is contained in the transcript, properly certified in the clerk's certificate attached thereto. Worley v. Spreckels Bros. Commercial Co., 163 Cal. 60; 124 Pac. 697.

Time for filing transcript. Where a motion for a new trial has been made, the time for filing the transcript on appeal from the judgment begins to run from the date of the entry of the order disposing of the motion for a new trial, so as to give an immediate right of appeal therefrom. Bell v. Staacke, 148 Cal. 404; 83 Pac. 245.

Use of papers on appeals from orders, except orders granting or refusing new trials. See note ante, § 951.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. See note to § 650, ante.

§ 953. Copies and undertakings, how certified. The copies provided for in the last three sections must be certified to be correct by the clerk or the attorneys, and must be accompanied with a certificate of the clerk or attorneys that an undertaking on appeal, in due form, has been properly filed, or a stipulation of the parties waiving an undertaking.

Legislation § 953. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 346, as amended by Stats. 1863–64, p. 247. See ante, Legislation § 950.

2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1873–74, p. 339, (1) inserting "or attorneys" after "certificate of the clerk," and (2) inserting, at end of section, "or a stipulation of the parties waiving an undertaking."

Powers and duties of clerk. Whether certain documents, when certified, will constitute a sufficient transcript on appeal, is a question which the clerk of the court cannot determine: it is his duty to certify to the correctness of the documents in the transcript, if they are correct copies of the originals in his custody, and transmit them to the appellate court; and if, on payment of his lawful fees, he refuses so to do, an order compelling him will be granted on motion. People v. Center, 54 Cal. 236. The authority of the clerk, under this section, is limited to certifying to the correctness of the copies of the papers designated in the preceding sections as forming the record on appeal: he is not authorized to certify what papers were used on the hearing of the motion for a new trial. Melde v. Reynolds, 120 Cal. 234; 52 Pac. 491. The certification by the clerk to the correctness of the transcript must be accompanied by his certificate that an undertaking on appeal, in due form, has been properly filed. San Francisco etc. R. R. Co. v. Anderson, 77 Cal. 297; 19 Pac. 517.

Sufficiency of certificate to transcript. On appeal from an order denying a new trial, such order is sufficiently authenticated by a certificate attached to the transcript, reciting that a true and correct copy of the order is therein contained. Mendocino County v. Peters, 2 Cal. App. 24; 82 Pac. 1122.

Effect of absence of certificate. A transcript, not certified by the clerk of the court, nor by the attorneys in the case, as provided in this section, cannot be considered on appeal. Ellis v. Bennet, 2 Cal. Unrep. 302; 3 Pac. 801. Appellant's affidavit as to the correctness of the transcript of the record cannot be substituted for a certificate to the transcript: if such certificate is absent, the appeal must be dismissed. Snipsic Co. v. Riverside Music Co., 6 Cal. App. 115; 91 Pac. 747. Where the clerk's certificate to the transcript says nothing as to any bill of exceptions, a purported bill of exceptions, inserted in the transcript, cannot be considered. Pereira v. City Savings Bank, 128 Cal. 45; 60 Pac. 524.

Effect of stipulation as to correctness of transcript. A stipulation as to the correctness of the transcript merely obviates the necessity of the certificate by the clerk, and does not estop the respondent from denying the sufficiency of the statement. Leonard v. Shaw, 114 Cal. 69; 45 Pac. 1012.

Sufficiency of certificate as to undertaking. It must appear from the clerk's certificate that an undertaking on appeal, in due form, has been filed in time. Pacific Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Edgar, 132 Cal. 197; 64 Pac. 260. A certificate of the clerk, "that a sufficient undertaking on appeal, in due form of law, was properly filed therein," is a sufficient compliance with this section. Meeker v. Hoffer, 57 Cal. 140. A certificate of the clerk, that "a good and sufficient undertaking on appeal was properly filed herein," conforms with the requirements of this section, and is prima facie sufficient. Downing v. Rademacher, 136 Cal. 673; 69 Pac. 415. In the absence of any certificate by the clerk that the undertaking on appeal is in due form, or of any copy of the undertaking certified by him, it will be assumed, on appeal, that the instrument on file is not in due form. Winder v. Hendrick, 54 Cal. 275. A certificate that the transcript is correct cannot be construed as certifying that the undertaking on appeal is in due form and has been properly filed, though the undertaking is set out in the transcript, and appears to be in proper form. San Francisco etc. R. R. Co. v. Anderson, 77 Cal. 297; 19 Pac. 517; Jones v. Iverson, 3 Cal. Unrep. 707; 31 Pac. 625; Shay v. Chicago Clock Co., 111 Cal. 549; 44 Pac. 237. A certificate of the clerk, "that an undertaking on appeal was properly filed in my office," giving the date, is insufficient, in failing to recite that the undertaking was in due form; the expression "properly filed" is not the equivalent of nor was it intended to include the words "in due form." Winder v. Hendrick, 54 Cal. 275. The insertion, in the transcript, of a copy of the undertaking on appeal, with its indorsements, certified by the county clerk to be correct, does not satisfy the express requirement of this section, that the clerk or the attorneys must certify that an undertaking in due form has been properly filed. Swasey v. Adair, 83 Cal. 136; 23 Pac. 284. Where the transcript does not contain a copy of the undertaking on appeal, and the certificate of the clerk, so far as it relates to such undertaking, does not conform to this section, the appeal will be dismissed. Watson v. Cornell, 52 Cal. 644. A certificate of the clerk, "that an undertaking in due form of law is on file in my office," is insufficient to show that an undertaking on appeal was filed, or that it was properly filed, or that it was filed in time. Pacific Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Edgar, 132 Cal. 197; 64 Pac. 260. A certificate of the clerk, "that a good and sufficient undertaking on appeal, in due form of law, has been executed, and is now on file, in said action, in my office," is not sufficient, under this section, so far as it relates to the undertaking on appeal. Watson v. Cornell, 52 Cal. 644.

Conclusiveness of certificate. The certificate of the clerk, that an undertaking on appeal, in due form, has been properly filed, is not conclusive; and the appellate court may determine whether the undertaking is sufficient to confer jurisdiction. Duncan v. Times-Mirror Co., 109 Cal. 602; 42 Pac. 147.

Amended certificate. An amended certificate, that an undertaking on appeal, in due form, has been properly filed, may be allowed to be filed, under the rules of the supreme court. Swasey v. Adair, 83 Cal. 136; 23 Pac. 284.

Motion to dismiss, papers not furnished until hearing. Where, upon a motion to dismiss the appeal, the respondent filed a certificate of the clerk, showing that an undertaking on appeal, in due form, had been filed, which was not objected to for insufficiency, the appeal will not be dismissed, though, at the time the motion was made, no such certificate was on file. Shay v. Chicago Clock Co., 111 Cal. 549; 44 Pac. 237; and see Warren v. Hopkins, 110 Cal. 506; 42 Pac. 986. An appeal will not be dismissed on account of an informal certificate to the transcript, where, at the hearing of the motion, the appellant furnishes a proper certificate, and he will be allowed to add such certificate to the record. Hellings v. Duval, 119 Cal. 199; 51 Pac. 335. A motion to dismiss an appeal, because the transcript filed and served was not authenticated, will be denied, where, at the hearing of the motion, the appellant presented another copy, properly authenticated, and asks leave to file the same. Swortfiguer v. White, 137 Cal. 391; 70 Pac. 214.

Certification of appeal papers. See also notes ante, §§ 950, 951, 952.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. A stipulation by the attorneys, that the transcript is correct, but takes the place of the clerk's certificate that the papers are correct. Todd v. Winants, 36 Cal. 129. See also Godchaux v. Mulford, 26 Cal. 319; 85 Am. Dec. 178; St. John v. Kidd, 26 Cal. 265.

§ 953a. Preparation of papers on appeal. Notice to county clerk. Any person desiring to appeal from any judgment, order or decree of the superior court to the supreme court or any of the district courts of appeal, may, in lieu of preparing and settling a bill of exceptions pursuant to the provisions of section six hundred fifty of this code, or for the purpose of presenting a record on appeal from any appealable judgment or order, or for the purpose of having reviewed, any matter or order reviewable on appeal from final judgment, file with the clerk of the court from whose judgment, order or decree said appeal is taken, or to be taken, a notice stating that he desires or intends to appeal, or has appealed therefrom, and requesting that a transcript of the testimony offered or taken, evidence offered or received, and all rulings, instructions, acts or statements of the court, also all objections or exceptions of counsel, and all matters to which the same relate, be made up and prepared. Said notice must be filed within ten days after notice of entry of the judgment, order or decree, or if a proceeding on motion for new trial be pending, within ten days after notice of decision denying said motion, or of other termination thereof.

Upon receiving said notice, it shall be the duty of the court to require the stenographic reporter thereof to transcribe fully and completely the phonographic report of the trial. The stenographic reporter shall, within twenty days after said notice has been filed with the clerk, prepare a transcript of the phonographic report of the trial including therein copies of all writings offered or received in evidence and all other matters and things required by the notice above referred to to be therein contained, and shall file the same with the clerk of said court upon [court. Upon] the same being filed;[,] it shall be the duty of the clerk forthwith to give the attorneys appearing in said cause notice that said transcript has been filed, and that within five days after the receipt of said notice the same will be presented to the judge for approval. At the time specified in the notice of the clerk to the attorneys said transcript shall be presented to the judge for his approval, and the judge shall examine the same and see that the same is a full, true and fair transcript of the proceedings had at the trial, the testimony offered or taken, evidence offered or received, instructions, acts or statements of the court, also all objections and exceptions of counsel and matters to which the same relate. The judge shall thereupon certify to the truth and correctness of said transcript and the same shall, when so settled and allowed, be and become a portion of the judgment roll and may be considered on appeal in lieu of the bill of exceptions now provided for by law.

If the judgment, order or decree appealed from be not included in a judgment roll, the party desiring to appeal shall on the filing of said notice specify therein such of the pleadings, papers, records and files in said cause as he desires to have incorporated in said transcript in addition to the matters hereinbefore required and the same shall be included.

The respondents on said appeal may at the time said transcript is presented for settlement and allowance, require the insertion therein of such other papers, files, documents, records and proceedings of said cause as they then desire to have incorporated therein, and the said papers, files, documents, records and proceedings shall when so incorporated be deemed fully authentic for use on said appeal. The parties may by stipulation omit any matters from said record which they desire to so omit.

Legislation § 953a. 1. Added by Stats. 1907, p. 750 (based on §§ 549–554, Bellinger and Cotton's Oregon Ann. Codes and Stats.); the code commissioner saying of this section and of §§ 953b and 953c, "These three sections provide for a new and alternative method for the preparation of records to be used on appeals from judgments, orders or decrees of the superior court to the supreme court or district courts of appeal."

2. Amended by Stats. 1915, p. 206, (1) in first sentence, adding "or for the purpose of presenting a record on appeal from any appealable judgment or order, or for the purpose of having reviewed any matter or order reviewable on appeal from final judgment"; (2) in second sentence, adding the clause beginning "or if a proceeding"; (3) in second paragraph, connecting the beginning of the third sentence with the end of the second (an evident misconception of the meaning of the text on the part of the printer); the former punctuation is bracketed in the text (which see).

Construction of sections. This section merely provides a substitute for a bill of exceptions: a notice, though strictly in compliance therewith, cannot serve as a valid notice of appeal. Boling v. Alton, 162 Cal. 297; 12 Pac. 461. The purpose of §§ 953a, 953b, 953c, is to provide a method for preparing the record or transcript to be filed on appeal; none of the proceedings prescribed are jurisdictional. Smith v. Jaccard, 20 Cal. App. 280; 128 Pac. 1026. The rules of decision are not changed under the alternative method of appeal. United Investment Co. v. Los Angeles etc. Ry. Co., 10 Cal. App. 175; 101 Pac. 543. The alternative for loss of right to appeal is to file a printed transcript within forty days, unless the time is extended or the appellate court excuses the failure so to file. Estate of Keating, 158 Cal. 109; 110 Pac. 109. The acts of 1907 enacting §§ 941a, 941b, 941c, and §§ 953a, 953b, 953c, are entirely independent of each other. Lang v. Tilley & Thurston Co., 161 Cal. 295; 119 Pac. 100.

Constitutionality of sections. The alternative method of appeal is constitutional. Estate of McPhee, 154 Cal. 385; 97 Pac. 878.

Method of appeal. To perfect an appeal from an order, either the old or the new method must be followed; otherwise there is no record upon which the court can review the order. Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc. v. Doran, 161 Cal. 118; 118 Pac. 526; and see Credit Clearance Bureau v. Weary, 18 Cal. App. 467; 123 Pac. 548.

Notice of entry of judgment. The appellant has ten days after notice of entry of judgment within which to demand a transcript of the evidence. Shaw v. Blasevich, 21 Cal. App. 498; 132 Pac. 278. Actual notice of entry waives written notice thereof. Estate of Keating, 158 Cal. 109; 110 Pac. 109. Whether notice of entry was given, is a question of fact. Hecker v. Baker, 19 Cal. App. 667; 127 Pac. 654.

Notice of appeal. An appellant who desires to dispense with a bill of exceptions must file with the clerk a notice stating his desire or intention to appeal, or that he has appealed, and request an authenticated transcript. Dyer Law etc. Co. v. Salisbury, 17 Cal. App. 395; 119 Pac. 947. To appeal under this section, it is necessary to file with the clerk a request for a transcript. Thompson v. American Fruit Co., 21 Cal. App. 338; 131 Pac. 878. The evidence must be certified by the judge; neither the certificate of the clerk nor the stipulation of counsel can take the place of the judge's certificate. Pouchan v. Godeau, 21 Cal. App. 365; 131 Pac. 879. An appellant, in order to avail himself of the alternative method of appeal, must present a transcript consisting of copies of the moving papers, the evidence taken upon the hearing of the motion, and the rulings of the court thereon, certified by the trial judge: the clerk cannot certify this record. Thompson v. American Fruit Co., 21 Cal. App. 338; 131 Pac. 178. It is not necessary to serve a notice of appeal, but it must be filed within the time required. Watson v. Dingley, 14 Cal. App. 88; 111 Pac. 106.

Duty of clerk. The clerk should not send up original files of papers, in lieu of a transcript, to be certified by the judge and filed upon the appeal (Waterbury v. Temescal Water Co., 11 Cal. App. 632; 105 Pac. 940); otherwise the clerk is not required to prepare, authenticate, and send up the judgment roll, without which there is no record. Dyer Law etc. Co. v. Salisbury, 17 Cal. App. 373; 119 Pac. 947.

Duty of reporter. It is the duty of the stenographic reporter to make a transcript of the report of the trial within twenty days after the notice of appeal has been given, and to file such transcript with the clerk: he cannot refuse so to file it until his fees are paid. Gjurich v. Fieg, 160 Cal. 331; 116 Pac. 745.

Contents of judgment roll. Since the amendment to § 670, ante, in 1907, bills of exceptions are no longer made a part of the judgment roll; and where an appeal is taken under § 941b, ante, without service of the notice of appeal, the proper record upon appeal, under this section, is a transcript to be certified by the judge in lieu of a bill of exceptions, which becomes a part of the judgment roll. Waterbury v. Temescal Water Co., 11 Cal. App. 632; 105 Pac. 940.

Requirements as to transcript. Except where the transcript has been settled and allowed by the trial court, the appellant cannot be relieved from printing his transcript on appeal. Waterbury v. Temescal Water Co., 11 Cal. App. 632; 105 Pac. 940. Under this section, no printed transcript of the record is required. Williams v. Hawkins, 20 Cal. App. 161; 128 Pac. 754. An appeal taken under this section, and §§ 953b, 953c, post, cannot be dismissed for a failure to file a printed transcript within forty days, in the absence of any rule of court relative to the time in which a transcript must be filed under the new method of appeal. Estate of Keating, 158 Cal. 109; 110 Pac. 109. It is the duty of appellant, as the moving party, to exercise diligence to secure the filing of his transcript. Smith v. Jaccard, 20 Cal. App. 280; 128 Pac. 1026. An appeal must be dismissed, where the transcript has not been filed in time, without valid excuse for such neglect. Modoc Co-operative Ass'n v. Porter, 11 Cal. App. 270; 104 Pac. 710. The record of an appeal taken under the alternative method may be reviewed, though it does not show a service of the notice of appeal, nor that an undertaking to pay the cost of the transcript was given, nor that there was any notice and request for a transcript, where the transcript was written out in longhand by the appellant, and was properly certified and authenticated by the judge, and is before the appellate court. Carr v. Stern, 17 Cal. App. 397; 120 Pac. 35. Neither in the statute nor in the rules of the court is any penalty prescribed for the failure of the reporter to file a transcript of the proceedings within twenty days: this provision is merely directory, and failure to file such transcript within the time allowed is not jurisdictional. Smith v. Jaccard, 20 Cal. App. 280; 128 Pac. 1026. Where the appellant would have the testimony considered, as well as the judgment roll, he must have a statement or a bill of exceptions settled and certified, or have a transcript approved as provided in this section. Lane v. Tanner, 156 Cal. 135; 103 Pac. 846.

Necessity for authentication of record. To perfect an appeal, the appellant must follow either the old or the new method; in either case, the record must be examined and authenticated by the trial judge, who knows what papers were used on the hearing: it is not for the clerk to determine what papers or evidence the court acted upon. Credit Clearance Bureau v. Weary & Alford Co., 18 Cal. App. 467; 123 Pac. 548. The appellate court will not review an order upon a record not properly authenticated. Knox v. Schrag, 18 Cal. App. 220; 122 Pac. 969.

Judge should certify what papers. The new method of preparing records on appeal does not require nor authorize the judge to certify to the correctness of any papers, except such as form part of a transcript designed to take the place of a bill of exceptions. Knoch v. Haizlip, 163 Cal. 20; 124 Pac. 997. In lieu of a bill of exceptions, the court must certify the stenographic notes of the trial, containing the proceedings and evidence, which would form no part of the record unless authenticated as the statute provides: he is not required to certify the pleadings and orders constituting the judgment roll. Christenson Lumber Co. v. Seawell, 157 Cal. 405; 108 Pac. 276. On appeal, the phonographic report of the proceedings of the trial must be settled and allowed by the judge as being correct: a certificate by the reporter is not a proper authentication. Williams v. Lane, 158 Cal. 39; 109 Pac. 873.

Review of certification. If the respondent wishes to have the certification by the judge reviewed, he should present the matter to the appellate court upon a bill of exceptions. Hecker v. Baker, 19 Cal. App. 667; 127 Pac. 654.

Appellant must call attention to evidence. The appellant must, in his brief, direct attention to the evidence in support of his point. Wills v. Woolner, 21 Cal. App. 528; 132 Pac. 283.

Perfecting appeal under the old method. See note ante, § 940.

§ 953b. Payment of cost of transcript. At the time the said notice provided for in the last section is filed with the clerk of the court, the appellant, or person intending to appeal, shall file an undertaking in an amount to be fixed by the clerk, with two good and sufficient sureties, by which the party giving said notice shall undertake and agree to pay the clerk the cost of preparing said transcript, or may arrange personally with the stenographic reporter for his compensation.

Legislation § 953b. 1. Added by Stats. 1907, p. 751. See ante, Legislation § 953a.

2. Amended by Stats. 1915, p. 207, adding, at end, the clause beginning "or may arrange."

Construction of section. See note ante, § 953a.

Review without undertaking. The failure to file an undertaking to pay the cost of the transcript does not preclude a review of the appeal; no cost bond is required. See note § 940, ante; Carr v. Stern, 17 Cal. App. 397; 120 Pac. 35; Estate of McPhee, 154 Cal. 385; 97 Pac. 878; Mitchell v. California etc. S. S. Co., 154 Cal. 731; 99 Pac. 202.

Liability on undertaking. The appellant is liable on his undertaking for the reporter's fees, upon the final approval of the transcript by the judge; if the appellant does not pay them, his sureties are liable. Gjurich v. Fieg, 160 Cal. 331; 116 Pac. 745.

Duty to make and file transcript of report of trial. See note ante, § 953a.

Certification of papers by judge. See note ante, § 953a.

§ 953c. Clerk to transmit the prepared record on appeal. Where, on appeals taken from judgments, orders or decrees of the superior court to the supreme court or district courts of appeal the appellant elects to avail himself of the provisions of the three preceding sections, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the court from which the appeal is taken, within ten days after the preparation of the record, to transmit to the clerk of the court to which the appeal is taken, the record prepared in accordance with the provisions of the two preceding sections. Said record shall be filed with the clerk of the court to which the appeal is taken and no transcript thereof need be printed. In filing briefs on said appeal the parties must, however, print in their briefs, or in a supplement appended thereto, such portions of the record as they desire to call to the attention of the court.

Legislation § 953c. Added by Stats. 1907, p. 751; based on §§ 549–554, Bellinger and Cotton's Ann. Codes and Stats. See ante, Legislation § 953a.

Construction of section. See note ante, § 953a.

Transcripts, typewritten or printed. The papers which, under the old method of appeal, would not properly be a part of the bill of exceptions, are to be certified by the clerk or the attorneys, as provided by § 953, ante; with respect to these papers, the main effect of the new method of appeal seems to be to permit the use of typewritten instead of printed copies. Knoch v. Haizlip, 163 Cal. 20; 124 Pac. 997. Typewritten transcripts are authorized. Lang v. Lilley & Thurston Co., 161 Cal. 295; 119 Pac. 100. It is not only allowable under this section, but desirable, that a printed and duly authenticated copy of the transcript shall be filed in the appellate court, in lieu of the original. Seymour v. Oelrichs, 162 Cal. 318; 122 Pac. 847.

Requirements as to briefs. Where typewritten transcripts are filed under the new method of preparing records on appeal, prescribed by this section and the next two preceding sections, the law requires the respective parties to print in their briefs, or in a supplement thereto, such parts of the record as they wish to call to the attention of the court (Estate of McPhee, 156 Cal. 335; 104 Pac. 455; Roussin v. Kirkpatrick, 8 Cal. App. 7; 95 Pac. 1123); and when so printed, the brief becomes part of the record upon appeal. San Joaquin etc. Irrigation Co. v. Stevinson, 16 Cal. App. 235; 116 Pac. 378; Williams v. Hawkins, 20 Cal. App. 161; 128 Pac. 754. Where the attorney for the appellant wholly fails to do this, the sufficiency of the evidence to support a finding will not be reviewed upon appeal. Williams v. Hawkins, 20 Cal. App. 161; 128 Pac. 754. It is not enough for the parties simply to refer in their briefs to the pages of the written transcript. Roussin v. Kirkpatrick, 8 Cal. App. 7; 95 Pac. 1123. Where a defendant physician's want of care and skill, in a negligence case, is relied on, it will be assumed that there was no evidence of such want of care or skill, when counsel for the appellant omits to print in his brief any part of the testimony on that subject, or to refer to any part of the record where it is contained. Marcucci v. Vowinckel, 164 Cal. 693; 130 Pac. 430. The court will not incontinently refuse to consider an appeal, though the appellant's brief does not comply strictly with the mandates of this section, where it would not be just to the appellant to dismiss his appeal. San Joaquin etc. Irrigation Co. v. Stevinson, 16 Cal. App. 235; 116 Pac. 378. The rule requiring points and authorities to be filed, confers rights that may be enforced by litigants. Barnhart v. Conley, 17 Cal. App. 230; 119 Pac. 200. The appellant must, in his brief, direct attention to the evidence in support of his point. Wills v. Woolner, 21 Cal. App. 528; 132 Pac. 283.

Certification of papers by judge. See note ante, § 953a.

Disposition of appeal where, without fault of appellant, record is lost or incomplete. See note 25 L. R. A. (N. S.) 860.

§ 954. When an appeal may be dismissed. When not. If the appellant fails to furnish the requisite papers, the appeal may be dismissed; but no appeal can be dismissed for insufficiency of the undertaking, if a good and sufficient undertaking, approved by a justice of the supreme court be filed in the supreme court, or (where the appeal is pending before a district court of appeal either by direct appeal thereto or by transfer thereto by the supreme court, if a good and sufficient undertaking, approved by a justice of said district court of appeal, be filed in said district court, before the hearing upon motion to dismiss the appeal. When it is made to appear to the satisfaction of the court or a judge thereof, from which the appeal was taken, that a surety or sureties upon an appeal bond from any cause has or have become insufficient, and the bond or undertaking inadequate as security for the payment of the judgment appealed from, or that the bond has been lost or destroyed, the last-named court, or a judge thereof, may order the giving of a new bond with sufficient sureties, as a condition to the maintenance of the appeal. The said bond or undertaking shall be approved by the last-named court, or a judge thereof; and in case said sureties fail to justify before said last-named court, or a judge thereof, or fail to comply with the order to appear and justify, execution may issue upon the judgment as if no undertaking to stay execution had been given.

Legislation § 954. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 346, as amended by Stats. 1863–64, p. 247. See ante, Legislation § 950. When enacted in 1872, § 954 read: "If the appellant fails to furnish the requisite papers, the appeal may be dismissed; but no appeal can be dismissed for insufficiency of the undertaking thereon, if a good and sufficient undertaking, approved by a justice of the supreme court, be filed in the supreme court before the hearing upon motion to dismiss the appeal."

2. Amended by Stats. 1895, p. 59, to read as at present, except for the amendments of 1906 and 1907.

3. Amended by Stats. 1906, p. 52, inserting "or that the bond has been lost or destroyed."

4. Amended by Stats. 1907, p. 579, (1) omitting "thereon" after "insufficiency of the undertaking," and (2) inserting, after "filed in the supreme court," the words "or (where the appeal is pending before a district court of appeal either by direct appeal thereto or by transfer thereto by the supreme court) if a good and sufficient undertaking, approved by a justice of said district court of appeal, be filed in said district court"; the code commissioner saying of the amendments, "Amend the section so as to extend the power with respect to the acceptance of bonds to district courts of appeal."

Construction of section. This section is remedial, and should receive a liberal interpretation. Pacific Paving Co. v. Verso, 11 Cal. App. 383; 105 Pac. 136. This section necessarily implies that there may be an undertaking which is insufficient, and that this insufficiency may be remedied by a new undertaking: when the original undertaking is itself sufficient, there is no room for the application of the section. Bay City Building etc. Ass'n v. Broad, 128 Cal. 670; 61 Pac. 368. An appeal taken under §§ 941a, 941b, ante, will not be dismissed, where it is taken within six months from the entry of judgment. Larson v. Larson, 15 Cal. App. 531; 115 Pac. 340.

Contents of notice of motion to dismiss. Good practice requires that the grounds for a dismissal of an appeal shall be embodied in the notice of motion. Newman v. Maldonado, 3 Cal. Unrep. 540; 30 Pac. 833. A clerical error in the notice of motion to dismiss an appeal does not invalidate it, nor prevent a dismissal, if otherwise proper. Pacific Paving Co. v. Bolton, 89 Cal. 154; 26 Pac. 650. A motion to dismiss an appeal cannot be considered, where the transcript upon record contains a notice of two appeals, and the sufficiency of each does not depend upon the same considerations, and it is uncertain to which appeal the notice of the motion is directed. De la Cuesta v. Calkins, 5 Cal. Unrep. 163; 41 Pac. 1098.

Service of notice. The service of a motion to dismiss an appeal on the executrix of an executor is not sufficient to bring parties before the court, where it is not shown that such executrix has been substituted for the executor. Chevassus v. Burr, 134 Cal. 434; 66 Pac. 568. The burden is upon a respondent, who moves to dismiss an appeal for want of service of notice of appeal upon an adverse party, to show from the record that the party not served was adverse in interest. Niles v. Gonzalez, 152 Cal. 90; 92 Pac. 74; Potrero Nuevo Land Co. v. All Persons, 155 Cal. 371; 101 Pac. 12.

Waiver of right to move to dismiss. The right to move for a dismissal of the appeal is not waived by stipulating to the correctness of the bill of exceptions, or of the transcript on appeal. San Bernardino County v. Riverside County, 135 Cal. 618; 67 Pac. 1047.

Answer to motion. Good cause for failure to comply with a rule requiring the printed transcript to be filed within the time provided, is always a sufficient answer to a motion to dismiss the appeal, based on the ground of such failure. Robinson v. Robinson, 158 Cal. 117; 110 Pac. 112.

Matters not considered on motion to dismiss. Where the motion to dismiss an appeal involves an examination of the entire record, and incidentally a consideration of the merits of the appeal, it will be continued until the hearing upon the merits. Leonis v. Leffingwell, 6 Cal. Unrep. 219; 55 Pac. 897. An appeal from a judgment will not be dismissed, on motion, in advance of a hearing on the merits, where the determination of a question involved necessitates an examination of the record. Quist v. Michael, 153 Cal.

365; 95 Pac. 658. In exceptional cases, a motion to dismiss, which involves an examination of the record, will be entertained in advance of the hearing upon the merits. Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc. v. Doran, 161 Cal. 118; 118 Pac. 526. Where a motion to dismiss an appeal, on the ground of the absence of a bill of exceptions, has been denied for the reason that such absence is not ground for dismissing an appeal, but rather for a judgment of affirmance, if there is no error in the record, a motion to affirm the judgment, made before the regular hearing of the appeal in its order upon the calendar, upon the grounds that the appeal is without merit, and merely for delay, and that the appeal is from a judgment directed upon a former appeal, and is a contempt of court, will be denied, it appearing that counsel on each side have filed briefs upon the question whether the judgment was properly entered, and that its decision involves the examination of the record upon both appeals. Randall v. Duff, 105 Cal. 271; 38 Pac. 739. An appeal from an order denying a new trial will not be dismissed for any defect in the proceedings in the superior court leading up to the order: this would involve an examination of the action of the court below, which can be properly had only on the hearing of the appeal. Estate of Scott, 124 Cal. 671; 57 Pac. 654. An appeal from an order denying a motion for a new trial will not be dismissed, on motion, and the court will not look into the record to determine the merits, in advance of a hearing thereon. Quist v. Michael, 153 Cal. 365; 95 Pac. 658. Upon a motion to dismiss an appeal, the supreme court will not consider any question which involves an examination of the record, and the determination of the correctness of the action of the lower court upon the facts presented to it (Estate of Kasson, 135 Cal. 1; 66 Pac. 871; Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc. v. Cochran, 6 Cal. Unrep. 821; 66 Pac. 732), or the failure to give an undertaking upon an appeal from an order, which failure was not made one of the grounds of the motion to dismiss the appeal (Pignaz v. Burnett, 119 Cal. 157; 51 Pac. 48), or any error in settling the statement on motion for a new trial (Estate of Scott, 124 Cal. 671; 57 Pac. 654), or the question whether other parties should have been made parties to a motion for a new trial (Watson v. Sutro, 77 Cal. 609; 20 Pac. 88; Johnson v. Phenix Ins. Co., 146 Cal. 571; 80 Pac. 719), or matters occurring prior to the order appealed from. Bell v. Staacke, 137 Cal. 307; 70 Pac. 171. The appellate court should not be called upon, originally, to determine, upon a motion to dismiss an appeal, whether the appellant was guilty of laches in presenting his proposed statement and amendments to the clerk for the judge. Curtin v. Ingle, 155 Cal. 53; 99 Pac. 480. A bill of exceptions cannot be looked into, upon a motion to dismiss the appeal, for the purpose of determining the merits of the ruling of the court: but it must be assumed that the exception was taken in good faith. Melde v. Reynolds, 120 Cal. 234; 52 Pac. 491. The merits of an appeal cannot be considered on a motion to dismiss. Swasey v. Adair, 83 Cal. 136; 23 Pac. 284; Steen v. Santa Clara Valley etc. Lumber Co., 145 Cal. 564; 79 Pac. 171. Where a decree of foreclosure directs that the assignee in insolvency of the mortgagor shall be paid any balance remaining after the payment of the amount found due and expenses upon the sale of the mortgaged premises, the question as to whether or not such decree was valid and binding, in so far as it directed the payment of such balance, cannot be considered upon a motion to dismiss an appeal from the order. Vincent v. Collins, 122 Cal. 387; 55 Pac. 129.

Dismissal of premature appeal. Where an order is made appointing a guardian for an incompetent, an appeal, taken subsequently to the filing of the order, but prior to its entry at large in the minutes of the court, is premature, and must be dismissed. Estate of Dunphy, 158 Cal. 1; 109 Pac. 627.

Of frivolous appeal. An appeal will not be dismissed on the ground that it is frivolous, or is taken merely for delay (Nevills v. Shortridge, 129 Cal. 575; 62 Pac. 120), or because of its want of merit. People v. Perris Irrigation Dist., 6 Cal. Unrep. 349; 58 Pac. 907.

Of futile appeal. Where the appeal is ineffective and futile, it will be dismissed. Suisun Lumber Co. v. Fairfield School District, 19 Cal. App. 587; 127 Pac. 349. An appeal from a judgment on an election contest will be dismissed, when neither the appellant nor the public can have any interest in the result of the appeal. Broadbent v. Keith, 17 Cal. App. 389; 119 Pac. 939. After the affirmance of a judgment in favor of the plaintiff for the condemnation of land, an appeal by the defendant from an order, made after the judgment was entered, authorizing the plaintiff to take possession of the land, pendente lite, will be dismissed: the affirmance of the judgment renders the order functus officio, and the questions presented become entirely moot. Mendocino County v. Peters, 2 Cal. App. 34; 82 Pac. 1124. Where the judgment appealed from has been satisfied, and the questions presented have become merely a moot case, the appeal will be dismissed. Moore v. Morrison, 130 Cal. 80; 62 Pac. 268. An appeal from an order directing the abatement of a nuisance, and allowing costs to the plaintiff, will not be dismissed, where the defendant has abated the nuisance, but has not paid the costs.

White v. Gaffney, 1 Cal. App. 715; 82 Pac. 1088. Where the appeal from an order granting a new trial was affirmed, the appeal from the judgment will be dismissed: the affirmance of the order has the effect to set aside the judgment. Blackburn v. Abila, 4 Cal. Unrep. 982; 39 Pac. 797. An appeal which raises only an abstract question will be dismissed. Foster v. Smith, 115 Cal. 611; 47 Pac. 591. An appeal by a defendant from a judgment against her in divorce proceedings must be dismissed, where, prior to such appeal, the lower court, on her application, made an order setting aside such judgment. Storke v. Storke, 111 Cal. 514; 44 Pac. 173. A motion to dismiss an appeal on the ground that a reversal of an order dissolving a temporary injunction would have no legal effect, will not be granted, where such effect does not clearly appear. Fox v. Grayson, 6 Cal. Unrep. 72; 53 Pac. 932.

Dismissal where reversal would prove fruitless. See note post, § 957.

Of unauthorized appeal. Where the appellant has taken a valid appeal in the first instance, a second appeal is unauthorized, and will be dismissed. People v. Bank of San Luis Obispo, 152 Cal. 261; 92 Pac. 481. An appeal from a non-appealable order must be dismissed (Forrester v. Lawler, 14 Cal. App. 170; 111 Pac. 284; Hadsall v. Case, 15 Cal. App. 541; 115 Pac. 330); but not where there is also an appeal from the judgment, upon which the orders appealed from may be reviewed. Wadleigh v. Phelps, 147 Cal. 135; 81 Pac. 418.

Dismissal for want of or for defect in notice of appeal. An appeal will be dismissed, where notice of appeal was not given (Lent v. California Fruit Growers' Ass'n, 161 Cal. 719; 121 Pac. 1002), or was not filed within the prescribed time (Bennett v. Potter, 16 Cal. App. 185; 116 Pac. 681), or was not properly served. Estate of Pendergast, 143 Cal. 135; 76 Pac. 962. An appeal from an order denying a motion for a new trial will not be dismissed because of a failure to serve the notice of appeal on a party who had not been made a party to the motion. Johnson v. Phenix Ins. Co., 152 Cal. 196; 92 Pac. 182. Where an appeal can be decided by giving to the parties thereto such relief as the record warrants, it will not be dismissed, though the notice of appeal was not served on an alleged necessary party, if his interests are not injuriously affected by such decision. Burnett v. Piercy, 149 Cal. 178; 86 Pac. 603. An appeal by the defendant will not be dismissed, where the notice of appeal gives his true name, though the name given in the complaint and judgment is a misnomer. Webster v. Board of Regents, 163 Cal. 705; 126 Pac. 974. A stipulation, that "the appeal was duly perfected," constitutes an appearance, by all of the respondents who signed the stipulation, and precludes a dismissal thereof for want of service of notice upon any of them. Burnett v. Piercy, 149 Cal. 178; 86 Pac. 603. The want of service of the notice of intention to move for a new trial is not a ground for dismissing an appeal from the order denying a new trial. Sutter County v. Tisdale, 128 Cal. 180; 60 Pac. 757. An appeal from an order denying a motion for a new trial will not be dismissed for want of service of notice of appeal upon an adverse party, where the record does not show affirmatively that the party not served was an adverse party to the motion in the court below. Niles v. Gonzalez, 152 Cal. 90; 92 Pac. 74; Potrero Nuevo Land Co. v. All Persons, 155 Cal. 371; 101 Pac. 12. The dismissal of an appeal from an order denying a motion for a new trial, on the ground that the notice of motion to move for a new trial was not served and filed within the time allowed by law, is not justified where the time was properly extended. Estate of Richards, 154 Cal. 478; 98 Pac. 528.

Dismissal of appeal for defects in notice of appeal. See also note ante, § 940.

For want of prosecution. An appeal will be dismissed for unwarrantable laches and delay of the appellant, justifying the conclusion that the appeal has been abandoned. Estate v. Johnston, 14 Cal. App. 376; 112 Pac. 191. Where an appeal from a judgment refusing to annul the marriage of the plaintiff with the defendant was taken too late, it must be dismissed; and an objection to the allowance of alimony to the defendant cannot be considered. Hunter v. Hunter, 111 Cal. 261; 52 Am. St. Rep. 180; 31 L. R. A. 411; 43 Pac. 756. Where a party has lost his right of appeal under §§ 953a, 953b, and 953c, ante, and sustains no right to file a printed transcript under the old method of appeal, the appeal must be dismissed. Estate of Keating, 158 Cal. 109; 110 Pac. 109. Where the transcript on appeal from the judgment is not filed within forty days from the date of the entry of the order disposing of the motion for a new trial, the appeal from the judgment must be dismissed. Bell v. Staacke, 148 Cal. 404; 83 Pac. 245; Gervais v. Joyce, 15 Cal. App. 189; 114 Pac. 409; Erving v. Napa Valley Brewing Co., 16 Cal. App. 41; 116 Pac. 331; Smith v. Jaccard, 20 Cal. App. 280; 128 Pac. 1026. The court may dismiss an appeal for delay in filing the transcript, but such dismissal will be for want of diligence in prosecuting the appeal, and not for lack of jurisdiction of the appeal. Smith v. Jaccard, 20 Cal. App. 280; 128 Pac. 1026. When there is an unexcused failure to file the transcript on appeal within the time prescribed by the rule of the court, and the time has passed for preparing and serving a bill of exceptions or statement, and none has been served or offered for settlement, the appeal will be dismissed. Smith v. Solomon, 84 Cal. 537; 24 Pac. 286. An appeal taken under §§ 953a, 953b, and 953c, ante, cannot be dismissed for a failure to file a transcript within forty days, in the absence of any rule prescribing the time when a transcript prepared under those sections shall be filed. Estate of Keating, 158 Cal. 109; 110 Pac. 109. A failure to file the transcript within the time limited by law, owing to the reporter's failure to file a transcript of the report of the trial with the clerk, does not warrant the dismissal of an appeal taken under §§ 953a and 953b, ante. Gjurich v. Fieg, 160 Cal. 331; 116 Pac. 745. After default by the appellant, the subsequent filing of points and authorities by him does not affect the respondent's right to a dismissal. Barnhart v. Conley, 17 Cal. App. 230; 119 Pac. 200. While the appellate court has power to dismiss an appeal for the appellant's failure to proceed with proper diligence to procure the settlement of a statement, yet the proper practice is to require the respondent to avail himself of such objection in the lower court when the proceeding for the settlement of the statement is pending. Curtin v. Ingle, 155 Cal. 53; 99 Pac. 480.

For want of averments or evidence in lower court. An appeal from the refusal of the court to render judgment on matters which are neither supported by the averments nor by evidence, will be dismissed. Bank of Visalia v. Curtis, 131 Cal. 178; 63 Pac. 344.

For want of jurisdiction. An appeal will be dismissed, where the appellate court has no jurisdiction. Pedlar v. Stroud, 116 Cal. 461; 48 Pac. 371; Continental Building etc. Ass'n v. Beaver, 6 Cal. App. 116; 91 Pac. 666; Hanke v. McLaughlin, 20 Cal. App. 204; 128 Pac. 772. An appeal from an order denying a new trial in an action for divorce, in which no money question is involved, abates upon the death of the appellant, and the appellate court is deprived of all authority to review the action of the superior court, and the appeal must be dismissed. Begbie v. Begbie, 128 Cal. 154; 49 L. R. A. 141; 60 Pac. 667. A failure to serve an adverse party with the notice of intention to move for a new trial is not a reason for the dismissal of the appeal on the ground that the court has not acquired jurisdiction. Johnson v. Phenix Ins. Co., 146 Cal. 571; 80 Pac. 719. Failure to serve the adverse party with notice of the intention to move for a new trial, or with the draft of a statement of the case, does not deprive the appellate court of jurisdiction to hear the appeal, nor constitute a reason for its dismissal upon the ground that the court has no jurisdiction to hear it. Estate of Ryer, 110 Cal. 556; 42 Pac. 1082.

For want of requisite papers. The provision of this section, that if the appellant fails to furnish the requisite papers, the appeal may be dismissed, is to be construed in connection with the rules of the supreme court as to the correction of defects which may be cured upon suggestion of diminution of the record, and not as giving to the respondent the absolute right to a dismissal of the appeal upon the mere showing that the transcript filed is defective, but as authorizing a dismissal of the appeal if the defendant fails to furnish the requisite papers after the diminution of the record has been suggested. Woodside v. Hewel, 107 Cal. 141; 40 Pac. 103. An appeal may be dismissed, where the appellant fails to furnish the requisite papers (Bodley v. Ferguson, 25 Cal. 584), or for a serious nonconformity of the transcript to the rules of court. Naylor v. Adams, 15 Cal. App. 548; 115 Pac. 335. A motion to dismiss an appeal for a failure to file a transcript of the judgment roll will be denied, where, before the hearing of the motion, a certified transcript of the record is filed. Poole v. Grand Circle, 17 Cal. App. 229; 119 Pac. 201. An appeal from a judgment will not be dismissed, merely because some part of the judgment roll is omitted from the transcript, where it does not appear that the omitted parts are important: an omission, if deemed important, may be remedied by suggestion of a diminution of the record. Paige v. Roeding, 89 Cal. 69; 26 Pac. 787. Where the appellant has, in evident good faith, attempted to comply with the statute, his appeal from the judgment will not be dismissed, where there is doubt and uncertainty as to the proper procedure, but the court will allow the transcript to be withdrawn for a proper authentication, within a limited time, of the record. Knoch v. Haizlip, 163 Cal. 20; 124 Pac. 997. An appeal will be dismissed, where there is no properly authenticated record on appeal (Harrison v. Cousins, 16 Cal. App. 516; 117 Pac. 564; Willow Land Co. v. Goldschmidt, 11 Cal. App. 297; 104 Pac. 841; Muzzy v. D. H. McEwen Lumber Co., 154 Cal. 685; 98 Pac. 1062), or where the record is insufficient (Dyer Law etc. Co. v. Salisbury, 17 Cal. App. 393; 119 Pac. 947), or where no judgment was entered (Granger v. Richards, 126 Cal. 635; 59 Pac. 118), or for a failure to file points and authorities within the time prescribed by a rule of court. Barnhart v. Conley, 17 Cal. App. 230; 119 Pac. 200. An appeal from an order of the superior court dismissing an appeal from a justice's court will be dismissed, where there is no authenticated record, by bill of exceptions or otherwise, or where the amount involved is less than three hundred dollars. Willow Land Co. v. Goldschmidt, 11 Cal. App. 297; 104 Pac. 841. Where the judgment roll embodied in the transcript fails to show that any judgment has been given and entered in the action, an appeal, purporting to be from a judgment of nonsuit, will be dismissed. Granger v. Richards, 126 Cal. 635; 59 Pac. 118.

For want of undertaking. An appeal will be dismissed, for want of jurisdiction, where the undertaking was not filed within the time prescribed by § 940, ante. Continental Building etc. Ass'n v. Beaver, 6 Cal. App. 116; 91 Pac. 666.

For insufficiency of undertaking. Where the appellate court has jurisdiction of the case, an appeal will not be dismissed because the undertaking was insufficient, if a new undertaking is filed in the appellate court. Moyle v. Landers, 78 Cal. 99; 12 Am. St. Rep. 22; 20 Pac. 241. An objection to the sufficiency of sureties in an undertaking on appeal does not entitle the respondent to a dismissal of the appeal if the sureties fail to justify, provided the appellant files an undertaking in the supreme court, approved by one of the justices. Schacht v. Odell, 52 Cal. 447. An undertaking on appeal which provides that the appellant will pay all damages and costs that may be awarded against him on the appeal, but which omits the phrase, "or on a dismissal thereof," is not a totally defective undertaking, which absolutely requires the dismissal of the appeal, but is objectionable only for insufficiency, which may be remedied by the filing of a new undertaking in the appellate court. Jarman v. Rea, 129 Cal. 157; 61 Pac. 790. Where the new undertaking, as well as the original, contains no agreement to pay damages and costs on a dismissal of the appeal, it is insufficient, and the appeal will be dismissed. Estate of Fay, 126 Cal. 457; 58 Pac. 936. An appeal cannot be dismissed for want of a sufficient undertaking, where it is not made a ground of the motion of a respondent, as he may have waived the giving of the undertaking. Clarke v. Mohr, 125 Cal. 540; 58 Pac. 176. A single undertaking on appeal from the judgment and the order denying a new trial, must refer to each of the appeals, and show on its face that it is given in consideration of both: if it recites but one, the other appeal will be dismissed. Buchner v. Malloy, 152 Cal. 484; 92 Pac. 1029. Upon a motion to dismiss an appeal, where there is a single undertaking for three separate and distinct appeals, the fact that only one of the orders appealed from was appealable will not be considered so as to render such undertaking the undertaking on the appealable order only. Estate of Heydenfeldt, 119 Cal. 346; 51 Pac. 543. Where an undertaking is invalid for all purposes, the objections cannot be obviated by the filing of a new undertaking under this section. Theisen v. Matthai, 165 Cal. 249; 131 Pac. 747.

Dismissal of appeal for defects in undertaking. See also note ante, § 941.

When new undertaking may be filed. It is the purpose of this section to allow a sufficient bond to be given to supply the defects of an insufficient bond. Pacific Paving Co. v. Verso, 11 Cal. App. 383; 105 Pac. 136. It is contemplated by this section, that although an undertaking has been filed, yet it may be of such a character, or in such a form, as not fully to indemnify the respondent against the costs and damages which he may sustain by reason of the appeal; the use of the phrase, "insufficiency of the undertaking," indicates a distinction between an undertaking which does not fully comply with all the terms of § 941, ante, and the entire absence of an undertaking; and an undertaking may be filed which is so defective as not to constitute any obligation on the sureties therein, and which is, in reality, no undertaking at all; in such a case, there is more than mere insufficiency,—there is an entire want of indemnity to the respondent,—and this section does not apply. Jarman v. Rea, 129 Cal. 157; 61 Pac. 790. This section does not apply where the undertaking given is void; in which case it is as though no undertaking had been filed and no appeal perfected within the time allowed by law; hence, no new undertaking can be permitted to be filed in the appellate court. Estate of Heydenfeldt, 119 Cal. 346; 51 Pac. 543; and see Duffy v. Greenbaum, 72 Cal. 157; 12 Pac. 74; Schurtz v. Romer, 81 Cal. 244; 22 Pac. 657; McCormick v. Belvin, 96 Cal. 182; 31 Pac. 16. Where the undertaking given is void, no new undertaking can be filed in the appellate court, even though there was an undertaking for stay of execution. Duffy v. Greenebaum, 72 Cal. 157; 12 Pac. 74; and see Biagi v. Howes, 63 Cal. 384. An undertaking to stay execution may be filed in the supreme court, after an appeal has been taken, where the sureties on the former undertaking have failed to justify (Tompkins v. Montgomery, 116 Cal. 120; 47 Pac. 1006; McClatchy v. Sperry, 6 Cal. Unrep. 345; 58 Pac. 529; Nonpareil Mfg. Co. v. McCartney, 143 Cal. 1; 76 Pac. 653); but such permission will not be granted without a showing excusing such failure. Williams v. Borgwardt, 115 Cal. 617; 47 Pac. 594. The filing of a new undertaking in the supreme court is limited to cases where it is sought to remedy a defective undertaking: no amendment of an undertaking can be allowed where there is no undertaking to amend. Schurtz v. Romer, 81 Cal. 244; 22 Pac. 657; Pacific Paving Co. v. Bolton, 89 Cal. 154; 26 Pac. 650; Wadleigh v. Phelps, 147 Cal. 135; 81 Pac. 418. Where the undertaking on appeal names the court and the department thereof, gives the number of the case, and accurately describes the judgment and the order denying a new trial, a mistake in the christian name of the plaintiff, in the title of the case, is within this section, and a new undertaking, approved by a justice of the supreme court, is authorized.

Butler v. Ashworth, 100 Cal. 334; 34 Pac. 780. Where the recitals in an undertaking fail to identify the appeal, the error is incurable, and a new undertaking, under this section, cannot be filed. Little v. Thatcher, 151 Cal. 558; 91 Pac. 321. The neglect of one of the sureties to sign the undertaking in the proper place, evidently through a mere oversight, renders the undertaking merely insufficient; and a new undertaking on appeal may be filed. Bay City Building etc. Ass'n v. Broad, 128 Cal. 670; 61 Pac. 368. An undertaking, signed by the sureties before the making of the order denying a new trial, is without consideration, and therefore there is more than insufficiency in such undertaking, and a new undertaking cannot be filed on appeal. Stackpole v. Hermann, 126 Cal. 465; 58 Pac. 935. Where, upon two appeals, one from an order dissolving an injunction and the other from the judgment, but one undertaking is given, reciting both appeals, and specifying a joint and several obligation in the sum of six hundred dollars for the two appeals, or either of them, such undertaking, if not sufficient in form, affords a sufficient basis to permit a new undertaking to be filed in the supreme court for each appeal. Spreckels v. Spreckels, 114 Cal. 60; 45 Pac. 1022. Appeals taken from two distinct orders are each ineffectual, and will be dismissed, when only one undertaking on appeal is filed, which fails to designate to which of the appeals it was intended to apply; in such case, the appellant is not authorized, under this section, to file new undertakings. Home and Loan Associates v. Wilkins, 71 Cal. 626; 12 Pac. 799. A single undertaking upon three orders, separately and independently appealable, and none of which could be reviewed upon an appeal from the others, is, in legal effect, no undertaking, and the defect cannot be cured by a new undertaking. Wadleigh v. Phelps, 147 Cal. 135; 81 Pac. 418. An undertaking on appeal from an order denying a new trial, filed in the appellate court, is ineffectual, where no undertaking on such appeal was filed in the lower court, although the undertaking on the appeal from the judgment was filed, but contained no reference to the appeal from the order denying the new trial. Schurtz v. Romer, 81 Cal. 244; 22 Pac. 657. Unless a request is made for leave to file a substituted undertaking, appellant's right to have a proper undertaking approved, as provided by law, does not arise. McAulay v. Tahoe Ice Co., 3 Cal. App. 642; 86 Pac. 912.

New undertaking on appeal to the superior court. See note post, § 978.

Result of failure to file. The failure to file a good and sufficient undertaking within the time allowed by this section, and to have indorsed thereon the approval of a justice of the supreme court, in place of an insufficient and irregular undertaking, renders the appeal ineffectual (Wood v. Pendola, 77 Cal. 82; 19 Pac. 183; Duncan v. Times-Mirror Co., 109 Cal. 602; 42 Pac. 147; Jarman v. Rea, 129 Cal. 157; 61 Pac. 790; Zane v. De Onativia, 135 Cal. 440; 67 Pac. 685; and see Estate of Wells, 148 Cal. 659; 84 Pac. 37); and the supreme court has no discretion to permit a new undertaking to be filed after the hearing on such motion. Duncan v. Times-Mirror Co., 109 Cal. 602; 42 Pac. 147; Zane v. De Onativia, 135 Cal. 440; 67 Pac. 685.

Effect of approval of new undertaking. An imperfection in the recitals of an undertaking on appeal from an order denying a motion for a new trial may be remedied by filing, in the supreme court, a good and sufficient undertaking containing the proper recital, approved by a justice of that court. Buehner v. Malloy, 152 Cal. 484; 92 Pac. 1029. The approval of an undertaking substituted for one held insufficient, by a justice of the supreme court, amounts not only to a determination that the undertaking is such in form and substance as the statute requires, but also of its sufficiency as to the sureties. Stevenson v. Steinberg, 32 Cal. 373.

Justification of new sureties. The appellant may file a new undertaking in the appellate court, but the respondent cannot require the sureties thereon to justify: the justice who approves the bond will ascertain, by examination of the sureties, whether they possess the necessary qualifications. Stevenson v. Steinberg, 32 Cal. 373. The provision for a new bond when the old becomes insufficient, as a condition for the maintenance of the appeal, means, merely, that, upon the failure of the new sureties to justify, execution may issue upon the judgment, and not that the appeal may be dismissed, where the appellant had perfected his appeal by giving the ordinary appeal bond. Mersfelder v. Spring, 136 Cal. 619; 69 Pac. 251.

For disobedience of order of court. The disobedience of an appellant to an order of the lower court, in an action of divorce, requiring him to bring a child into this state, whose custody was awarded to the respondent here, but to the appellant by the judgment of a court of a sister state, is not a legal ground for dismissing his appeal from the judgment and from an order denying a new trial. Vosburg v. Vosburg, 131 Cal. 628; 63 Pac. 1009.

Dismissal, where appellant has no attorney. An appeal cannot be dismissed because the attorney for the appellant is not an attorney of record in the case, but is a member of a firm of attorneys who appeared in the court below as attorneys of record. Woodmen of the World v. Rutledge, 133 Cal. 640; 65 Pac. 1105.

Where matter settled by consent. An appeal from a consent judgment will be dismissed (Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc. v. Waymire, 152 Cal. 286; 92 Pac. 645; Erlanger v. Southern Pacific R. R. Co., 109 Cal. 395; 42 Pac. 31), as will also an appeal, where, during the pendency thereof, all matters in dispute in the action are settled by agreement between the parties. Nelson v. Nelson, 153 Cal. 204; 94 Pac. 880; Bank of Martinez v. Jahn, 104 Cal. 238; 38 Pac. 41. The resignation of the guardian of a minor operates as an acquiescence by him in a previous order of the court, annulling his letters, and precludes him from assigning any error in such order, and renders proper an order dismissing an appeal, upon the ground that all matters involved in the appeal were disposed of. Guardianship of Treadwell, 111 Cal. 189; 43 Pac. 584. Where the judgment and order must be affirmed upon the record, it is not necessary to pass upon a motion to dismiss the appeal on the ground that the controversy has been settled out of court. Brode v. Gosslin, 16 Cal. App. 632; 117 Pac. 778.

Where new trial granted. An appeal from a judgment will not be dismissed because a new trial had been granted, where the order granting such new trial has been appealed from. Pierce v. Birkholm, 110 Cal. 669; 43 Pac. 205.

Refusal to dismiss for equitable reasons. An appeal will not be dismissed, where its dismissal would be an injustice. San Joaquin etc. Irrigation Co. v. Stevinson, 16 Cal. App. 235; 116 Pac. 378.

Affirmance of order denying improper motion. An appeal from an order denying an improper motion for a new trial will not be dismissed: the proper course is to affirm the order. Quist v. Sandman, 154 Cal. 748; 99 Pac. 204.

Dismissal of appeals. See note ante, § 939.

When proper practice not to dismiss appeal, but to affirm judgment. See note post, § 957.

Dismissal of appeal for informalities. See note ante, § 953.

Dismissal of appeal from new-trial order. See note post, § 963.

Effect of dismissal. See note post, § 955.

Rehearing. If an appeal has been dismissed, a rehearing will be denied, where the record shows that the dismissal was proper; and a petition for the rehearing of an order of dismissal of an appeal will be denied, where the record shows that, although the order involved was an appealable order, no appeal was taken therefrom. Sheehan v. Lapique, 15 Cal. App. 517; 115 Pac. 965.

Justification of sureties. The authority given by the amendment of 1895 to this section is confined to the ordering of a new bond upon appeals from money judgments: that amendment does not provide for a further or second justification of the sureties upon the original bond. Boyer v. Superior Court, 110 Cal. 401; 42 Pac. 892.

Right of appellant to dismiss appeal. See notes 2 Ann. Cas. 794; 11 Ann. Cas. 966.

Requirement or permission of new or additional appeal or supersedeas bond in appellate court. See notes 10 Ann. Cas. 804; 17 Ann. Cas. 378; 9 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1054.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. 1. Effect of dismissal. Rowland v. Kreyenhagen, 24 Cal. 57; Chamberlin v. Reed, 16 Cal. 207; Karth v. Light, 15 Cal. 324.

2. Without prejudice. Gordon v. Wansey, 19 Cal. 82; Dooling v. Moore, 19 Cal. 81; but see § 955 of this code.

3. Fraud in procuring dismissal. Rowland v. Kreyenhagen, 24 Cal. 52.

4. Generally. People v. Goldbury, 10 Cal. 312; Noriega v. Knight, 20 Cal. 172; Lynch v. Dunn, 34 Cal. 518; Dobbins v. Dollarhide, 15 Cal. 374; People v. Comedo, 11 Cal. 70; Ricketson v. Torres, 23 Cal. 636.

§ 955. Effect of dismissal.

The dismissal of an appeal is in effect an affirmance of the judgment or order appealed from, unless the dismissal is expressly made without prejudice to another appeal.

Legislation § 955. Enacted March 11, 1872.

Dismissal of appeal affirms judgment. The dismissal of an appeal from a judgment operates as an affirmance of the judgment (Barnhart v. Edwards, 128 Cal. 572; 61 Pac. 176); as does also the dismissal of an appeal from a judgment by consent (Spaeth v. Ocean Park Realty etc. Co., 16 Cal. App. 329; 116 Pac. 329); but the dismissal of an appeal from a judgment, as prematurely taken, does not operate as an affirmance of the judgment. Estate of Kennedy, 129 Cal. 384; 62 Pac. 64. The dismissal of an appeal on the merits is a bar to second appeal: it is, in effect, an affirmance of the judgment. Karth v. Light, 15 Cal. 324.

Void judgment not affirmed. The dismissal of an appeal from a judgment is an affirmance of the judgment, only in a limited sense: if the judgment is void on its face, the dismissal of the appeal in no wise cures such vital defect; at most, it prevents a second appeal, and relieves the order or judgment from attack for error or irregularity which could be taken advantage of upon appeal. Sullivan v. Gage, 145 Cal. 759; 79 Pac. 537.

Dismissal as bar to second appeal. The dismissal of an appeal for want of prosecution, unless it is made expressly "without prejudice," or where it is on the merits, is a bar to another appeal. Estate of Rose, 80 Cal. 166; 22 Pac. 86; and see Karth v. Light, 15 Cal. 324. The dismissal of an appeal because there is nothing to appeal from does not preclude another appeal in the same case, when a record shall have been made up, upon which an appeal can be taken. Estate of Rose, 80 Cal. 166; 22 Pac. 86.

Effect of dismissal for defects in papers. The dismissal of an appeal for a technical defect in the notice of appeal or in the undertaking, or the like, is not a bar to a second appeal, and does not amount to an affirmance of the judgment. Karth v. Light, 15 Cal. 324.

Of dismissal without prejudice. The dismissal of an appeal from a judgment, because of the failure of the appellant to file the transcript within the time prescribed, is, in effect, an affirmance of the judgment, if the order of dismissal does not expressly provide that it is made without prejudice to the right of the appellant to take another appeal; and a second appeal from the same judgment will be dismissed. Garibaldi v. Garr, 97 Cal. 253; 32 Pac. 170. The dismissal of an appeal for failure to file the requisite papers, unless expressly made without prejudice, is a bar to another appeal. Spinetti v. Brignardello, 54 Cal. 521.

Of dismissal as to heirs not served. In a case involving the right of succession by non-resident heirs, where, as to the state, the right of each distributee of a decedent's estate is several and independent of the rights of others, the dismissal of an appeal as to heirs not made parties cannot affect the right of appeal by the state as to the parties served. Estate of Pendergast, 143 Cal. 135; 76 Pac. 962.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. See subdivision 2 of note to § 954, ante; see also Fulton v. Cox, 40 Cal. 101; Fulton v. Hanna, 40 Cal. 278.

§ 956. What may be reviewed on appeal from judgment. Upon an appeal from a judgment the court may review the verdict or decision, and any intermediate ruling, proceeding, order or decision which involves the merits or necessarily affects the judgment, or which substantially affects the rights of a party. The court may also on such appeal review any order on motion for a new trial. The provisions of this section do not authorize the court to review any decision or order from which an appeal might have been taken.

Legislation § 956. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872, and then read: "Upon an appeal from a judgment, the court may review the verdict or decision, if excepted to, or any intermediate order, if excepted to, which involves the merits or necessarily affects the judgment."

2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1875–76, p. 92, to read: "§ 956. Upon an appeal from a judgment the court may review the verdict or decision, and any intermediate order or decision excepted to, which involves the merits or necessarily affects the judgment, except a decision or order from which an appeal might have been taken."

4. Amended by Stats. 1915, p. 328; recasting the section.

Construction of section. "Verdict or decision" means something different from "any intermediate order or decision": the latter phrase does not mean the written findings of fact and law required by §§ 632, 633, to be filed with the clerk as a result of a trial on the merits; hence, an intermediate non-appealable order or decision excepted to, involving the merits or affecting the judgment, may be reviewed on appeal from final judgment, taken within one year from its entry, and without any specification, in the bill of exceptions, of the particulars in which the evidence is insufficient to justify such order or decision: the exception to such intermediate order or decision is not an exception to the verdict or decision. Clifford v. Allman, 84 Cal. 528; 24 Pac. 292.

Appeal must be in time. An appeal from a judgment, not taken in time, cannot be considered (Chase v. Holmes, 19 Cal. App. 670; 127 Pac. 652); nor points urged on an appeal taken more than six months after entry of judgment. Sessions v. Southern Pacific Co., 159 Cal. 599; 114 Pac. 982; Allen v. Allen, 159 Cal. 197; 113 Pac. 160; Dundas v. Lankershim School Dist., 155 Cal. 692; 102 Pac. 925; Sequeira v. Collins, 153 Cal. 426; 95 Pac. 876; Roney v. Reynolds, 152 Cal. 323; 92 Pac. 847; Brownlee v. Reiner, 147 Cal. 641; 82 Pac. 324; Breidenbach v. M. McCormick Co., 20 Cal. App. 184; 128 Pac. 423; West v. Mears, 17 Cal. App. 718; 121 Pac. 700. Sufficiency of evidence not reviewable, where appeal not taken within sixty days. McGrath v. Hyde, 81 Cal. 38; 22 Pac. 293.

Judgment reviewed how. A judgment can be reviewed only by a direct appeal, taken after its entry. Brison v. Brison, 90 Cal. 323; 27 Pac. 186.

Matters not affecting party complaining. An intervener cannot complain that judgment for plaintiff is ineffectual or imperfect in its relation to other parties. Gray v. Bonnell, 19 Cal. App. 243; 125 Pac. 355.

Questions of law and fact. In a criminal case, the question whether a witness was an accomplice is one for the jury, where the facts are in dispute; otherwise it is a question of law for the court. People v. Coffey, 161 Cal. 433; 39 L. R. A. (N. S.) 701; 119 Pac. 901. Where the only question that can arise upon appeal is a legal one, the appellate court is limited to the papers mentioned in the first subdivision of § 670. Crackel v. Crackel, 17 Cal. App. 600; 121 Pac. 295.

Matters within discretion of court. The discretionary power of the court will not be disturbed, except for a clear abuse of discretion. Lang v. Lilley & Thurston Co., 164 Cal. 294; 128 Pac. 1026; Estate of Everts, 163 Cal. 449; 125 Pac. 1058; Smith v. Riverside Groves Water Co., 19 Cal. App.

165; 124 Pac. 870; Lamb v. Wilke, 19 Cal. App. 286; 125 Pac. 757; Jones v. Lewis, 19 Cal. App. 575; 126 Pac. 853; McConnell v. Imperial Water Co., 20 Cal. App. 8; 127 Pac. 1036, 1037; Smith v. Jaccard, 20 Cal. App. 280; 128 Pac. 1023, 1024; Conwell v. Varain, 20 Cal. App. 521; 130 Pac. 23; Dieckmann v. Merkh, 20 Cal. App. 655; 130 Pac. 27. The granting or refusing of a temporary injunction is a matter resting largely in the discretion of the trial court. Miller & Lux v. Madera Canal etc. Co., 155 Cal. 59; 22 L. R. A. (N. S.) 391; 99 Pac. 502. The principle of res adjudicata is not applicable to motions: the granting or denying of permission to renew a motion is a matter of discretion. Lawson v. Lawson, 15 Cal. App. 496; 115 Pac. 461. An order granting or denying relief under § 473, ante, is within the discretion of the court, and will not be disturbed on appeal, where no abuse of discretion is shown (Blumer v. Mayhew, 17 Cal. App. 223; 119 Pac. 202; Dernham v. Bagley, 151 Cal. 216; 90 Pac. 543); nor will an order quashing the service of summons by publication be disturbed on appeal, where no abuse of discretion is shown (Wilson v. Leo, 19 Cal. App. 793; 127 Pac. 1043); nor the disallowance of an amendment to an answer (Cook v. Suburban Realty Co., 20 Cal. App. 538; 129 Pac. 801); nor the action of the court below in dismissing an action for undue delay in serving the summons (Witter v. Phelps, 163 Cal. 655; 126 Pac. 593); nor an order made upon application for a temporary injunction (Miller & Lux v. Madera Canal etc. Co., 155 Cal. 59; 22 L. R. A. (N. S.) 391; 99 Pac. 502); nor the action of the court in dismissing an action for want of prosecution. Bell v. Solomons, 162 Cal. 105; 121 Pac. 377. In the absence of a bill of exceptions, an order denying defendant's motion to set aside a judgment, and for leave to file an amended answer, cannot be said, upon appeal, to involve an abuse of discretion. Zany v. Rawhide Gold Mining Co., 15 Cal. App. 373; 114 Pac. 1026. Whether, in any case, the discretion of the court has been abused by the denial of a motion to permit a "view of the premises," depends upon the circumstances, and the burden on appeal is upon the moving party to show affirmatively that such discretion has been abused. People v. Sampo, 17 Cal. App. 135; 118 Pac. 957. Injury arising from an unreasonable delay in prosecuting an action is immaterial upon the question whether there has been an abuse of discretion in dismissing the action upon that ground. Gray v. Times-Mirror Co., 11 Cal. App. 155; 104 Pac. 481.

Orders striking out pleadings. Neither an order striking out a portion of the complaint (Swain v. Burnette, 76 Cal. 299; 18 Pac. 394; Wood v. Missouri Pacific Ry. Co., 152 Cal. 344; 92 Pac. 868), nor an order or decision striking out the complaint, is appealable, but may be reviewed upon appeal from the final judgment. Clifford v. Allman, 84 Cal. 528; 24 Pac. 292; Alpers v. Bliss, 145 Cal. 565; 79 Pac. 171.

Orders made upon demurrers. The action of the court, either in sustaining or overruling a demurrer, can be reviewed only upon an appeal from the final judgment. Wood v. Missouri Pacific Ry. Co., 152 Cal. 344; 92 Pac. 868; Hadsall v. Case, 15 Cal. App. 541; 115 Pac. 330; Hanke v. McLaughlin, 20 Cal. App. 204; 128 Pac. 772. An order overruling a demurrer to a complaint will not be reviewed on an appeal by the plaintiff from a judgment in favor of the defendant. Bank of National City v. Johnston, 6 Cal. Unrep. 418; 60 Pac. 776.

Questions not raised in trial court. Objections that should have been, but were not, made in the court below, such as those not going to the question of jurisdiction, cannot be raised for the first time on appeal. Estate of Dombrowski, 163 Cal. 290; 125 Pac. 233; Hardy v. Schirmer, 163 Cal. 272; 124 Pac. 993; Milwaukee Mechanics' Ins. Co. v. Warren, 150 Cal. 346; 89 Pac. 93; Parke & Lacy Co. v. Inter Nos Oil etc. Co., 147 Cal. 490; 82 Pac. 51; Doudell v. Shoo, 20 Cal. App. 424; 129 Pac. 478; Tubbs v. Delillo, 19 Cal. App. 612; 127 Pac. 514; Keefe v. Keefe, 19 Cal. App. 310; 125 Pac. 929; Kern Valley Bank v. Koehn, 19 Cal. App. 247; 125 Pac. 358; Bartnett v. Hull, 19 Cal. App. 91; 124 Pac. 885; Brandt v. Salomonson, 17 Cal. App. 397; 119 Pac. 946; Kriste v. International Savings etc. Bank, 17 Cal. App. 301; 119 Pac. 666; Pehl v. Fanton, 17 Cal. App. 250; 119 Pac. 400. Except in the cases specified in § 647, ante, an exception must be taken at the time the decision is made; if not, the objection to the ruling cannot be urged on appeal. Randall v. Freed, 154 Cal. 299; 97 Pac. 669; Napa Valley Packing Co. v. San Francisco Relief etc. Funds, 16 Cal. App. 461; 118 Pac. 469. Before the amendment of 1909 to § 647, ante, objections to testimony were disregarded on appeal, where the grounds thereof were not stated in the court below. Bakersfield etc. R. R. Co. v. Fairbanks, 20 Cal. App. 412; 129 Pac. 610. Error cannot be urged for the first time on appeal, where no objection was made in the court below. Hardy v. Schirmer, 163 Cal. 272; 124 Pac. 993. Where the court has jurisdiction of the subject-matter and of the parties, and where no objection is properly made in the court below to the manner of procedure by which the cause was brought into such court, such objection cannot be made for the first time on appeal (Groom v. Bangs, 153 Cal. 456; 96 Pac. 503); nor can an objection that a finding was not within the issue be raised for the first time on appeal (Rutz v. Obear, 15 Cal. App. 435; 115 Pac. 67); nor an objection that there was a variance (Cargnani v. Cargnani, 16 Cal. App. 96; 116 Pac. 306); nor an objection that there was a variance in proof (Nielson v. Gross, 17 Cal. App. 74; 118 Pac. 725); nor an objection that certain evidence was erroneously admitted (People v. Schafer, 161 Cal. 573; 119 Pac. 920; Crackel v. Crackel, 17 Cal. App. 600; 121 Pac. 295; Burnett v. Lyford, 93 Cal. 114; 28 Pac. 855); nor an objection that certain evidence was inadmissible, where the case was tried upon the theory that it was admissible (Cargnani v. Cargnani, 16 Cal. App. 96; 116 Pac. 306); nor an objection that there was error in allowing the rereading to the jury, of a portion of the testimony of the plaintiff (Hardy v. Schirmer, 163 Cal. 272; 124 Pac. 993); nor an objection that the questions in a special verdict were improperly phrased (Napa Valley Packing Co. v. San Francisco Relief etc. Funds, 16 Cal. App. 461; 118 Pac. 469); nor an objection that causes of action were improperly joined. Worth v. Worth, 155 Cal. 599; 102 Pac. 663. Where the appellant went to trial in the court below without insisting upon a disposition of his demurrer, he cannot be permitted to object upon that ground in the appellate court. De Leon v. Higuera, 15 Cal. 483. If parties, in an action for the sale of trust property, and to have the proceeds applied to the payment of certain debts, stipulate that the property may be sold and the proceeds distributed among the persons and parties thereto, the defendant cannot, because of such stipulation, urge for the first time on appeal that the plaintiff has no right to maintain the action, or that the complaint is insufficient because it does not state a cause of action. Bank of Visalia v. Dillonwood Lumber Co., 148 Cal. 18; 82 Pac. 374. Where permission to amend the complaint, after a demurrer thereto is sustained, is denied, it is too late to make the point for the first time on appeal, when nothing appears in the record to show an abuse of discretion. Varni v. Devoto, 10 Cal. App. 304; 101 Pac. 934. Where no objection was made in the court below to the manner in which a judgment of a justice of the peace was pleaded, and it seems to have been treated by all parties as a sufficient statement of the facts therein set out, it cannot be urged for the first time on appeal that the plea of such judgment was insufficiently alleged. Kriste v. International Savings etc. Bank, 17 Cal. App. 301; 119 Pac. 666. Where parties have proceeded to trial upon a pleading, without objection to its sufficiency to raise a particular issue, and evidence has been received as to the facts, and the issue found upon, the party whose duty it was to object will not be heard, in the appellate court, to say that the finding is not within the issue. Rutz v. Obear, 15 Cal. App. 435; 115 Pac. 67; California Portland Cement Co. v. Wentworth Hotel Co., 16 Cal. App. 692; 118 Pac. 103. Where the defendant's answer treats the issue of delivery as having been properly made, and evidence is heard on the subject, and the court makes a finding in determination of such issue, it is too late to object on appeal, for the first time, that the complaint fails to state a cause of action in the particular referred to. Hoover v. Lester, 16 Cal. App. 151; 116 Pac. 382. Where both parties treat a certain question of fact as being in issue, and offer evidence regarding it, the point that no issue is presented by the pleadings is waived, and cannot be raised on appeal. Milwaukee Mechanics' Ins. Co. v. Warren, 150 Cal. 346; 89 Pac. 93. A special objection to the admission of evidence is waived by the making of a general one, and cannot be urged for the first time on appeal. French v. Atlas Milling Co., 17 Cal. App. 226; 119 Pac. 203. Where no objection was made to the admission of evidence of a fact, and the trial was had upon the theory that the fact was in issue, the objection that the finding of fact was outside of the issues will not be considered on appeal. Peck v. Noce, 154 Cal. 351; 97 Pac. 865. A party will not be heard to object to a verdict, for the first time on appeal from the judgment, if it is susceptible of a construction that may have a lawful and relevant effect. Reed Orchard Co. v. Superior Court, 19 Cal. App. 648; 128 Pac. 9. A failure to interpose any objection to the settling of a bill of exceptions is a waiver of such objection. Sheppard v. Sheppard, 15 Cal. App. 614; 115 Pac. 751.

Sufficiency of complaint. The sufficiency of the complaint will be reviewed upon appeal from a judgment dismissing the action. Kinard v. Jordan, 10 Cal. App. 219; 101 Pac. 696. An objection that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, is not waived by a failure to demur, nor cured by verdict or judgment, and may be urged on appeal. Bell v. Thompson, 147 Cal. 689; 82 Pac. 327. Objections to the complaint, urged upon a demurrer thereto, cannot be considered after the dismissal of an appeal from the judgment: the insufficiency of the complaint can be reviewed only upon such an appeal. Cook v. Suburban Realty Co., 20 Cal. App. 538; 129 Pac. 801. After a case has been tried on an amended complaint, the appellate court has no power to consider the original complaint for any purpose. Bray v. Lowery, 163 Cal. 256; 124 Pac. 1004.

Questions presented by demurrer. The defendant is entitled to the decision of the appellate court on all questions presented by his demurrer, and necessary to the decision made. Burke v. Maguire, 154 Cal. 456; 98 Pac. 21.

Exceeding amount claimed. The extent of relief is governed by the allegations of the complaint, although the evidence shows that the plaintiff is entitled to a judgment in excess of the amount claimed in his complaint. Tubbs v. Delillo, 19 Cal. App. 612; 127 Pac. 514.

Evidence. Upon an appeal from a judgment entered upon granting a motion for a nonsuit, all reasonable inferences must be resolved in favor of the plaintiff, in reviewing the evidence, and the construction of the evidence most favorable to the plaintiff must be given. Union Const. Co. v. Western Union Tel. Co., 163 Cal. 298; 125 Pac. 242. The weight of evidence is not determined by the number of witnesses: some circumstances almost always crop out which enable the court to determine the truth of the matter. Henley v. Pacific Fruit Cooling etc. Co., 19 Cal. App. 728; 127 Pac. 800. The question whether or not the evidence on a given subject is clear and convincing is for the trial court. Oldershaw v. Matteson & Williamson Mfg. Co., 19 Cal. App. 179; 125 Pac. 263. Where the judgment must be reversed, and the cause sent back for a new trial, it is neither necessary nor proper to review the evidence, so far as it relates to damages awarded to the plaintiff. Knight v. Black, 19 Cal. App. 518; 126 Pac. 512. Written opinions of the trial judge, although embodied in the bill of exceptions used on appeal, cannot be considered in determining whether or not the findings are sufficiently supported by the evidence. Goldner v. Spencer, 163 Cal. 317; 125 Pac. 347. On an appeal taken on the judgment roll alone, the evidence is not reviewable, and its sufficiency to support the findings is, of course, not to be questioned. Archer v. Harvey, 164 Cal. 274; 128 Pac. 410. Where the verdict is attacked for insufficiency of evidence, the power of the appellate court begins and ends with the inquiry whether there is substantial evidence, contradicted or uncontradicted, which, in itself, would support the conclusion reached by the jury. Gjurich v. Fieg, 164 Cal. 429; 129 Pac. 464.

Review, where evidence conflicting. Where there is conflicting evidence on a question of fact, with some substantial evidence to support it, the findings and conclusion of the trial court will not be disturbed on appeal. Suhr v. Lauterbach, 164 Cal. 591; 130 Pac. 2; Olaine v. McGraw, 164 Cal. 424; 129 Pac. 460; Cooke v. Mesmer, 164 Cal. 332; 128 Pac. 917; Home Real Estate Co. v. Los Angeles Pacific Co., 163 Cal. 710; 126 Pac. 972; Burr v. United Railroads, 163 Cal. 663; 126 Pac. 873; Walker v. Price, 163 Cal. 617; 126 Pac. 482; Wolf v. Ætna Indemnity Co., 163 Cal. 597; 126 Pac. 470; Callahan v. Marshall, 163 Cal. 552; 126 Pac. 358; Gallatin v. Corning Irrigation Co., 163 Cal. 405; Ann. Cas. 1914A, 74; 126 Pac. 864; Rimpau v. Baldwin, 163 Cal. 225; 124 Pac. 1002; Meloy v. Imperial Land Co., 163 Cal. 99; 124 Pac. 712; Channel Commercial Co. v. Hourihan, 20 Cal. App. 647; 129 Pac. 947; McCann v. McCann, 20 Cal. App. 567; 129 Pac. 965; Oppenheimer v. Radke & Co., 20 Cal. App. 518; 129 Pac. 798; Marston v. Watson, 20 Cal. App. 465; 129 Pac. 611; Doudell v. Shoo, 20 Cal. App. 424; 129 Pac. 478; Lundeen v. Nowlin, 20 Cal. App. 415; 129 Pac. 474; McDougall v. Eaton, 20 Cal. App. 164; 128 Pac. 415; Root v. Greadwohl, 20 Cal. App. 139; 128 Pac. 418; Wilson v. Leo, 19 Cal. App. 793; 127 Pac. 1043; Henley v. Pacific Fruit Cooling etc. Co., 19 Cal. App. 728; 127 Pac. 800; Blanck v. Commonwealth Amusement Corporation, 19 Cal. App. 720; 127 Pac. 805; Parker v. Herndon, 19 Cal. App. 451; 126 Pac. 183; Boyer v. Gelhaus, 19 Cal. App. 320; 125 Pac. 916; Lamb v. Wilke, 19 Cal. App. 286; 125 Pac. 757; Oldershaw v. Matteson & Williamson Mfg. Co., 19 Cal. App. 179; 125 Pac. 263; In re Property of Carlin, 19 Cal. App. 168; 124 Pac. 868; Scharpf v. Union Oil Co., 19 Cal. App. 100; 124 Pac. 864. On appeal, the court will not review conflicting evidence. Reeve v. Colusa Gas etc. Co., 152 Cal. 99; 92 Pac. 89. The appellate court cannot weigh conflicting evidence and determine according to the preponderance: that function devolves upon the trial court alone. Rimpau v. Baldwin, 163 Cal. 225; 124 Pac. 1002. On appeal from an order made upon conflicting affidavits, those in favor of the prevailing party must be taken as true, and the facts stated therein must be considered as established. Bernou v. Bernou, 15 Cal. App. 341; 114 Pac. 1000; Budd v. Superior Court, 14 Cal. App. 256; 111 Pac. 628. The order denying an application for a change of the place of trial will not be disturbed, where it was made upon conflicting affidavits. Carpenter v. Ashley, 15 Cal. App. 461; 115 Pac. 268.

Rule as to findings and verdict on conflicting evidence. The jury must decide facts in dispute, and their finding will not be disturbed on appeal. People v. Coffey, 161 Cal. 433; 39 L. R. A. (N. S.) 704; 119 Pac. 901. A finding based upon conflicting evidence is conclusive upon the appellate court, if there is some substantial evidence in support of it. Patterson v. San Francisco etc. Ry. Co., 147 Cal. 178; 81 Pac. 531; Emerson v. Yosemite Gold Mining etc. Co., 149 Cal. 50; 85 Pac. 122; Piercy v. Piercy, 149 Cal. 163; 86 Pac. 507; Crisman v. Lanterman, 149 Cal. 647; 117 Am. St. Rep. 167; 87 Pac. 89; Moore v. Gould, 151 Cal. 723; 91 Pac. 616; Estate of Johnson, 152 Cal. 780; 93 Pac. 1015; Estate of Doolittle, 153 Cal. 29; 94 Pac. 240; Fogg

v. Perris Irrigation Dist., 154 Cal. 209; 97 Pac. 316; Madison v. Octave Oil Co., 154 Cal. 768; 99 Pac. 176; De Gottardi v. Donati, 155 Cal. 109; 99 Pac. 492; Dunphy v. Dunphy, 161 Cal. 380; Ann. Cas. 1913B, 1230; 38 L. R. A. (N. S.) 818; 119 Pac. 512; Consolidated Lumber Co. v. Fidelity etc. Co., 161 Cal. 397; 119 Pac. 506; Smith v. Sinbad Development Co., 15 Cal. App. 166; 113 Pac. 701; Martin v. Stone, 15 Cal. App. 174; 113 Pac. 706; Estate of Weber, 15 Cal. App. 224; 114 Pac. 597; Patton v. Klemmer, 15 Cal. App. 459; 115 Pac. 62; Tench v. McMeekan, 17 Cal. App. 14; 118 Pac. 476; People v. Delucchi, 17 Cal. App. 96; 118 Pac. 935; Robinson v. American Fish etc. Co., 17 Cal. App. 212; 119 Pac. 388; West v. Mears, 17 Cal. App. 718; 121 Pac. 700. Conflicts of testimony are deemed to have been finally resolved in the court below. Dunphy v. Dunphy, 161 Cal. 380; Ann. Cas. 1913B, 1230; 38 L. R. A. (N. S.) 818; 119 Pac. 512. Where the finding of the trial court is in support of the evidence, either directly or by fair inference therefrom, it must stand. Tench v. McMeekan, 17 Cal. App. 14; 118 Pac. 476; Mentone Irrigation Co. v. Redlands Electric Light etc. Co., 155 Cal. 323; 17 Ann. Cas. 1222; 22 L. R. A. (N. S.) 382; 100 Pac. 1082. A finding against the great weight and preponderance of the evidence can be maintained on the doctrine of "conflict," only where the alleged conflict rests upon evidence, either direct or circumstantial, which so materially contradicts the testimony on the other side, or is so radically inconsistent with it, as to leave room, in a fair and reasonable mind, to find the fact either way. Houghton v. Loma Prieta Lumber Co., 152 Cal. 574; 93 Pac. 377. The rule that the trial judge is the final arbiter as to all questions of fact, where the evidence is conflicting, applies in all cases, whether the evidence is given orally or by deposition or affidavit. Sheehan v. Osborn, 138 Cal. 512; 71 Pac. 622; Crisman v. Lanterman, 149 Cal. 647; 117 Am. St. Rep. 167; 87 Pac. 89; Meyerink v. Barton, 6 Cal. Unrep. 551; 62 Pac. 505; Rounthwaite v. Rounthwaite, 6 Cal. Unrep. 878; 68 Pac. 304. The rule that the determination of a jury or of a trial court, upon matters of fact, in cases of a conflict of evidence, is deemed conclusive upon appeal, if there is any substantial evidence to support such determination, applies to negligence cases (Reeve v. Colusa Gas etc. Co., 152 Cal. 99; 92 Pac. 89; Scott v. San Bernardino Valley Traction Co., 152 Cal. 604; 93 Pac. 677; Imperial Valley Mercantile Co. v. Southern Pacific Co., 15 Cal. App. 385; 114 Pac. 1003); and to cases involving the credibility of witnesses and the weight of evidence (Roney v. Reynolds, 152 Cal. 323; 92 Pac. 847; Ernest v. McCauley, 155 Cal. 739; 102 Pac. 924; Carter v. Grosshaus, 17 Cal. App. 703; 121 Pac. 700); and to criminal cases (People v. Delucchi, 17 Cal. App. 96; 118 Pac. 935; People v. Barlow, 17 Cal. App. 375; 119 Pac. 940; People v. Moore, 155 Cal. 237; 100 Pac. 688; People v. Crosby, 17 Cal. App. 518; 120 Pac. 441; People v. Bennett, 161 Cal. 214; 118 Pac. 710); and to a finding as to the delivery of a deed (Zihn v. Zihn, 153 Cal. 405; 95 Pac. 868); and to a finding as to the true location of a disputed boundary line (Spencer v. Clarke, 15 Cal. App. 512; 115 Pac. 248); and to a finding as to whether a deed is a mortgage (Anglo-Californian Bank v. Cerf, 147 Cal. 384; 81 Pac. 1077; Wadleigh v. Phelps, 149 Cal. 627; 87 Pac. 93; Couts v. Winston, 153 Cal. 686; 96 Pac. 357; Beckman v. Waters, 161 Cal. 581; 119 Pac. 922); and to a finding relative to mental capacity, validity of a will, authority to issue letters of administration, etc. Dunphy v. Dunphy, 161 Cal. 380; Ann. Cas. 1913B, 1230; 38 L. R. A. (N. S.) 818; 119 Pac. 512; Estate of Doolittle, 153 Cal. 29; 94 Pac. 240; Estate of Weber, 15 Cal. App. 224; 114 Pac. 597; Estate of Hayden, 149 Cal. 680; 87 Pac. 275; Collins v. Maude, 144 Cal. 289; 77 Pac. 945); and to a motion, under § 581a, ante, to dismiss for want of service of summons. McColgan v. Piercy, 17 Cal. App. 160; 118 Pac. 957. A clear, specific finding of the ultimate fact must prevail over findings of probative facts, where there is no necessary conflict between the probative facts found and the finding of the ultimate fact: it is only where the probative facts found are necessarily in conflict with the ultimate fact found, that the findings of probative facts can prevail over a clear and express finding of ultimate fact. People v. McCue, 150 Cal. 195; 88 Pac. 899.

Specifications necessary for review of evidence. Whether the evidence is sufficient to sustain the findings cannot be considered on appeal, in the absence of specifications of particulars. Worth v. Worth, 155 Cal. 599; 102 Pac. 663; Anglo-Californian Bank v. Cerf, 147 Cal. 384; 81 Pac. 1077; Estudillo v. Security Loan etc. Co., 158 Cal. 71; 109 Pac. 884. Specifications of insufficiency of the evidence are essential to a review thereof to ascertain whether or not the judgment is supported thereby. California Portland Cement Co. v. Wentworth Hotel Co., 16 Cal. App. 692; 118 Pac. 103. The sufficiency of the evidence to support a finding, order, decision, or judgment cannot be reviewed on appeal, when the bill of exceptions contains no specifications of the particulars in which the evidence is alleged to be insufficient. Estate of Piper, 147 Cal. 606; 82 Pac. 246; Hawley v. Harrington, 152 Cal. 188; 92 Pac. 177; Guardianship of Baker, 153 Cal. 537; 96 Pac. 12; San Luis Water Co. v. Estrada, 117 Cal. 168; 48 Pac. 1075; Coghlan v. Quartararo, 15 Cal. App. 662; 115

Pac. 664; California Portland Cement Co. v. Wentworth Hotel Co., 16 Cal. App. 692; 118 Pac. 103; Layne v. Johnson, 19 Cal. App. 95; 124 Pac. 860; Rousseau v. Cohn, 20 Cal. App. 469; 129 Pac. 618. The appellate court is precluded from reviewing the sufficiency of the evidence, either upon an appeal from the judgment or from an order denying a new trial, and must accept the findings of fact made by the trial court as correct, where the evidence is embodied in a bill of exceptions containing no specifications of the particulars in which the evidence is insufficient to support the findings. Coghlan v. Quartararo, 15 Cal. App. 662; 115 Pac. 664. An affidavit used only on the motion for a new trial cannot be considered on appeal in determining the sufficiency of the evidence to support the findings. Gallatin v. Corning Irrigation Co., 163 Cal. 405; Ann. Cas. 1914A, 74; 126 Pac. 864. An appellant cannot complain of the admission of evidence offered by himself. Gjurich v. Fieg, 164 Cal. 429; 129 Pac. 464.

Reviewing sufficiency of evidence. See also note ante, § 939.

Where evidence is wanting. Where there is an entire absence of evidence to sustain a finding, the burden is on the party sustaining the finding to call attention to enough evidence to justify it. San Luis Water Co. v. Estrada, 117 Cal. 168; 48 Pac. 1075. When the appellate court must determine whether a finding of the trial court is without substantial affirmative evidence to support it, it must, like the trial court, be necessarily guided by the means furnished by the law for measuring the effect of the production or withholding of certain evidence. Bone v. Hayes, 154 Cal. 766; 99 Pac. 172. In a criminal case, a court of appeal will pass only upon questions of law: it is only where there is an entire absence of evidence to support a verdict that a question of fact is presented. People v. Barlow, 17 Cal. App. 375; 119 Pac. 940.

Review of instructions. A failure of the trial court to instruct on given points cannot be urged on appeal, where no request was made for such instructions. Hardy v. Schirmer, 163 Cal. 272; 124 Pac. 993. A refusal to give instructions will not be considered on appeal, where the record fails to give all the instructions submitted to the jury, or does not show that the instructions refused were not substantially embodied in those given. Patton v. Klemmer, 15 Cal. App. 459; 115 Pac. 62. The appellant cannot complain of instructions requested by himself. Gray v. Ellis, 164 Cal. 481; 129 Pac. 791. The refusal of the court, upon request, to direct the jury to find a special verdict upon a material issue is erroneous. Napa Valley Packing Co. v. San Francisco Relief etc. Funds, 16 Cal. App. 461; 118 Pac. 469.

Review of verdict. A verdict cannot be based upon a mere general statement, consisting partly of imagination and partly of opinion. Scurich v. Ryan, 14 Cal. App. 750; 113 Pac. 123. It is the duty of an appellate court to sustain the verdict, where there is a substantial conflict of the evidence, no matter how much it may preponderate upon the other side. Fowden v. Pacific Coast S. S. Co., 149 Cal. 151; 86 Pac. 178. A verdict for damages for personal injuries will not be disturbed on appeal as excessive, unless it was clearly the result of passion or prejudice on the part of the jury. Bonneau v. North Shore R. R. Co., 152 Cal. 406; 125 Am. St. Rep. 68; 93 Pac. 106. The power of the appellate court over excessive damages exists only when the facts are such that the excess appears as a matter of law, or is such as to suggest, at first blush, passion, prejudice, or corruption on the part of the jury. Bond v. United Railroads, 159 Cal. 270; Ann. Cas. 1912C, 50; 113 Pac. 366.

Necessity of findings. Before a judgment can be entered on new issues, and before the matters involved can be reviewed upon appeal, the trial court must have made specific findings. Estate of Yoell, 164 Cal. 540; 129 Pac. 999. Where a husband sues for divorce on the ground of desertion, and the wife subsequently begins an action for maintenance, a finding in her action cannot dispense with a finding in the husband's action upon the issue of desertion. Kusel v. Kusel, 147 Cal. 52; 81 Pac. 297. Where the admitted facts show that a finding on the statute of limitations could not have been otherwise than against the appellant, a finding thereon is unnecessary. Bell v. Adams, 150 Cal. 772; 90 Pac. 118. Where the defendant waives his claim to a heavier judgment, allegations and findings, other than those necessary to sustain the judgment as rendered, will be treated as surplusage. Great Western Gold Co. v. Chambers, 155 Cal. 364; 101 Pac. 6. Where certain findings necessarily dispose of the case, it matters not, on an appeal from an order denying a new trial, that there are no findings upon other issues, or that findings upon other issues are conflicting, or whether other findings are sufficiently supported by the evidence. Black v. Harrison Home Co., 155 Cal. 121; 99 Pac. 494.

Failure to make findings. The failure of the trial court to make a finding of fact upon a material issue renders the decision one against law, and a motion for a new trial will lie on that ground. Black v. Harrison Home Co., 155 Cal. 121; 99 Pac. 494. Where the findings sustain the judgment, the court's failure to find on other issues becomes immaterial on appeal, if a finding thereon in favor of the appellant could not have changed the judgment. Fogg v. Perris Irrigation Dist., 154 Cal.

209; 97 Pac. 316. The absence of a finding upon an issue not proved, or the failure of the court to act in the absence of evidence sustaining its action, constitutes no error. Murray Show Case etc. Co. v. Sullivan, 15 Cal. App. 475; 115 Pac. 259. Where the findings sustain the judgment, a failure to find on other issues is immaterial. Fogg v. Perris Irrigation Dist., 154 Cal. 209; 97 Pac. 316.

Construction of findings. The findings are to be read as a whole (Flora v. Bimini Water Co., 161 Cal. 495; 119 Pac. 661); and should be so construed, if possible, as to uphold the judgment. People v. Quong Sing, 20 Cal. App. 26, 806; 127 Pac. 1052, 1056; Rossi v. Beaulieu Vineyard, 20 Cal. App. 770; 130 Pac. 201; Parker v. Herndon, 19 Cal. App. 451; 126 Pac. 183; Wagner v. El Centro Seed etc. Co., 17 Cal. App. 387; 119 Pac. 952; Flora v. Bimini Water Co., 161 Cal. 495; 119 Pac. 661; People v. McCue, 150 Cal. 195; 88 Pac. 899; Lomita Land etc. Co. v. Robinson, 154 Cal. 36; 18 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1106; 97 Pac. 10. Where the appeal is upon the judgment roll alone, the language of the findings is to be given the broadest possible meaning, when that is necessary to support the judgment. Bell v. Adams, 150 Cal. 772; 90 Pac. 118. Findings in favor of the judgment are not to be taken as absolutely true, as against the party for whom the judgment went. Schroeder v. Schweizer Lloyd etc. Gesellschaft, 60 Cal. 467; 44 Am. Rep. 61.

Review of findings. Immaterial findings need not be considered on appeal. Zihn v. Zihn, 153 Cal. 405; 95 Pac. 868. An erroneous finding is without prejudice, where the judgment gives to the appellant all the relief to which he would be entitled if the finding were in his favor. Pugh v. Moxley, 164 Cal. 374; 128 Pac. 1037. Where a finding upon a material issue is without evidence to support it, there must be a new trial. Kaiser v. Barron, 153 Cal. 474; 95 Pac. 879. In the absence of a bill of exceptions or statement of the case, the findings of fact made by the lower court are conclusive upon appeal. Bradley Bros. v. Bradley, 20 Cal. App. 1; 127 Pac. 1044.

Sufficiency of findings. See note ante, § 648.

Presumptions on review as to filing of pleading. Where objection is made that new parties plaintiff and defendant were joined in an amended complaint without leave of court, it must be presumed upon appeal that the amended complaint was filed by leave of court. Harvey v. Meigs, 17 Cal. App. 353; 119 Pac. 941.

As to extension of time. Where objection is made for the first time on appeal, to the consideration of a bill of exceptions, for the reason that it was not settled and allowed in time, it must be presumed that the time was extended by stipulation or order of the court. Sheppard v. Sheppard, 15 Cal. App. 614; 115 Pac. 751.

As to error. The presumption is in favor of the regularity of the proceedings of the court below. Sheppard v. Sheppard, 15 Cal. App. 614; 115 Pac. 751; Estate of Young, 149 Cal. 177; 85 Pac. 145; Witter v. Redwine, 14 Cal. App. 393; 112 Pac. 311; Wagner v. United Railroads, 19 Cal. App. 396; 126 Pac. 186; Fox v. Mick, 20 Cal. App. 599; 129 Pac. 972; Pollitz v. Wickersham, 150 Cal. 244; 88 Pac. 911; Lomita Land etc. Co. v. Robinson, 154 Cal. 52; 18 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1106; 97 Pac. 10; Fox v. Townsend, 149 Cal. 659; 87 Pac. 82. Error is not presumed. Title Insurance etc. Co. v. California Development Co., 164 Cal. 58; 127 Pac. 502. The trial court has discretion to permit leading questions; and where the record indicates no abuse thereof, no prejudicial error will be presumed. Kinney v. Maryland Casualty Co., 15 Cal. App. 571; 115 Pac. 456. Upon appeal from an order vacating an allowance of attorneys' fees in a divorce suit, all presumptions are in favor of the order. Glass v. Glass, 4 Cal. App. 604; 88 Pac. 734.

As to evidence and findings. The presumption on appeal is, that findings speak the truth (O'Connell v. Behan, 19 Cal. App. 111; 124 Pac. 1038); that there was evidence to support the findings, and that it was sufficient (Semi-Tropic Spiritualists Ass'n v. Johnson, 163 Cal. 639; 126 Pac. 488; Newmire v. Ford, 20 Cal. App. 337; 128 Pac. 952; Estate of Olson, 19 Cal. App. 379; 126 Pac. 171; O'Connell v. Behan, 19 Cal. App. 111; 124 Pac. 1038; California Portland Cement Co. v. Wentworth Hotel Co., 16 Cal. App. 692; 118 Pac. 103); that no objection was made to the introduction of evidence upon which findings were made (California Portland Cement Co. v. Wentworth Hotel Co., 16 Cal. App. 692; 118 Pac. 103); that a conflict of evidence was resolved, by the jury, in favor of the prevailing party (Gjurich v. Fieg, 164 Cal. 429; 129 Pac. 464); that findings were waived, where none appear, upon an appeal from the judgment, upon the judgment roll alone. Kritzer v. Tracy Engineering Co., 16 Cal. App. 287; 116 Pac. 700. Where findings are waived, the appellate court must assume that the trial court found every fact necessary to support the judgment. Jones v. Grieve, 15 Cal. App. 561; 115 Pac. 333. The want of a finding on an issue will be presumed, in the absence of a showing to the contrary, to be the result of a failure to offer any evidence in support of such issue. Schoonover v. Birnbaum, 150 Cal. 734; 89 Pac. 1108. It will be presumed that, on a motion to dismiss an action, where the affidavits were conflicting, the court below found the facts to be as asserted by the moving and prevailing party. Witter v. Phelps, 163 Cal. 655; 126 Pac. 593.

As to instructions. It will be presumed on appeal, that instructions refused were substantially embodied in those given (Patton v. Klemmer, 15 Cal. App. 459; 115 Pac. 62); that instructions given were applicable to the proofs (Cook v. Suburban Realty Co., 20 Cal. App. 538; 129 Pac. 801); that instructions refused were properly disallowed. Cook v. Suburban Realty Co., 20 Cal. App. 538; 129 Pac. 801.

As to verdict. All presumptions are in favor of the general verdict. Petersen v. California Cotton Mills Co., 20 Cal. App. 751; 130 Pac. 169. A verdict based on conflicting evidence will not be disturbed on appeal, if there is any substantial evidence to support it: it must be assumed that the jury resolved the conflict in favor of the prevailing party. Gjurich v. Fieg, 164 Cal. 429; 129 Pac. 464; Leavens v. Pinkham, 164 Cal. 242; 128 Pac. 399; Perkins v. Blauth, 163 Cal. 782; 127 Pac. 50; Hall v. Clark, 163 Cal. 392; 125 Pac. 1047; Black v. Riley, 20 Cal. App. 199; 128 Pac. 764.

As to judgment. Upon an appeal upon the judgment roll alone, all intendments are in support of the judgment; and all proceedings necessary to its validity are presumed to have been regularly taken; and any matters that might have been presented to the court below, that would have authorized the judgment, will be presumed to have been thus presented. Segerstrom v. Scott, 16 Cal. App. 260; 116 Pac. 690. On appeal, error cannot be presumed from the absence of findings: on the contrary, every intendment goes to support the judgment. Kritzer v. Tracy Engineering Co., 16 Cal. App. 287; 116 Pac. 700. In a controversy involving a homestead, it will be presumed, in support of the judgment, that the homestead was owned in joint or common tenancy by a husband and wife. Sewell v. Price, 164 Cal. 265; 128 Pac. 407. It will be presumed, on an appeal from a second judgment, that the former judgment was for good cause set aside. Von Schmidt v. Von Schmidt, 104 Cal. 547; 38 Pac. 361.

As to service of notice of judgment. Where the record fails to show that any notice of entry of judgment was served on appellants, it must be assumed that no such notice was served. Fraser v. Sheldon, 164 Cal. 165; 128 Pac. 33.

As to motion for new trial. It cannot be presumed on appeal that a motion for a new trial was made upon the ground that the decision was one "against law." Great Western Gold Co. v. Chambers, 153 Cal. 307; 95 Pac. 151.

As to new-trial orders. It will be assumed upon appeal, that no other valid ground for a new trial exists than that specified in the order granting it (Piercy v. Piercy, 149 Cal. 163; 86 Pac. 507); that an order denying a motion for a new trial was made upon the merits (Boin v. Spreckels Sugar Co., 155 Cal. 612; 102 Pac. 937); that a settled statement, upon which the court acted in rendering its decision, and in granting a new trial, constitutes a correct statement of the evidence. McCann v. McCann, 20 Cal. App. 564; 129 Pac. 966.

As to ordinance. The presumption is, that an ordinance proved is in force, until the contrary is shown. Wagner v. United Railroads, 19 Cal. App. 396; 126 Pac. 186.

Legality of documents presumed. As a city, in making street improvements, is authorized to act only in conformity with the statute, it must be assumed that a contract for street-work, and the bond given in connection therewith, were made in compliance with the statute, particularly where the bond, in its terms, was phrased according to the statutory requirement. Republic Iron etc. Co. v. Patillo, 19 Cal. App. 316; 125 Pac. 923.

Injury presumed from delay. Injury is presumed from an unreasonable delay in prosecuting an action. Gray v. Times-Mirror Co., 11 Cal. App. 155; 104 Pac. 481.

Objection that judgment is not supported by complaint or findings. The defect that neither the complaint nor the findings support the judgment may be reviewed on appeal from the judgment. Van Buskirk v. Kuhns, 164 Cal. 472; 129 Pac. 587. Upon an appeal upon the judgment roll and a bill of exceptions, where the record does not contain the evidence, the appellate court is limited to a consideration of the question whether the findings of fact support the conclusions of law and the judgment subsequently rendered and entered thereon. O'Connell v. Behan, 19 Cal. App. 111; 124 Pac. 1038. The claim that the findings do not support the judgment is not available on motion for a new trial. Black v. Harrison Home Co., 155 Cal. 121; 99 Pac. 494.

Time of appeal as affecting review. Upon an appeal perfected under § 941b, ante, any question may be reviewed, including the claim that the evidence does not sustain the findings, which could be reviewed upon an appeal under § 939, ante, within sixty days after the rendition of the judgment. Fraser v. Sheldon, 164 Cal. 165; 128 Pac. 33. An appeal taken and perfected under §§ 941a and 941b, ante, within six months from the entry of judgment, is in season to permit a consideration and review of the evidence, or for any other purpose. Larson v. Larson, 15 Cal. App. 531; 115 Pac. 340. On appeal from the judgment, within sixty days after its entry, the insufficiency of the evidence to sustain the findings may be reviewed under a proper bill of exceptions. Russell v. Banks, 11 Cal. App. 450; 105 Pac. 261. On an appeal from the judgment, taken within sixty days after its rendition, the statement on motion for a new trial, settled and filed after the date of the order denying a new trial, may be used for the purpose of determining the sufficiency of the evidence. Blood v. La Serena Land etc. Co., 150 Cal. 764; 89 Pac. 1090. The sufficiency of the evidence to sustain the decision cannot be considered under § 939, ante, on an appeal taken more than sixty days after the entry of judgment. Morcom v. Baiersky, 16 Cal. App. 480; 117 Pac. 560; Union Lumber Co. v. Sunset Road Oil Co., 17 Cal. App. 460; 120 Pac. 44; Andrews v. Wheeler, 10 Cal. App. 614; 103 Pac. 144; Kelly v. Ning Yung Benevolent Ass'n, 138 Cal. 602; 72 Pac. 148. Errors of law may be reviewed on an appeal from a judgment taken within six months, and more than sixty days from the time of its entry. Union Lumber Co. v. Sunset Road Oil Co., 17 Cal. App. 460; 120 Pac. 44. Where the appeal is not taken within sixty days after the entry of judgment, the case is before the appellate court, not on the sufficiency of the evidence, but on its competency and admissibility alone. Andrews v. Wheeler, 10 Cal. App. 614; 103 Pac. 144. A statement, containing rulings excepted to at the trial, may be reviewed, as to such rulings, upon an appeal from the judgment taken after the lapse of sixty days. Kelly v. Ning Yung Benevolent Ass'n, 138 Cal. 602; 72 Pac. 148.

Time for appeal to review sufficiency of evidence. See also note ante, § 939.

Matters not in record. Matters not shown by the record are not involved on an appeal, and cannot be considered. Fresno Planing Mill Co. v. Manning, 20 Cal. App. 766; 130 Pac. 196. Testimony not made a part of the record cannot be considered on appeal. People v. Ernsting, 14 Cal. App. 708; 112 Pac. 913. Where a defendant is not entitled to have the testimony incorporated in the transcript, the mere fact that it is inserted in the record does not warrant the court in reviewing or considering it for any purpose. Crackel v. Crackel, 17 Cal. App. 600; 121 Pac. 295. An objection to the admission of evidence must specify the grounds on which it is based: in the absence of such specification in the record, a ruling admitting the evidence will not be deemed injurious. Hardy v. Schirmer, 163 Cal. 272; 124 Pac. 993. The appellate court will not review an objection to a judgment, if there is no showing whatever in the record on appeal that the objection is tenable. Segerstrom v. Scott, 16 Cal. App. 260; 116 Pac. 690. Error not shown by the record cannot be reviewed. National Bank v. Mulford, 17 Cal. App. 551; 120 Pac. 446; West v. Mears, 17 Cal. App. 718; 121 Pac. 700. Alleged error in the admission of a certain judgment roll in evidence will not be considered if the roll is not incorporated in the record. Robinson v. Muir, 151 Cal. 118; 90 Pac. 521. A map, not in the record, cannot be considered on appeal, for any purpose. Gallatin v. Corning Irrigation Co., 163 Cal. 405; Ann. Cas. 1914A, 74; 126 Pac. 864. The appellate court will not, in advance of a hearing of an appeal on its merits, consider a motion to strike from the transcript matters contained therein, on the ground that they were not properly authenticated; if, upon a consideration of the appeal, such matters have no place in the record, they will be disregarded. Brode v. Goslin, 158 Cal. 699; 112 Pac. 280.

Not in bill of exceptions or statement. Error in excluding evidence cannot be shown until the materiality of the proposed evidence appears in a bill of exceptions. Estate of Angle, 148 Cal. 102; 82 Pac. 668. On appeal taken upon a duly authenticated bill of exceptions, affidavits not referred to nor included in such bill cannot be considered. Schroeder v. Mauzy, 16 Cal. App. 451; 118 Pac. 459. On appeal, taken only upon the judgment roll, without any statement of evidence or bill of exceptions, an affidavit cannot be used to supply any matter which should have been presented in either of the last-mentioned forms. Bean v. National Union Fire Ins. Co., 19 Cal. App. 778; 127 Pac. 829.

Matters not argued. Rulings and alleged errors, merely referred to but not argued in appellant's brief, will receive scant notice. Perry v. Ayers, 159 Cal. 414; 114 Pac. 46; Dore v. Southern Pacific Co., 163 Cal. 182; 124 Pac. 817. Errors assigned, but not urged or argued on appeal, will not be noticed. National Bank v. Mulford, 17 Cal. App. 551; 120 Pac. 446. A point presented by merely stating that the court erred, citing the page of the transcript, but not arguing the matter, will not be considered. Madeira v. Sonoma Magnesite Co., 20 Cal. App. 719; 130 Pac. 175.

Not in judgment roll. A minute-entry by the clerk, which forms no part of the judgment roll, cannot be considered for any purpose, upon an appeal taken upon the judgment roll alone, although a copy of such entry is brought up in the transcript. Kritzer v. Tracy Engineering Co., 16 Cal. App. 287; 116 Pac. 700.

Review of unauthenticated record. A record, not authenticated either as required by a rule of court or any provision of law, cannot be considered on appeal. Harrison v. Cousins, 16 Cal. App. 516; 117 Pac. 564.

Order dismissing action. On appeal from an order dismissing an action for want of prosecution, the facts upon which the court exercised its discretion in making such order may be reviewed, but the fact that a cause of action may be shown to exist in favor of the plaintiff will not be considered. Bell v. Solomons, 162 Cal. 105; 121 Pac. 377.

Refusing to transfer cause. An order refusing the transfer of a cause to the Federal courts can be reviewed upon an appeal from the final judgment, as an intermediate order. Tripp v. Santa Rosa Street R. R., 69 Cal. 631; 11 Pac. 219.

Rulings regarding testimony. Rulings made during the progress of the trial, refusing to strike out testimony, may be reviewed on an appeal from the judgment, if properly presented by the record. Leavens v. Pinkham & McKevitt, 164 Cal. 242; 128 Pac. 399.

Exception to verdict. Exceptions to the phraseology of questions in a special verdict, not reserved, cannot be considered on appeal. Napa Valley Packing Co. v. San Francisco Relief etc. Funds, 16 Cal. App. 461; 118 Pac. 469.

Rehearing. The application of a respondent for a rehearing in the supreme court, that he may be relieved from the consequences of his omission to supply certain evidence in the district court of appeal having original jurisdiction of the appeal, will be denied: he should have sought that relief in the district court of appeal. Brown v. Coffee, 17 Cal. App. 386; 121 Pac. 309.

Decision, what constitutes. See note ante, § 633.

Review under alternative plan of appeal. See note ante, § 953c.

Raising question of variance on appeal. See note ante, § 469.

Judgment raising moot question. An appeal from a judgment, which raises merely a moot question, will not be considered. Bradley v. Voorsanger, 143 Cal. 214; 76 Pac. 1031.

Judgment or order by consent. A judgment or order by consent will not be reviewed on appeal (Erlanger v. Southern Pacific R. R. Co., 109 Cal. 395; 42 Pac. 31) by a party who expressly consented to the making thereof. Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc. v. Waymire, 152 Cal. 286; 92 Pac. 645.

Order refusing to vacate order. An order refusing to vacate an order substituting a person as plaintiff is reviewable only upon appeal from the final judgment. Grant v. Los Angeles etc. Ry. Co., 116 Cal. 71; 47 Pac. 872.

Regarding nonsuit. An order granting a motion for a nonsuit can be reviewed either upon an appeal from the judgment based on the order of nonsuit, or upon an appeal from the order denying a new trial. Converse v. Scott, 137 Cal. 239; 70 Pac. 13. The granting of a nonsuit may be reviewed on appeal, as error of law, where it was excepted to and specified as such. Martin v. Southern Pacific Co., 150 Cal. 124; 88 Pac. 701. An order denying a motion for a nonsuit may be reviewed on an appeal from the judgment, if properly presented by the record. Leavens v. Pinkham & McKevitt, 164 Cal. 242; 128 Pac. 399; Fraser v. Sheldon, 164 Cal. 165; 128 Pac. 33. In reviewing an order denying the defendant's motion for a nonsuit, only the grounds stated therefor in the trial court can be considered or reviewed on appeal. Schroeder v. Mauzy, 16 Cal. App. 443; 118 Pac. 459; Blood v. La Serena Land etc. Co., 150 Cal. 764; 89 Pac. 1090. The reviewing court is not at liberty to consider any ground of nonsuit, not stated in the motion therefor. Breidenbach v. M. McCormick Co., 20 Cal. App. 184; 128 Pac. 423. The denial of a motion for a nonsuit will not be disturbed on appeal, although the evidence, at the close of the plaintiff's case, was so weak that it might properly have been granted, if, upon the trial, the defect is overcome by evidence subsequently introduced. Peters v. Southern Pacific Co., 160 Cal. 48; 116 Pac. 400.

Regarding cost-bill. An order striking out a cost-bill and retaxing the costs may be reviewed on an appeal from the judgment, although the amount involved was less than three hundred dollars. Quitzow v. Perrin, 120 Cal. 255; 52 Pac. 632; and see Empire Gold Mining Co. v. Bonanza Gold Mining Co., 67 Cal. 406; 7 Pac. 810.

Regarding injunctions. An order refusing to dissolve a preliminary injunction is reviewable on an appeal from a final judgment granting a permanent injunction. Tehama County v. Sisson, 152 Cal. 167; 92 Pac. 64.

Regarding receivers. An order, pending suit, authorizing a receiver to take charge of and conduct a business, should be reviewed upon an appeal from the judgment. Free Gold Mining Co. v. Spiers, 135 Cal. 130; 67 Pac. 61. An order, made before judgment, approving the account of a receiver in foreclosure proceedings, and allowing claims against the receiver, is reviewable only upon an appeal from the final judgment in the action. Illinois Trust etc. Bank v. Pacific Ry. Co., 99 Cal. 408; 33 Pac. 1132.

Order appointing receiver. An order, made before judgment, appointing a receiver, is not reviewable upon an appeal from a final judgment. La Société Française v. District Court, 53 Cal. 495.

In probate. Upon an appeal from an order settling an administrator's account, all the proceedings leading up to it, including the evidence upon which it is based, are open to review. Estate of Rose, 80 Cal. 166; 22 Pac. 86. On appeal from an order of sale of community property under a power in the husband's will, error in including the wife's interest in the order may be reviewed, though the order is valid as to the husband's interest. Estate of Wickersham, 7 Cal. Unrep. 70; 70 Pac. 1079.

Orders in probate. An order dismissing a contest to the probate of a will is reviewable upon appeal from the final order or judgment admitting the will to probate. Estate of Edelman, 148 Cal. 233; 113 Am. St. Rep. 231; 82 Pac. 962. An order setting aside a decree settling the final account of an executor, although not directly appealable, may be reviewed on an appeal by the executor from a subsequent decree settling his final account, it being an intermediate order affecting the judgment. Estate of Cahalan, 70 Cal. 604; 12 Pac. 427.

Order regarding attachments. Upon an appeal from a final judgment, the court cannot review an order refusing to dissolve an attachment. Allender v. Fritts, 24 Cal. 447. An order dissolving an attachment after an erroneous order of nonsuit, is not reviewable upon appeal from the judgment of nonsuit. Kennedy v. Merickel, 8 Cal. App. 378; 97 Pac. 81. Irregularities in an attachment, as to its inception or form, must be considered on a direct appeal from an order refusing to dissolve the attachment, and not on an appeal from the judgment. Mudge v. Steinhart, 78 Cal. 34; 12 Am. St. Rep. 17; 20 Pac. 147.

Orders in partition. Upon appeal from an order confirming a sale in an action of partition, any error occurring in or prior to the decree of partition, which is appealable, cannot be reviewed; and the question whether the complaint does or does not state facts sufficient to support that decree, or whether the court failed to find upon a material issue tendered in an answer of the appellant, cannot be considered upon such appeal. Holt v. Holt, 131 Cal. 610; 63 Pac. 912.

Interlocutory decree. An interlocutory decree cannot be reviewed upon an appeal from the final judgment. Lorenz v. Jacobs, 53 Cal. 24; and see Barry v. Barry, 56 Cal. 10. An interlocutory judgment in divorce is not reviewable on appeal from a final judgment: an appeal from that determination is given by the act providing for such judgment. Deyoe v. Superior Court, 140 Cal. 476; 98 Am. St. Rep. 73; 74 Pac. 28. Where a defendant in a divorce suit defaults, and appeals from the interlocutory decree, he is not entitled to have any bill of exceptions settled, or certification of evidence; the only question that can be considered on such appeal is a legal one, and the appellate court is limited in its examination to any questions arising upon the judgment roll, consisting of the papers mentioned in § 670, ante. Crackel v. Crackel, 17 Cal. App. 600; 121 Pac. 295. An interlocutory decree in an action of partition cannot be reviewed upon an appeal from the final judgment. Barry v. Barry, 56 Cal. 10; Holt v. Holt, 131 Cal. 610; 63 Pac. 912.

Bill of exceptions. An unauthenticated bill of exceptions cannot be considered on appeal, for any purpose (Brode v. Gosslin, 16 Cal. App. 632; 117 Pac. 778); nor a bill of exceptions, not served within the time required by law. Estate of Young, 149 Cal. 173; 85 Pac. 145. A bill of exceptions, settled within the time required for its use upon an appeal from the judgment, may be considered on appeal, though originally intended for use upon a motion for a new trial, the proceedings upon which were abandoned. Dresser v. Allen, 17 Cal. App. 508; 120 Pac. 65. The effect of allowing an amendment to a bill of exceptions, settled after the decision is rendered, is simply to enable the appellate court to review the decision of the lower court, in view of all the facts which that court had before it when it made its decision. Merced Bank v. Price, 152 Cal. 697; 93 Pac. 866.

Consideration of exceptions and bills of exceptions. See also note ante, § 939.

Review of bill of exceptions or statement. See also note ante, § 950.

Error. Error must be affirmatively shown, before a judgment can be disturbed. Title Insurance etc. Co. v. California Development Co., 164 Cal. 58; 127 Pac. 502. Although the court may be precluded, for good reasons, from considering an appeal from an order denying a new trial, yet it may consider an appeal from the judgment, as to alleged errors of law occurring at the trial, upon the statement of the case used upon the motion for a new trial and found in the record on appeal. Carver v. San Joaquin Cigar Co., 16 Cal. App. 761; 118 Pac. 92. In the absence of specifications of particulars, errors of law will not be reviewed on appeal. Estudillo v. Security Loan etc. Co., 158 Cal. 71; 109 Pac. 884.

Harmless error. Constitutional guaranties for the protection of person or property can be invoked only by parties whose rights are injuriously affected by the alleged disregard of such guaranties. Scheerer & Co. v. Deming, 154 Cal. 138; 97 Pac. 155. Harmless error should be disregarded on appeal. Estate of Packer, 164 Cal. 525; 129 Pac. 778; Naylor v. Ashton, 20 Cal. App. 544; 130 Pac. 181; Loudell v. Shoo, 20 Cal. App. 424; 129 Pac. 478. The appellate court will not undertake to decide abstract questions of law, at the request of a party who shows no substantial right that can be affected by a decision either way. Streator v. Linscott, 153 Cal. 285; 95 Pac. 42. The appellate court will not consider or discuss a ruling upon a question not answered by a witness. People v. Brown, 15 Cal. App. 393; 114 Pac. 1004. Where a question asked on cross-examination is not in fact answered, but the answer given is non-responsive and without injury, the error is harmless. People v. Kerr, 15 Cal. App. 273; 114 Pac. 584. Where the court has ruled in favor of the plaintiff upon an issue, he cannot complain of the admission of evidence thereupon. Woolwine v. Storrs, 148 Cal. 7; 113 Am. St. Rep. 183; 82 Pac. 434. A ruling admitting evidence is not deemed injurious, unless the grounds of objection thereto are specified. Hardy v. Schirmer, 163 Cal. 272; 124 Pac. 993. Rulings of the trial court, in passing upon challenges to jurors for cause, will not be reviewed upon appeal, unless it clearly appears that prejudice resulted therefrom to the complaining party. McKernan v. Los Angeles Gas etc. Co., 16 Cal. App. 280; 116 Pac. 677. The action of the trial court in not allowing a challenge of a juror for bias will not be reviewed on appeal, unless prejudice or injury is shown. Melone v. Sierra Railway Co., 151 Cal. 113; 91 Pac. 522. An appellant is not harmed by the action of the court in submitting erroneous instructions, where there is no evidence that would have sustained a finding in his favor under the view of the law most advantageous to him. Spear v. United Railroads, 16 Cal. App. 637; 117 Pac. 956. An instruction, given at the request of defendant, though erroneous, will not be considered or reviewed on his appeal. People v. Arnold, 17 Cal. App 74; 118 Pac. 729. Where findings, actually made, are sufficient to support the judgment, a failure to find upon additional issues, not affecting the result, is immaterial. Robinson v. Muir, 151 Cal. 118; 90 Pac. 521.

Order made after final judgment. An order on a motion to tax a cost-bill, made after the rendition and entry of final judgment, can be reviewed only on a direct appeal from the order itself. Empire Gold Mining Co. v. Bonanza Gold Mining Co., 67 Cal. 406; 7 Pac. 810; and see Quitzow v. Perrin, 120 Cal. 255; 52 Pac. 632.

Appealable orders reviewed how. The correctness of an appealable order cannot be reviewed on appeal from the judgment. Bohn v. Bohn, 164 Cal. 532; 129 Pac. 791; Kennedy v. Merickel, 8 Cal. App. 378; 97 Pac. 81. Upon an appeal from a final judgment, an order, which is itself made by statute the subject of a distinct appeal, cannot be reviewed. Regan v. McMahon, 43 Cal. 625. In the absence of any appeal from appealable orders, the action of the court in making them cannot be reviewed. De Mitchell v. Croake, 20 Cal. App. 643; 129 Pac. 946.

Review on appeal from judgment. See note post, § 963.

Order not involving merits nor affecting judgment. An order refusing to dismiss an action is not, in itself, appealable; and where it does not involve the merits of the action, nor necessarily affect the judgment rendered therein, nor affect any substantial rights of the defendant, it will not be reviewed upon appeal from the judgment. Garthwaite v. Bank of Tulare, 134 Cal. 237; 66 Pac. 326. Where a decree of divorce reserves the question as to the division of community property for further consideration and adjudication, an order allowing the answer to be amended so as more particularly and specifically to deny that there was any community property, in no way involves the merits or necessarily affects the judgment of divorce, and is not therefore subject to review on appeal of the plaintiff from the judgment as entered. Sharon v. Sharon, 77 Cal. 102; 19 Pac. 230.

Power of appellate court to consider evidence not produced in court below. See note 9 Ann. Cas. 951.

Review on appeal from final judgment of interlocutory appealable order, decision, etc., not theretofore appealed from. See note 11 Ann. Cas. 552.

Right to review order granting or denying motion for inspection of books or papers apart from appeal from final judgment. See note 28 L. R. A. (N. S.) 516.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. See notes to §§ 957 and 963 of this code.

§ 957. Remedial powers of an appellate court. When the judgment or order is reversed or modified, the appellate court may make complete restitution of all property and rights lost by the erroneous judgment or order, so far as such restitution is consistent with protection of a purchaser of property at a sale ordered by the judgment, or had under process issued upon the judgment, on the appeal from which the proceedings were not stayed; and for relief in such cases the appellant may have his action against the respondent enforcing the judgment for the proceeds of the sale of the property, after deducting therefrom the expenses of the sale. When it appears to the appellate court that the appeal was made for delay, it may add to the costs such damages as may be just.

Judgment reversed. Post, § 966.
Costs on appeal.
1. Generally. Post, § 1034.
2. Costs below, etc. Post, §§ 1022, 1039.
3. Where modification of judgment. Post, § 1027, subd. 2.
Review on appeal. See ante, § 53.

Legislation § 957. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872, and then read: "When the judgment or order is reversed or modified, the appellate court may make complete restitution of all property and rights lost by the erroneous judgment or order; and when it appears to the appellate court that the appeal was made for delay, it may add to the costs such damages as may be just."

2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1873–74, p. 340.

Construction of section. This section is not restrictive of the right of the appellant, upon the reversal of the judgment, to the restitution of the property: it is a remedial statute, and is to be liberally construed. Di Nola v. Allison, 143 Cal. 106; 101 Am. St. Rep. 84; 65 L. R. A. 419; 76 Pac. 976. It applies only to those cases where the judgment operates upon specific property in such a manner that its title is not changed, as by directing the possession of real estate, or the delivery of documents or of particular personal property in the hands of the defendant, and the like. Hewitt v. Dean, 91 Cal. 617; 25 Am. St. Rep. 227; 28 Pac. 93; and see Farmer v. Rogers, 10 Cal. 335. The rights of a defendant whose property has been taken upon a judgment which is subsequently reversed do not depend upon the provisions of this section. Reynolds v. Harris, 14 Cal. 667; 76 Am. Dec. 459; Di Nola v. Allison, 143 Cal. 106; 101 Am. St. Rep. 84; 65 L. R. A. 419; 76 Pac. 976.

Power of appellate court. On appeal from an order made upon affidavits, involving the decision of a question of fact, the appellate court is bound by the same rule that controls it where oral testimony is presented for review. Doak v. Bruson, 152 Cal. 17; 91 Pac. 1001. In determining the propriety of a nonsuit, the appellate court is limited to the consideration of the particular grounds upon which the motion for a nonsuit was made. Stanton v. Carnahan, 15 Cal. App. 527; 115 Pac. 339. The appellate court, on appeal from a part of a judgment, has power to do that which justice requires, and if a reversal is ordered, it may extend it as far as may be necessary to accomplish that end. Whalen v. Smith, 163 Cal. 360; Ann. Cas. 1913E, 1319; 125 Pac. 904. The appellate court may sustain a demurrer to the complaint upon other grounds and for other reasons than those stated in the court below. Burke v. Maguire, 154 Cal. 456; 98 Pac. 21; Billesbach v. Larkey, 161 Cal. 649; 120 Pac. 31. In reversing the judgment, the appellate court has power to order a new trial of the issues. Pollitz v. Wickersham, 150 Cal. 238; 88 Pac. 911. Upon an appeal from the judgment, an appellate court may order a new trial as to a part of the issues, leaving the decision in force as to the remainder. Robinson v. Muir, 151 Cal. 118; 90 Pac. 521. On appeal from part of a judgment, where the parts not appealed from are not so intimately connected with the part appealed from that a reversal of that part would require a reconsideration of the whole case in the court below, the court must confine itself to the part appealed from. Whalen v. Smith, 163 Cal. 360; Ann. Cas. 1913E, 1319; 125 Pac. 904. The appellate court has power to issue a writ of supersedeas, in any proper case, to preserve the rights of a litigant until the final determination of his appeal. Reed Orchard Co. v. Superior Court, 19 Cal. App. 648; 128 Pac. 9. The appellate court has no power to make findings from the evidence; but where, under the evidence, findings not made are necessary to the proper determination of the rights of the parties, it will order a new trial of the case. Blood v. La Serena Land etc. Co., 113 Cal. 221; 41 Pac. 1017. The appellate court has no power to make findings of fact; and where a judgment is reversed for insufficiency of the evidence to support the judgment, a new trial must be awarded. Kellogg v. King, 114 Cal. 378; 55 Am. St. Rep. 74; 46 Pac. 166.

Power of court, upon remanding cause. See also note ante, § 473.

Reversal of judgment for error. The appellant must affirmatively show error, before the judgment or order appealed from will be reversed. People v. Rhodes, 17 Cal. App. 789; 121 Pac. 935. To warrant a reversal for error in overruling a demurrer for uncertainty in the complaint, prejudicial error must be shown. Krieger v. Feeny, 14 Cal. App. 545; 112 Pac. 901. The judgment will be reversed for error of the court in striking out an answer to the complaint, which seeks to have a forfeiture declared. Knight v. Black, 19 Cal. App. 518; 126 Pac. 512. A judgment dismissing an action for the plaintiff's failure to appear at the trial must be reversed for prejudicial error, where it affirmatively appears from the record that such dismissal was had without any showing made to the court, of notice to the plaintiff of the time of trial. Estate of Dean, 149 Cal. 487; 87 Pac. 13. A judgment and order denying the appellant a new trial must be reversed for prejudicial error apparent upon the record. Musick Consol. Oil Co. v. Chandler, 158 Cal. 12; 109 Pac. 613. Where the court improperly refused, upon the appellant's request, to submit a material question for a special verdict, and the appellant failed to move in time for judgment on the special findings, it is improper practice, on appeal, to direct judgment to be entered for him, but the judgment and order denying a new trial will be reversed for error appearing in the record. Napa Valley Packing Co. v. San Francisco Relief etc. Funds, 16 Cal. App. 461; 118 Pac. 469. Where the instructions given were substantially conflicting, there must be a reversal of the judgment. Guthrie v. Carney, 19 Cal. App. 144; 124 Pac. 1045. The judgment cannot be reversed because of an apparent conflict between isolated parts of instructions, if all of them, taken as a whole, correctly state the law (Rialto Construction Co. v. Reed, 17 Cal. App. 29; 118 Pac. 473); nor because of an erroneous instruction, unless it is shown that harm resulted therefrom. Kirk v. Santa Barbara Ice Co., 157 Cal. 591; 108 Pac. 509. An error in omitting to find upon a material fact requires not only a reversal of the judgment, but also of the order denying a motion for a new trial. Lyden v. Spohn-Patrick Co., 155 Cal. 177; 100 Pac. 236. The judgment will not be reversed because of erroneous findings upon immaterial issues (Forestier v. Johnson, 164 Cal. 24; 127 Pac. 156; De Gottardi v. Donati, 155 Cal. 109; 99 Pac. 492); nor because of any omission in conclusions of law, merely as to matter of form (Anderson v. Blean, 19 Cal. App. 581; 126 Pac. 859); nor for a slight discrepancy in items of costs (Callan v. Empire State Surety Co., 20 Cal. App. 483; 129 Pac. 978); nor because of erroneous reasoning of the trial court: the appellate court will uphold the judgment, where satisfied of the correctness of the final conclusion of the trial court (McKee v. Title Insurance etc. Co., 159 Cal. 206; 113 Pac. 140); nor because of the exclusion of evidence, where it cannot be determined that such exclusion was erroneous. Snowball v. Snowball, 164 Cal. 476; 129 Pac. 784.

For want of jurisdiction. The judgment of a superior court, on appeal from a justice's court, rendered without jurisdiction, will be reversed, with directions to dismiss the action for want of jurisdiction. Bates v. Ferrier, 19 Cal. App. 79; 124 Pac. 889.

For abuse of discretion. The discretion of the trial court, under the former sixth subdivision of § 581, ante, in refusing to dismiss an action because judgment was not entered within six months after its rendition, was generally upheld, but a judgment of dismissal in such a case could be reversed for an abuse of discretion. Rickey Land etc. Co. v. Glader, 153 Cal. 179; 94 Pac. 768. An abuse of discretion must be shown, to justify a reversal of judgment because of a ruling either granting or refusing a continuance. Marcucci v. Vowinckel, 164 Cal. 693; 130 Pac. 430; Sheldon v. Landwehr, 159 Cal. 778; 116 Pac. 44. An order granting a new trial for want of evidence to support the verdict will not be reversed unless an abuse of discretion appears. Estate of Everts, 163 Cal. 449; 125 Pac. 1058.

When not justified by complaint. A default judgment, in excess of that justified by the complaint, the amount of which excess is not ascertainable from the record, must be reversed, and remanded for further action. First State Bank v. Blackinton, 16 Cal. App. 141; 116 Pac. 311.

When not justified by record. The appellate court will not look beyond the record on appeal, and the judgment, if not justified by the record, will be reversed. Reiss v. Brady, 2 Cal. 132.

For insufficiency of evidence. Where insufficiency of the evidence is relied upon for a reversal, a general specification, "that the evidence is wholly insufficient to justify a judgment in favor of the plaintiffs," is improper, as not giving the particulars. Rousseau v. Cohn, 20 Cal. App. 469; 129 Pac. 618.

When unsupported by findings. The failure to find upon a material issue is ground for a reversal of the judgment. Black v. Board of Police Commissioners, 17 Cal. App. 310; 119 Pac. 674; Rossi v. Beaulieu Vineyard, 20 Cal. App. 770; 130 Pac. 201; Kusel v. Kusel, 147 Cal. 52; 81 Pac. 297; Lyden v. Spohn-Patrick Co., 155 Cal. 177; 100 Pac. 236. A judgment upon the merits, unsupported by findings, must be reversed. Saul v. Moscone, 16 Cal. App. 506; 118 Pac. 452; Johnson v. All Night and Day Bank, 17 Cal. App. 571; 120 Pac. 432. Where the findings do not support the judgment, there must be a reversal, and the case remanded for a new trial (Fidelity etc. Co. v. Fresno Flume etc. Co., 161 Cal. 466; 37 L. R. A. (N. S.) 322; 119 Pac. 646); and also where findings are not waived, and no findings sufficient to support the judgment are, by the court, signed or filed in the cause. Pierson v. Pierson, 15 Cal. App. 567; 115 Pac. 461. The failure of the court to find upon a material issue, when properly assigned upon motion for a new trial, requires a reversal both of the judgment and of the order denying a new trial. Lyden v. Spohn-Patrick Co., 155 Cal. 177; 100 Pac. 236. The judgment will be reversed where it affirmatively appears that the findings could not have been properly made in any possible view of the case. Bradley Bros. v. Bradley, 20 Cal. App. 1; 127 Pac. 1044. The failure to find upon some issue made by the answer, a finding upon which would merely have the effect of invalidating a judgment fully supported by the findings made, is not ground for reversal, unless it is shown by a statement or bill of exceptions that evidence was submitted in relation to such issue. People v. McCue, 150 Cal. 195; 88 Pac. 899.

On matter of fact when. The judgment cannot be reversed because of any matter of fact not offered in the court below. Wallace v. Eldredge, 27 Cal. 498.

No reversal without grounds. Judgment will not be reversed unless sufficient grounds appear therefor. Hynes v. All Persons, 19 Cal. App. 185; 125 Pac. 253.

At appellant's instance when. A judgment too favorable to the appellant will not be reversed at his instance, where the other parties raise no objections. Stockton Lumber Co. v. Schuler, 155 Cal. 411; 101 Pac. 307.

Reversal of judgment by consent. A judgment by consent will not be reversed on appeal. Estate of Lorenz, 124 Cal. 495; 57 Pac. 381.

Where reversal fruitless. Where a reversal would prove fruitless, the appellate court will not reverse the judgment or order appealed from, but will dismiss the appeal. Wright v. Board of Public Works, 163 Cal. 328; 125 Pac. 353. An order made on rival applications for letters of administration will not be reversed to allow the appellant to offer evidence that would not be admissible to impair the effect of the case made by the other applicant. Estate of McNeil, 155 Cal. 333; 100 Pac. 1086. Where, upon an appeal from an order refusing an injunction pendente lite, the act sought to be enjoined has been performed after the order and before the disposition of the appeal, the order will not be reversed, but the appeal will be dismissed. Wright v. Board of Public Works, 163 Cal. 328; 125 Pac. 353.

Judgment reversed in part. A judgment may be affirmed in part and reversed in part. Nolan v. Hyatt, 163 Cal. 1; 124 Pac. 439; Delger v. Jacobs, 19 Cal. App. 197; 125 Pac. 258.

Effect of reversal of judgment. The effect of an unqualified reversal is, not to entitle the appellant to a judgment upon the findings, but to remand the cause for a new trial (Heidt v. Minor, 113 Cal. 385; 45 Pac. 700); therefore, upon an unqualified reversal of the judgment, an express direction that the cause be remanded for a new trial is unnecessary. Falkner v. Hendy, 107 Cal. 49; 40 Pac. 21. Where the judgment is reversed and the cause remanded for a new trial, it is unnecessary to review and pass upon an objection to the complaint which may be obviated by amendment. Lissak v. Crocker Estate Co., 119 Cal. 442; 51 Pac. 688. The reversal of an order vacating a previous order, denying a petition for the partial distribution of the estate, deprives the order appealed from of all vitality and force, and leaves the order denying the petition in full force and effect until it is expressly set aside or reversed upon appeal. Estate of Mitchell, 126 Cal. 248; 58 Pac. 549. Upon the reversal of a judgment for an erroneous overruling of a demurrer to the complaint, the parties are restored to their original rights, and upon the sustaining of the demurrer with leave to amend, the plaintiff, instead of amending, may apply to the court for leave to dismiss the action without prejudice, and the court may order such dismissal. Richards v. Bradley, 129 Cal. 670; 62 Pac. 316. The levy of a tax, made in pursuance of a judgment, by a board of supervisors, is not set aside by the reversal of the judgment on appeal; nor did the board, by its compliance with the judgment, lose any property or rights, of which restitution could be made in case of a reversal. San Diego School District v. Board of Supervisors, 97 Cal. 438; 32 Pac. 517. The reversal of a judgment, on the ground that it is not supported by the findings, does not necessarily imply that any judgment should have been rendered on such findings. Heidt v. Minor, 113 Cal. 385; 45 Pac. 700. A reversal of judgment as to one joint tort-feasor does not necessitate a reversal as to all of them. Clark v. Torchiana, 19 Cal. App. 786; 127 Pac. 831. The subsequent reversal of an unstayed judgment does not authorize the successful judgment debtor to maintain an action against the sheriff and his surety to recover moneys collected by the sheriff, and paid over by him to the creditor, pending an appeal from the judgment on which execution has not been stayed: a judgment, in such an action, against the sheriff and his surety will be reversed. Maze v. Langford, 16 Cal. App. 743; 117 Pac. 929. An appeal from a distinct and independent part of a judgment does not ordinarily bring up the other parts for review, and a reversal of the part appealed from does not affect the portions not dependent thereon: they will stand as final adjudications. Whalen v. Smith, 163 Cal. 360; Ann. Cas. 1913E, 1319; 125 Pac. 904. The reversal of a judgment foreclosing a mortgage, with directions to the court below to enter a judgment in conformity with the opinion of the supreme court, has the effect to vacate the decree reversed, and to leave it as if it never had been rendered, and the form of the mandate does not change the reversal to a modification, nor authorize the trial court to modify the judgment reversed; and this is so, although the reversal directed a change only in the sum declared due, and the court might have ordered an affirmance with a modified judgment; therefore the successor of the creditor is entitled to recover possession of the premises sold on the mortgage foreclosure. Cowdery v. London etc. Bank, 139 Cal. 298; 96 Am. St. Rep. 115; 73 Pac. 196. The reversal of a judgment upon appeal has the effect to set aside the sale of the property under the judgment, where the sale was made to the plaintiff, and the appellant is restored to his original estate in the land. Reynolds v. Harris, 14 Cal. 667; 76 Am. Dec. 459; Di Nola v. Allison, 143 Cal. 106; 101 Am. St. Rep. 84; 65 L. R. A. 419; 76 Pac. 976. Upon the reversal of the judgment, the sale to the plaintiff of the defendant's property, for the satisfaction of the judgment, in whole or in part, will be set aside. Barnhart v. Edwards, 128 Cal. 572; 61 Pac. 176. Where a judgment foreclosing liens for labor was reversed so far as it awarded counsel fees, but was affirmed in other respects, and no order for the restitution of the property sold was ever made by the appellate or the superior court, the title of the purchaser at the execution sale is not affected by such reversal. Purser v. Cady, 5 Cal. Unrep. 707; 49 Pac. 180. The proceeds of a sale of property, under execution on a judgment reversed upon appeal, belong to the defendant: they cannot constitute payment of the note sued on. Carpy v. Dowdell, 131 Cal. 499; 63 Pac. 180. Where the facts in the case are stipulated by the parties, and the judgment is reversed upon appeal, a new trial will not be ordered, but judgment will be ordered upon the stipulated facts, in favor of the opposite party. Eureka v. McKay, 123 Cal. 666; 56 Pac. 439.

Effect of reversal of new-trial orders. The reversal of an order granting a new trial leaves the verdict and the judgment standing. Pierce v. Birkholm, 110 Cal. 669; 43 Pac. 205. The reversal of an order denying a new trial has the effect to set aside the judgment. Estate of Kaufman, 117 Cal. 288; 59 Am. St. Rep. 179; 49 Pac. 192. The reversal of the judgment and the order refusing a new trial has the legal effect to vacate the judgment, and leave the case standing for trial in the superior court. Westall v. Altschul, 126 Cal. 164; 58 Pac. 458. Where the judgment and the order denying a new trial are reversed, it is necessary to try the case again. Glassell v. Hansen, 149 Cal. 511; 87 Pac. 200; Davis v. Le Mesnager, 155 Cal. 520; 101 Pac. 910; Stein v. Leeman, 161 Cal. 502; 119 Pac. 663. The reversal of an order denying a new trial, upon the contest of the probate of a will, has the effect to set aside the judgment denying the probate of the will. Estate of Kaufman, 117 Cal. 288; 59 Am. St. Rep. 179; 49 Pac. 192.

Reversal of judgment. See also note ante, § 473.

Modification of judgment. An excessive judgment may be modified, upon the excess being remitted. Curran v. Hubbard, 14 Cal. App. 733; 114 Pac. 81. A judgment may be modified, where there is a slight discrepancy in items of costs. Callan v. Empire State Surety Co., 20 Cal. App. 483; 129 Pac. 978. A judgment may be modified, conditioned upon consent. Clapp v. Vatcher, 9 Cal. App. 462; 99 Pac. 549. An injunction should not be vacated or modified without notice, except in urgent cases, to guard against serious loss. Hefflon v. Bowers, 72 Cal. 270; 13 Pac. 690. A judgment for damages, based upon a finding for an amount greater than the averments of the complaint, will not be reversed, but modified by reducing the amount to that stated in the complaint. Kerry v. Pacific Marine Co., 121 Cal. 564; 66 Am. St. Rep. 65; 54 Pac. 89.

Modification of judgment. See also note ante, § 473.

Affirmance of judgment or order for defects in appeal. The judgment will be affirmed, where no briefs have been filed, and no oral argument has been made (Delger v. Jacobs, 18 Cal. App. 698; 124 Pac. 95); and also where the appellants have practically abandoned their appeal except upon a single point that has no merit. Carley v. Vallecita Mining Co., 16 Cal. App. 781; 117 Pac. 1037. An appeal from an order cannot be considered, where no properly authenticated record is presented: in such a case the order will be affirmed. Credit Clearance Bureau v. Weary & Alford Co., 18 Cal. App. 467; 123 Pac. 548. Where the supreme court has become vested with jurisdiction over an appeal from an order, by virtue of a notice of appeal given under § 941a, ante, the proper practice is, not to dismiss the appeal, but to affirm the order for lack of a record showing error. Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc. v. Doran, 161 Cal. 118; 118 Pac. 526. An order denying a motion for a change of venue, upon conflicting affidavits as to the possibility of a fair trial, will be affirmed, where the voir dire examination of the jurors is not in the record, and it does not appear that a single citizen liable for jury duty is disqualified from giving a fair and impartial trial. Carpenter v. Sibley, 15 Cal. App. 589; 119 Pac. 391.

On merits. A judgment dismissing an action, on the ground that the plaintiff has not prosecuted it with reasonable diligence, will be affirmed, where no abuse of discretion is shown. Gray v. Times-Mirror Co., 11 Cal. App. 155; 104 Pac. 481. Where an order sustaining a demurrer is general in its terms, it must be affirmed, if the demurrer was well taken upon any of the grounds assigned therefor. MacMullan v. Kelly, 19 Cal. App. 700; 127 Pac. 819. Where the defendant offers no evidence, and judgment goes for the plaintiff, the judgment will be affirmed, where the complaint states a cause of action. Bakersfield etc. R. R. Co. v. Fairbanks, 20 Cal. App. 412; 129 Pac. 610. Where the evidence is substantially conflicting, and there is sufficient evidence for the plaintiff to support the findings in his favor, the decision of the trial court in plaintiff's favor must be affirmed upon appeal. Doudell v. Shoo, 20 Cal. App. 424; 129 Pac. 478. Where the findings of fact, under the pleadings, support the judgment as entered by the trial court, the plaintiff's motion for a different judgment is properly denied, and upon his appeal the order denying the same must be affirmed. Newmire v. Ford, 20 Cal. App. 337; 128 Pac. 952. A party must prove his case as alleged: he cannot have an affirmance of a judgment in his favor, upon proof of other facts not alleged, which might entitle him to the relief asked. Rheingans v. Smith, 161 Cal. 362; Ann. Cas. 1913B, 1140; 119 Pac. 494. The judgment will be affirmed, where it is supported by the findings. Brode v. Gosslin, 16 Cal. App. 632; 117 Pac. 778. The judgment will not be reversed on appeal, where the appellant has suffered no prejudice: it will be affirmed. Madary v. Fresno, 20 Cal. App. 91; 128 Pac. 340; Snowball v. Snowball, 164 Cal. 476; 129 Pac. 784; Gjurich v. Fieg, 164 Cal. 429; 129 Pac. 464; Sewell v. Price, 164 Cal. 265; 128 Pac. 407; Wolf v. Ætna Indemnity Co., 163 Cal. 597; 126 Pac. 470; Callahan v. Marshall, 163 Cal. 552; 126 Pac. 358; Sherman v. Ayers, 20 Cal. App. 733; 130 Pac. 163; Hunt v. Sharkey, 20

Cal. App. 690; 130 Pac. 21; Mentry v. Broadway Bank etc. Co., 20 Cal. App. 388; 129 Pac. 470; McDougall v. Eaton, 20 Cal. App. 164; 128 Pac. 415; Dieckmann v. Merkh, 20 Cal. 655; 130 Pac. 27; Tubbs v. Delillo, 19 Cal. App. 612; 127 Pac. 514; Wagner v. United Railroads, 19 Cal. App. 396; 126 Pac. 186. The court will affirm the judgment, with damages awarded against the appellants, where the appeal was frivolous, and taken merely for delay. Bell v. Camm, 10 Cal. App. 388; 102 Pac. 225. Where a justice of the supreme court is disqualified, and the other justices are equally divided in opinion, and there is no probability of an immediate change in the personnel of the court, the judgment of the lower court will be affirmed. Santa Rosa City R. R. v. Central Street Ry. Co., 112 Cal. 436; 44 Pac. 733; Smith v. Ferris etc. Ry. Co., 5 Cal. Unrep. 889; 51 Pac. 710. Where the supreme court believes that an order under review was properly made, its duty is to affirm the order, although it has, in another case, reversed an order similar in all respects. Bohn v. Bohn, 164 Cal. 532; 129 Pac. 981.

Effect of affirmance. The affirmance of a void judgment on appeal, upon grounds not touching but overlooking its invalidity, does not make it valid. Pioneer Land Co. v. Maddux, 109 Cal. 633; 50 Am. St. Rep. 67; 42 Pac. 295. An order granting a new trial has the effect to vacate the judgment, and the affirmance of the order on appeal leaves nothing in the court below upon which an appeal from the judgment can operate. Etchas v. Oreña, 121 Cal. 270; 53 Pac. 789. Where the order granting a new trial has been affirmed upon appeal, the judgment falls, and the appeal should be dismissed, at the costs of the respondent. San José Safe Deposit Bank v. Bank of Madera, 121 Cal. 543; 54 Pac. 85.

Effect of satisfaction on affirmance. The affirmance of a judgment is not affected by the fact that it has been partly satisfied. Ryland v. Heney, 130 Cal. 426; 62 Pac. 616.

Restitution discretionary with court. The provision of this section, that the appellate court may make complete restitution of all property and rights lost by an erroneous judgment or order which is reversed or modified, is not mandatory upon the court, and does not give the appellant an absolute right to a restitution of possession, but the power conferred thereby is to be exercised in the discretion of the court. Spring Valley Water Works v. Drinkhouse, 95 Cal. 220; 30 Pac. 218; Yndart v. Den, 125 Cal. 85; 57 Pac. 761; Taylor v. Ellenberger, 6 Cal. Unrep. 725; 65 Pac. 832.

Restitution may be compelled when and how. Restitution may be ordered when justice requires it, and may be directed and provided for in the original action itself, or may be sought in a separate action. Ward v. Sherman, 155 Cal. 287; 100 Pac. 864.

Restitution upon modification of judgment. A judgment debtor whose judgment has been modified on appeal, merely to the extent of relieving him from only a part of the judgment, has not lost any property or rights by the erroneous judgment so as to entitle him to the restitution of the property, unless more of his property has been taken than the amount for which the judgment has been affirmed. Hewitt v. Dean, 91 Cal. 617; 25 Am. St. Rep. 227; 28 Pac. 93. Where a judgment of foreclosure is modified on appeal, merely as to an excess of interest allowed, the sale under foreclosure will not be set aside, and the defendant is entitled only to the restitution of the excess of interest; and where he received in rents and profits a greater sum than such interest, a restitution of the amount of the interest will not be required. Yndart v. Den, 125 Cal. 85; 57 Pac. 761. Where a judgment directing a sale of property to satisfy a lien is modified by merely reducing the amount of the lien, it cannot be said from that fact alone that the appellant has lost any property, of which restitution is authorized to be made by setting aside the order of sale. Barnhart v. Edwards, 128 Cal. 572; 61 Pac. 176; and see Johnson v. Lamping, 34 Cal. 293. A reduction of the amount of a recovery does not cause property to be "lost," so as to authorize the appellate court, on modifying the judgment, to make restitution of property lost by an erroneous judgment. Barnhart v. Edwards, 57 Pac. 1004.

Upon reversal. Upon reversal, there should be restitution of things lost by reason of the judgment in the lower court, where justice requires it, and the prevailing party be placed as nearly as may be in the condition in which he previously stood. Ward v. Sherman, 155 Cal. 287; 100 Pac. 864. The enforcement of a judgment by execution before the expiration of the time to appeal cannot deprive the defendant of the right to appeal from the judgment, and in case of the reversal of the judgment on appeal, to the restitution of all property and rights lost by reason of the judgment. Kenney v. Parks, 120 Cal. 22; 52 Pac. 40. Where a mortgagee purchases the land at a foreclosure sale thereof, and sells it pending an appeal, the reversal of the judgment restores the mortgagor to his original estate, and he does not need an order of restitution to enable him to assert his right thereto. Di Nola v. Allison, 143 Cal. 106; 101 Am. St. Rep. 84; 65 L. R. A. 419; 76 Pac. 796. Where a judgment, under which personal property has been sold upon execution to the judgment creditor, who applied the price upon the judgment, has been reversed upon appeal, the original owner is entitled to restitution of the property, or its value. Black v. Vermont Marble Co., 137 Cal. 683; 70 Pac. 776. Upon the reversal of a decree of distribution, the plaintiff is entitled to the redelivery of stock which had been turned over to the defendant in pursuance of the decree. Ashton v. Heydenfeldt, 124 Cal. 14; 56 Pac. 624. Upon the reversal of a judgment, with legal interest, under this section, costs paid by the respondent may be ordered to be returned to him, to the end that the status quo may be restored. Stockman v. Riverside Land etc. Co., 64 Cal. 57; 28 Pac. 116. Upon a reversal of an order for a writ of restitution, the appellant is entitled to be restored to all that he has lost by virtue of the order, and to be placed in the same position as he was prior to the execution of the writ, by the removal of all persons who have been placed in possession of the lands by virtue of the writ, as well as of all others who have come in under him after that date. Hyde v. Boyle, 105 Cal. 102; 38 Pac. 643. A restitution of premises taken in condemnation proceedings will not be made without a reversal of the judgment on appeal, where the case was remanded to the lower court for the sole purpose of determining the amount of compensation to which the appellant is entitled, and where the money deposited with the trial court was amply sufficient to satisfy any judgment for damages which might be recovered. Spring Valley Water Works v. Drinkhouse, 95 Cal. 220; 30 Pac. 218. Upon the reversal of a decree of foreclosure, where execution was not stayed, and the mortgaged property was sold to a third party, the measure of damages in an action for restitution is limited to the proceeds of the sale of the property, after deducting the expenses of the sale. Dowdell v. Carpy, 137 Cal. 333; 70 Pac. 167. Restitution by the losing party, of money which was not paid after nor in consequence of the judgment, but was paid in consequence of an unappealed order made prior to the judgment, will not be compelled upon appeal, where the judgment appealed from is reversed. Reynolds v. Reynolds, 2 Cal. Unrep. 547; 8 Pac. 184.

Action to enforce judgment for proceeds of sale. Where a mortgagor, in an action under this section to recover the proceeds of a foreclosure sale, the judgment having been set aside upon appeal, alleged in his complaint that foreclosure proceedings were commenced against the plaintiff, in which the defendant, a second mortgagee, was joined as a party, and filed a cross-complaint asking a foreclosure of his mortgage, and that an order of sale on the judgment foreclosing both mortgages was duly issued by the clerk, and was thereupon delivered to the sheriff, who sold the land to the defendant, and, after paying the first mortgage, there remained a balance, a right of action is not shown against the second mortgagee, it not being shown that the sheriff had applied any part of the proceeds of such sale to the satisfaction of the defendant's debt. Patton v. Thomson, 3 Cal. Unrep. 871; 33 Pac. 97. Attorneys' fees cannot be recovered in an action to recover the value of property sold under execution, pending an appeal from the judgment. Dowdell v. Carpy, 137 Cal. 333; 70 Pac. 167.

Damages, where appeal taken for delay. The remedy for a frivolous appeal, or for one taken merely for delay, must be sought under this section, and not by a motion to dismiss. Nevills v. Shortridge, 129 Cal. 575; 62 Pac. 120. Where an appeal is frivolous and vexatious, and taken merely for the purpose of delay, that is a matter which can only be determined by an examination of the record on appeal, which cannot be done on a motion to dismiss. Randall v. Duff, 104 Cal. 126; 43 Am. St. Rep. 79; 37 Pac. 803. Upon a motion to dismiss an appeal, and for damages, where an uncontradicted affidavit shows that the appeal was taken for delay, damages will be allowed upon the dismissal of the appeal, though, ordinarily, the court will not look into the record to see if the appeal is frivolous. McFadden v. Dietz, 115 Cal. 697; 47 Pac. 777. An appeal taken merely for delay, no transcript being filed, will be dismissed, with damages. Koelling v. Rutz, 108 Cal. 664; 41 Pac. 781. Damages may be awarded for a frivolous appeal. Bell v. Camm, 10 Cal. App. 388; 102 Pac. 225. Where an appeal is manifestly frivolous, damages will be added upon the affirmance of the judgment, as a penalty for the delay. Clark v. Nordholt, 121 Cal. 26; 53 Pac. 400; Henehan v. Hart, 127 Cal. 656; 60 Pac. 426; Hearst v. Hart, 128 Cal. 327; 60 Pac. 846. Twenty per cent of the amount of the judgment may be added to the costs, as damages, where the appeal is taken for delay. Shain v. Belvin, 79 Cal. 262; 21 Pac. 747; Williams v. Hall, 79 Cal. 606; 21 Pac. 965. Where an appeal is without merit, and it appears to the appellate court to have been taken for delay, the mere fact that the attorney for the appellant acted in good faith in its prosecution will not relieve the appellant from liability for damages, under this section. Lemon v. Rucker, 80 Cal. 609; 22 Pac. 471. An appeal from a judgment, where the only error upon the record is manifestly a trivial clerical error in the computation of interest, which would have been corrected by the court below upon having its attention called to the matter, is a frivolous appeal, and the superior court will be directed to make a proper correction in the computation of interest, and the appellate court will require the costs to be paid by the appellant, and allow the respondent damages for delay as part of the costs of appeal. Rountree v. I. X. L. Lime Co., 106 Cal. 62; 39 Pac. 16. The issuance of an order of sale before the taxation of costs is not premature, and an appeal taken after the taxation of costs, from an order refusing to vacate the order of sale, because the costs were inserted in the decree before taxation, is without merit, and the order will be affirmed, with damages. Janes v. Bullard, 107 Cal. 130; 40 Pac. 108.

Authoritative effect of opinion. An order of the supreme court, refusing to transfer a cause after judgment in the district court of appeal, does not adopt the opinion of the court of appeal so as to give it, in the supreme court, the authoritative effect that one of its own decisions would have. Bohn v. Bohn, 164 Cal. 532; 129 Pac. 981.

Authority of trial court limited how. After the supreme court has determined that the complaint states facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, the trial court is without power further to consider the objection that the complaint does not state a cause of action. Neale v. Morrow, 163 Cal. 445; 125 Pac. 1053.

Supreme court not influenced by subordinate court. The supreme court, in the determination of a cause, will act according to its own legal conviction, although in a case between the same parties, presenting identical questions, a contrary conclusion was reached by the district court of appeal. Bohn v. Bohn, 164 Cal. 532; 129 Pac. 981.

Disposition of case after death of party. Where the appellant dies after the argument and submission of the appeal, and before the decision, the judgment will be entered as of the day preceding his death. Ede v. Cuneo, 55 Pac. 772. Where the respondent dies after the submission of the appeal, an affirmance of the judgment will be entered nunc pro tunc as of a time prior to his death. Lucas v. Provines, 130 Cal. 270; 62 Pac. 509; McPike v. Heaton, 131 Cal. 109; 82 Am. St. Rep. 335; 63 Pac. 179.

Stare decisis. The decision of a former supreme court of this state, unreversed and unmodified, must be followed by a district court of appeal. Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Leale, 14 Cal. App. 307; 111 Pac. 759.

Law of the case. Where nothing materially new appears in a case, the views of the supreme court, upon a former appeal, become the "law of the case." Smith v. Goethe, 159 Cal. 628; Ann. Cas. 1912C, 1205; 115 Pac. 223; Barrett-Hicks Co. v. Glas, 14 Cal. App. 297; 111 Pac. 760; Conde v. Sweeney, 16 Cal. App. 157; 116 Pac. 319; Muller v. Swanton, 17 Cal. App. 232; 119 Pac. 200; Lantz v. Fishburn, 17 Cal. App. 583; 120 Pac. 1068. The construction given by the appellate court to the judgment of the trial court, in determining an appeal therefrom, becomes the law of the case, and is binding on the lower court in all subsequent proceedings, and whenever its interpretation is material. Gallatin v. Corning Irrigation Co., 163 Cal. 405; Ann. Cas. 1914A, 74; 126 Pac. 864; Gibbs v. Peterson, 163 Cal. 758; 127 Pac. 62. The rule of the law of the case is applicable, only where the same matters which were determined in the previous appeal are involved in the second appeal. Flood v. Templeton, 152 Cal. 148; 13 L. R. A. (N. S.) 579; 92 Pac. 78; Jacks v. Deering, 150 Cal. 272; 88 Pac. 909; Estate of Hall, 154 Cal. 527; 98 Pac. 269. The doctrine of the law of the case is, in a very limited class of cases, applied to matters of evidence, as distinguished from rulings of law, but its extension is not looked upon with favor. Allen v. Bryant, 155 Cal. 256; 100 Pac. 704; Smith v. Sinbad Development Co., 15 Cal. App. 166; 113 Pac. 701. The decision, upon a former appeal, as to the interest of a son in his deceased father's estate, is not the law of the case as to his right of inheritance from his mother. Estate of Wickersham, 153 Cal. 603; 96 Pac. 311. A decision upon a former appeal is not the law of the case upon a subsequent appeal that has an important distinction from the former appeal. Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc. v. Farnham, 153 Cal. 578; 126 Am. St. Rep. 129; 96 Pac. 9.

Rule of property. The rule of construction, that a tax deed misreciting, or omitting to recite, any one of the facts required by the statute to be recited has no effect at all as a conveyance, has become a rule of property that courts should not depart from. Henderson v. De Turk, 164 Cal. 296; 128 Pac. 747.

Rehearing. A petition for a rehearing, and not a motion for a new trial, is the proper remedy for one desiring a rehearing of an original petition in the supreme court for a writ of prohibition, after a decision has been rendered thereupon. Granger's Bank v. Superior Court, 101 Cal. 198; 35 Pac. 642. A rehearing will not be granted because of an erroneous statement of fact, upon which the court relied, which was contained in the respondent's pleading, where the allegations of the pleading were specifically noticed in the appellant's brief, and the respondent paid no attention to it, and made no suggestion that it was a clerical or other error, and relied wholly on another matter. Buhman v. Nickels, 1 Cal. App. 266; 82 Pac. 85.

Dictum. Where a decision is based upon two independent lines of reasoning, neither can be said to be dictum: one is as necessary to the decision as the other. Pugh v. Moxley, 164 Cal. 374; 128 Pac. 1037.

Dismissal of appeal. See note ante, § 954.

Power of appellate court upon granting new trial to limit issues to be tried by jury. See note 7 Ann. Cas. 116.

Power of appellate court to enter final judgment upon reversing civil cause for insufficiency of evidence. See note 8 Ann. Cas. 873.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. Restitution of property, etc. Reynolds v. Harris, 14 Cal. 667; 76 Am. Dec. 459; Farmer v. Rogers, 10 Cal. 335; Raun v. Reynolds, 18 Cal. 289; Gray v. Dougherty, 25 Cal. 273; Johnson v. Lamping, 34 Cal. 296.

2. Costs and damages. Cole v. Swanston, 1 Cal. 51; 52 Am. Dec. 288; Pacheco v. Bemel, 2 Cal. 150; Bates v. Visher, 2 Cal. 355; Buckley v. Stebbins, 2 Cal. 149; Russell v. Williams, 2 Cal. 158; Pinkham v. Wemple, 12 Cal. 449; De Witt v. Porter, 13 Cal. 171; Ricketson v. Torres, 23 Cal. 649; Harper v. Minor, 27 Cal. 109; Nickerson v. California Stage Co., 10 Cal. 520; Jungerman v. Bovee, 19 Cal. 355; Wilber v. Sanderson, 43 Cal. 496; Swimley v. Clark, 1872.

§ 958. On judgment on appeal, remittitur must be certified to the clerk of the court below. When judgment is rendered upon the appeal, it must be certified by the clerk of the supreme court to the clerk with whom the judgment roll is filed, or the order appealed from is entered. In cases of appeal from the judgment, the clerk with whom the roll is filed must attach the certificate to the judgment roll, and enter a minute of the judgment of the supreme court on the docket, against the original entry. In cases of appeal from an order, the clerk must enter at length in the records of the court the certificate received, and minute against the entry of the order appealed from, a reference to the certificate, with a brief statement that such order has been affirmed, reversed, or modified, by the supreme court on appeal.

Judgment rendered on appeal. Ante, §§ 43, 45.

Remittitur. Ante, § 56.

Judgment becomes final thirty days after it is filed. See Const., art. VI, § 2.

Legislation § 958. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872 (based on Practice Act, § 358), (1) substituting "must" for "shall" in all instances, and (2) omitting "as the case may be" after "modified."

2. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 174; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

Jurisdiction of appellate court after remittitur. As a general rule, the supreme court cannot exercise any jurisdiction over a case in which a remittitur has been issued by its order and filed in the court below; but this general rule rests upon the supposition that all of the proceedings have been regular, and that no fraud or imposition has been practiced upon the court or the opposite party: where such is the case, the appellate court will assert jurisdiction and recall the case. Trumpler v. Trumpler, 123 Cal. 248; 55 Pac. 1008; Richardson v. Chicago Packing etc. Co., 135 Cal. 311; 67 Pac. 769. A decision rendered by the appellate court, reversing the judgment of the trial court, after the death of the respondent, where no suggestion of his death or motion to substitute his representatives has been made, is not void, but merely erroneous; and where no fraud or imposition has been practiced upon the appellate court upon the issuance of the remittitur, the judgment of reversal becomes a finality, beyond the power of the appellate court to modify or amend. Martin v. Wagner, 124 Cal. 204; 56 Pac. 1023.

Recalling remittitur. Where the remittitur has been duly and regularly issued, without inadvertence, the supreme court loses jurisdiction of the cause, and has no power to recall it. Estate of Levinson, 108 Cal. 450; 41 Pac. 483. Where the remittitur conforms to the judgment as rendered, it will not be recalled, if it is too late to amend the judgment. San Francisco Sav. Union v. Long, 6 Cal. Unrep. 278; 56 Pac. 882. Where the judgment rendered by the appellate court is void, the remittitur will be recalled, and the appeal restored to the calendar. Martin v. Wagner, 124 Cal. 204; 56 Pac. 1023. An objection to an application to recall a remittitur, on the ground that the notice of the motion did not specifically state that it would be made on the ground that the remittitur failed to conform to the judgment, will not be sustained, where the terms of the notice otherwise disclose that this was the ground of the motion, and the opposite side was not prejudiced by the omission. Baker v. Southern California Ry. Co., 130 Cal. 113; 62 Pac. 302.

Jurisdiction of lower court after remittitur. A stay of execution of a decree of foreclosure, pending an appeal therefrom, ceases to operate when the remittitur from the appellate court is filed in the clerk's office of the superior court: the failure of the clerk to follow the directions given in this section cannot deprive the superior court of its jurisdiction, nor keep alive the stay of execution. Granger v. Sheriff, 140 Cal. 190; 73 Pac. 816. After the time of the going down of the remittitur, the superior court has no power to modify the judgment of the supreme court. Estate of Pichoir, 146 Cal. 404; 80 Pac. 512. Where, upon a judgment of reversal in the supreme court, a judgment for costs of appeal is docketed in conformity with the rule of such court, and with this section, the trial court has no power to vacate it; but, in so far as it has been docketed against respondents as to whom the judgment was affirmed by the supreme court, the trial court had power to set it aside, so as to make it conform to the decision upon appeal. Chapman v. Hughes, 3 Cal. App. 622; 86 Pac. 908; and see Long v. Superior Court, 127 Cal. 686; 60 Pac. 464; Baker v. Southern California Ry. Co., 130 Cal. 113; 62 Pac. 302.

After modification of judgment. Where a judgment is ordered modified by the appellate court, without prescribing the mode of modification, the mode is within the discretion of the court below; and where the former judgment was vacated, and a new judgment made to cover the whole ground, such method is not improper. Downing v. Rademacher, 138 Cal. 324; 71 Pac. 343. A judgment of the supreme court, modifying the judgment appealed from, is a final adjudication of the rights of the parties in the action, and the superior court is without jurisdiction to make any further judgment or order. Vance v. Smith, 132 Cal. 510; 64 Pac. 1078.

Acts done by authority of appellate court. The clerk of the superior court, in making the entries required by this section, acts by authority of the appellate court; no action is required on the part of the superior court to authorize the entry or the issuance of execution thereon; and the judgment of the appellate court becomes the judgment of the superior court as soon as the remittitur is filed and the entry is made. McMann v. Superior Court, 74 Cal. 106; 15 Pac. 448. Where, upon appeal, it was held erroneous to refuse permission to the plaintiff to file an amended complaint, and the cause was remanded for a new trial, with leave to the parties to amend the pleadings, the plaintiff may, after the remittitur goes down, file, without leave of the trial court, an amended complaint, other than that offered on the first trial. Pottkamp v. Buss, 5 Cal. Unrep. 462; 46 Pac. 169.

Execution for costs may issue when. The five years within which an execution may be issued on a judgment for costs, incurred in the supreme court on appeal from a judgment, commences to run from the time that a minute of the judgment of the supreme court is entered on the docket of the lower court. McMann v. Superior Court, 74 Cal. 106; 15 Pac. 448.

CHAPTER II.

APPEALS TO SUPREME COURT.

§ 963. Cases in which an appeal may be taken from superior court.
§ 964. Appeals; in what cases appealed from justices' courts.
§ 965. Appeals by executors and administrators.
§ 966. Acts of executors and administrators, where appointment vacated.
§ 967, § 968. [None so numbered.]
§ 969. Appeal from probate court, when may be taken. [Repealed.]
§ 970. Executors and administrators not required to give undertaking on appeal. [Repealed.]
§ 971. Acts of acting administrator, etc., not invalidated by reversal of order appointing him. [Repealed.]

Legislation Chapter II. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872, and then contained only one section (§ 963), relating to appeals to the supreme court. 2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1880, p. 14, by "An Act to amend Chapters Two and Three, of Title Thirteen, of Part Two, of the Code of Civil Procedure, and each and every section of said Chapters Two and Three, and to substitute new Chapters Two and Three to take the place thereof in said Code, relating to appeals in civil actions."

§ 963. Cases in which an appeal may be taken from superior court. An appeal may be taken from a superior court in the following cases:

1. From a final judgment entered in an action, or special proceeding, commenced in a superior court, or brought into a superior court from another court;

2. From an order granting a new trial in an action or proceeding tried by a jury where such trial by jury is a matter of right, or granting or dissolving an injunction, or refusing to grant or dissolve an injunction, or appointing a receiver, or dissolving or refusing to dissolve an attachment, or changing or refusing to change the place of trial, from any special order made after final judgment, from any interlocutory judgment, order, or decree, hereafter made or entered in actions to redeem real or personal property from a mortgage thereof, or lien thereon, determining such right to redeem and directing an accounting; and from such interlocutory judgment in actions for partition as determines the rights and interests of the respective parties and directs partition to be made, and interlocutory decrees of divorce.

3. From a judgment or order granting or refusing to grant, revoking or refusing to revoke, letters testamentary, or of administration, or of guardianship; or admitting or refusing to admit a will to probate, or against or in favor of the validity of a will, or revoking or refusing to revoke the probate thereof; or against or in favor of setting apart property, or making an allowance for a widow or child; or against or in favor of directing the partition, sale or conveyance of real property, or settling an account of an executor, administrator or guardian; or refusing, allowing or directing the distribution or partition of an estate, or any part thereof, or the payment of a debt, claim, or legacy, or distributive share; or confirming or refusing to confirm a report of an appraiser or appraisers setting apart a homestead.

Contempt, judgments and orders in, final and conclusive. See post, § 1222.

Orders reviewable on appeal from judgment. See ante, § 956.

Special administration, granting. No appeal. Post, § 1413.

Legislation § 963. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872 (based on Practice Act, § 347, as amended by Stats. 1865–66, p. 707), and then read: "§ 963. An appeal may be taken to the supreme court, from the district courts, in the following cases: 1. From a final judgment entered in an action or special proceeding commenced in those courts, or brought into those courts from other courts; 2. From an order granting or refusing a new trial; from an order granting or dissolving an injunction; from an order refusing to grant or dissolve an injunction; from an order dissolving, or refusing to dissolve, an attachment; from an order changing, or refusing to change, the place of trial; from any special order made after final judgment, and from such interlocutory judgment in actions for partition as determines the rights and interests of the respective parties, and directs partition to be made."

2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1880, p. 14, (1) in introductory paragraph, substituting "a superior court" for "the district courts"; (2) in subd. 1, substituting (a) "a superior court" for "those courts," in both instances, and (b) "another court" for "other courts"; (3) in subd. 2, substituting "or" for "from an order," at the beginning of each clause, except the first; (4) adding subd. 3.

3. Amended by Stats. 1889, p. 324, in subd. 3, (1) changing "granting, refusing, or revoking letters" to "granting or refusing to grant, revoking or refusing to revoke, letters," (2) changing "sales" to "sale," (3) inserting "or" before "legacy," and (4) changing "the" to "a" before "homestead."

4. Amended by Stats. 1897, p. 209, (1) in subd. 2, adding "or appointing a receiver," after "injunction"; (2) in subd. 3, inserting "or appraisers," after "appraiser."

5. Amended by Stats. 1899, p. 8, in subd. 2, (1) changing the comma to a semicolon, after "trial" and after "final judgment," and (2) inserting the clause beginning "from any interlocutory" and ending "an accounting."

6. Amended by Stats. 1901, p. 85, (1) restoring punctuation changed in 1899, and (2) in subd. 3, inserting "or refusing to revoke," before "the probate thereof."

7. Repeal by Stats. 1901, p. 174; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

8. Amended by Stats. 1915, p. 209, (1) in introductory paragraph, striking out "to the supreme court," after "taken"; (2) in subd. 2, (a) striking out "or refusing," before "a new trial," and inserting after these words, "in an action or proceeding tried by a jury where such trial by jury is a matter of right," and (b) inserting at end of subdivision, "and interlocutory decrees of divorce."

Construction of code sections. Under the third subdivision of this section, there is no limitation upon the character of the proceeding in which the order directing the conveyance is made, and the appellate court will not limit it. Estate of Pearsons, 98 Cal. 603; 33 Pac. 451. The remedy by motion in the superior court to set aside and vacate a judgment unsupported by the findings, and to enter another judgment in accordance therewith, provided for in §§ 663, 663½, ante, is merely cumulative, and was not designed to supersede the remedy by appeal provided in this section; upon such appeal, the judgment may be reversed, and the court directed to enter the judgment required by the findings. Patch v. Miller, 125 Cal. 240; 57 Pac. 986.

Appellate jurisdiction. Where the demand in suit is merely for money, the supreme court has no appellate jurisdiction, unless such demand, exclusive of interest, amounts to three hundred dollars. Heni-gan v. Ervin, 110 Cal. 37; 42 Pac. 457. The amount of money involved in an appeal from an order of the superior court taxing costs is not determinative of the jurisdiction of the appellate court. Meyer v. Perkins, 20 Cal. App. 661; 130 Pac. 206. The supreme court acquires jurisdiction immediately upon the filing of the notice of appeal; the failure to file a transcript on appeal, or the loss or destruction of it after it is filed, does not affect such jurisdiction. Estate of Davis, 151 Cal. 318; 121 Am. St. Rep. 105; 86 Pac. 183.

Writ of error. A writ of error will not be granted in any case where an appeal lies: the remedy by appeal is exclusive in such cases. Sacramento etc. R. R. Co. v. Harlan, 24 Cal. 334.

Appeal must be authorized. The appeal must be authorized by a statute or a rule of court. Appeal of Houghton, 42 Cal. 35. The right of appeal comes from the statute, not from any unauthorized action of the court. Estate of Overton, 13 Cal. App. 117; 108 Pac. 1021.

Appealability determined how. The appealability of an order is determined, not from its form, but from its legal effect (Estate of West, 162 Cal. 352; 122 Pac. 953); but this case seems to hold to the contrary of former rulings upon this point. Estate of Bullock, 75 Cal. 419; 17 Pac. 540; Harper v. Hildreth, 99 Cal. 265; 33 Pac. 1103. Appeals can be taken only from such judgments on orders as are mentioned in this section. Estate of Moore, 86 Cal. 58; 24 Pac. 816; Estate of Walkerly, 94 Cal. 352; 29 Pac. 719; Estate of Hickey, 121 Cal. 378; 53 Pac. 818; Estate of Cahill, 142 Cal. 628; 76 Pac. 383. A judgment of the superior court granting a divorce is appealable. Sharon v. Sharon, 67 Cal. 185; 7 Pac. 456. All judgments rendered in special civil proceedings of a summary character are appealable; hence, a judgment in an action to remove a board of supervisors can be reviewed upon appeal. Morton v. Broderick, 118 Cal. 474; 50 Pac. 644. An order on proceedings supplementary to execution, that a garnishee pay to the plaintiff the amount of his indebtedness, is, in effect, a judgment, and appealable. Bronzan v. Drobaz, 93 Cal. 647; 29 Pac. 254. The decision of a judge at chambers, in quo warranto proceedings, is appealable. Brewster v. Hartley, 37 Cal. 15; 99 Am. Dec. 237. The discharge of a debtor in bankruptcy proceedings is appealable. Fisk v. His Creditors, 12 Cal. 281. An appeal lies from a judgment rendered by the trial court in conformity with the directions of the appellate court. Tuffree v. Stearns Ranchos Co., 124 Cal. 306; 57 Pac. 69; Lambert v. Bates, 148 Cal. 146; 82 Pac. 767; Randall v. Duff, 107 Cal. 33; 40 Pac. 20. The confirmation of the report of a referee, and an order that judgment be entered for the plaintiff, without pronouncing judgment upon the facts found, and a determination of the particular relief to which the plaintiff is entitled, is not the rendition of a judgment from which an appeal may be taken. Harris v. San Francisco Sugar Refining Co., 41 Cal. 393. A judgment under stipulation, being a judgment by consent, is not appealable. Pacific Paving Co. v. Vizelich, 1 Cal. App. 281; 82 Pac. 82. The presentation of the claim of a court reporter for his fees and expenses in criminal cases, to the judge or court, for allowance, is not an action or special proceeding in which an appeal lies, under this section. Pipher v. Superior Court, 3 Cal. App. 626; 86 Pac. 904. An order or judgment of nonsuit is not appealable. Kimple v. Conway, 69 Cal. 71; 10 Pac. 189; Leavens v. Pinkham, 164 Cal. 242; 128 Pac. 399; Fraser v. Sheldon, 164 Cal. 165; 128 Pac. 33.

Final judgment, what is. The term "final judgment," as used in the first subdivision of this section, applies only to those judgments known at common law as final judgments, and does not apply to the statutory determinations termed "orders or judgments," defined in the third subdivision; hence, the right of appeal is expressly given from certain of such orders or judgments. Estate of Smith, 98 Cal. 636; 33 Pac. 744. Where the judgment is the only judgment provided for in the act, it is a final judgment, in the strictest sense of the term. People v. Bank of Mendocino County, 133 Cal. 107; 65 Pac. 124; and see Stockton etc. Agricultural Works v. Glen Falls Ins. Co., 98 Cal. 557; 33 Pac. 633. The term "final judgment," as used in the second subdivision of this section, has the same meaning as that term has as used in the first subdivision. Estate of Calahan, 60 Cal. 232; Estate of Smith, 98 Cal. 636; 33 Pac. 744. An injunction against a bank, in proceedings by bank commissioners, made as a part of the judgment adjudging the bank insolvent, is final, and appealable. People v. Bank of Mendocino County, 133 Cal. 107; 65 Pac. 124. A judgment under the Bank Commissioners' Act, to the effect that the corporation is insolvent; that it is unsafe for it to continue business; that the property of the corporation, previously sequestered and in the hands of the commissioners, be delivered to it for the purpose of liquidation, to be administered under the direction of the bank commissioners; that the injunction applied for be issued,—is a final judgment, and appealable. The order refusing to modify such injunction was proper. People v. Bank of Mendocino County, 133 Cal. 107; 65 Pac. 124. An order fixing the compensation of a receiver, and taxing it as costs against all the parties, and directing the receiver to apply towards its payment the balance of the fund remaining in his hands, is, in legal effect, a final judgment upon a collateral matter arising out of the action, and is appealable. Grant v. Los Angeles etc. Ry. Co., 116 Cal. 71; 47 Pac. 872. An order settling the account of a receiver, and directing the payment of his compensation by one of the parties, although made before final judgment in the action, is a final determination of the rights of the parties to the matter then before the court, and is appealable. Los Angeles v. Los Angeles City Water Co., 134 Cal. 121; 66 Pac. 198. An order setting aside an order settling an account of the assignee of an insolvent debtor, reported by a referee in an action by creditors to set aside and vacate a fraudulent assignment of the insolvent, is not a final judgment, and is not appealable. Etchebarne v. Roeding, 89 Cal. 517; 26 Pac. 1079. The fact that an injunction, by its terms, was until further order of the court, cannot affect its character as part of the final judgment, nor does it render such judgment any the less final. People v. Bank of Mendocino County, 133 Cal. 107; 65 Pac. 124. An order substituting a party as plaintiff is not a final judgment, and is not appealable. Welch v. Allen, 54 Cal. 211. An order made during the trial is not an order which, under this section, is appealable. Eddy v. American Amusement Co., 21 Cal. App. 487; 132 Pac. 83; Steinberg v. Jacobs, 21 Cal. App. 765; 132 Pac. 1060. An order, made before judgment, in an action to foreclose a mortgage, directing the application of the proceeds of the mortgaged property, is not, in its nature, a final judgment, and is not appealable. Illinois etc. Sav. Bank v. Pacific Ry. Co., 99 Cal. 407; 33 Pac. 1132. An order discharging the petitioner in proceedings on habeas corpus is not a final judgment, and is not appealable. Ex parte White, 2 Cal. App. 726; 84 Pac. 242.

Final judgment. See also note ante, § 939.

Order dismissing action is final judgment. An order dismissing an action is such a final judgment as that an appeal may be taken therefrom. Dempsey v. Underhill, 156 Cal. 718; 106 Pac. 73; Marks v. Keenan, 140 Cal. 33; 73 Pac. 751; Bell v. Solomons, 162 Cal. 105; 121 Pac. 377. An order adjudging that the plaintiff is barred from all equity of redemption or other right to the property, and dismissing the action, is a final judgment as respects the rights of the plaintiff, and is appealable. Byrne v. Hudson, 127 Cal. 254; 59 Pac. 597. An order dismissing an action for failure to return the summons within the statutory period of three years, entered in the minutes of the court, is a final judgment, for the purpose of an appeal therefrom. Pacific Paving Co. v. Vizelich, 141 Cal. 4; 74 Pac. 352. A judgment upon demurrer in an action against a justice of the peace and the sureties upon his official bond, dismissing the action as to the sureties and leaving it still pending against the justice, is not a final judgment disposing of the merits of the whole case, and an attempted separate appeal from the judgment of dismissal in favor of the sureties is premature, and must be dismissed upon motion. Nolan v. Smith, 137 Cal. 360; 70 Pac. 166. An order dismissing a cause as to certain of the defendants is not appealable (Gates v. Walker, 35 Cal. 289); nor is an order refusing to dismiss an action. Forrester v. Lawler, 14 Cal. App. 170; 111 Pac. 284; Garthwaite v. Bank of Tulare, 134 Cal. 237; 66 Pac. 326.

What considered on appeal from order dismissing action. The dismissal of an action for lack of prosecution is without regard to the merits or demerits of the cause of action; and upon a review on appeal from such an order, the fact that the records show a cause of action in favor of the plaintiff will not be considered. Bell v. Solomons, 162 Cal. 105; 121 Pac. 377. Where the court denies a plaintiff's motion to dismiss an action in intervention, for a delay of five years in prosecution after the plaintiff has filed his answer, and of its own motion orders the entire action to be dismissed, the plaintiff cannot, on an appeal from the order of dismissal, urge as error the denial of the motion to dismiss the action in intervention. Dempsey v. Underhill, 156 Cal. 718; 106 Pac. 73. Matters reviewable upon direct appeal from a judgment of dismissal will not be reviewed on an appeal from an order refusing to vacate the order of dismissal. Bell v. Solomons, 162 Cal. 105; 121 Pac. 377.

Appeal does not lie from order dismissing proceedings when. No appeal lies from an order improperly dismissing proceedings for want of jurisdiction: such order is not a judgment; but mandate lies, in a proper case, to compel a hearing. Scott v. Shields, 8 Cal. App. 12; 96 Pac. 385.

Regarding default. An order denying a motion to set aside a judgment by default is appealable (McCormick v. Belvin, 96 Cal. 182; 31 Pac. 16); as is also an order, made after judgment, refusing, upon motion of the plaintiff, to set aside the default of a defendant, and to fix a time within which the defendant should plead (Thompson v. Alford, 128 Cal. 227; 60 Pac. 686); and an order refusing to relieve the appellant from default in failing to serve a notice of intention to move for a new trial within the statutory time (Steen v. Santa Clara etc. Lumber Co., 145 Cal. 564; 79 Pac. 171); and an appeal may be taken from a judgment by default, entered by the clerk; and the existence of a remedy by motion in the superior court to set it aside, if irregular or void, cannot affect the right of appeal nor justify a motion to dismiss the appeal. Jameson v. Simonds Saw Co., 144 Cal. 3; 77 Pac. 662. An order setting aside a defendant's default, entered by the clerk, but upon which no judgment has been entered, is not appealable (Rauer's Law etc. Co. v. Standley, 3 Cal. App. 44; 84 Pac. 214; Rose v. Lelande, 17 Cal. App. 308; 119 Pac. 532; Savage v. Smith, 154 Cal. 325; 97 Pac. 821); nor is an order denying a motion for judgment by default, and for the removal of a guardian, as prayed for in the defendant's cross-complaint. Broadribb v. Tibbets, 60 Cal. 412.

Cases commenced in justice's court. No appeal lies to the supreme court from any judgment or order made in the superior court upon appeal from the judgment of a justice's court, and no writ of error therefrom is tenable. Pool v. Superior Court, 2 Cal. App. 533; 84 Pac. 53. The supreme court has no jurisdiction of an appeal from a judgment of the superior court, rendered, in an action to recover the rent of land, on appeal from a justice's court, although the complaint contains an allegation of the possession, by the defendant, of the demised premises. O'Meara v. Hables, 163 Cal. 240; 124 Pac. 1003. An action bought in a justice's court to enforce disputed claims of employees of an execution debtor for wages, and taken by appeal to the superior court, is not appealable to the supreme court, under the first subdivision of this section. Edsall v. Short, 122 Cal. 533; 55 Pac. 327. A special order, refusing to strike out a cost-bill, in the superior court, in a case appealed from a justice's court, is not appealable to the supreme court, although the cost-bill amounts to over three hundred dollars. Henigan v. Ervin, 110 Cal. 37; 42 Pac. 457. Where the case is one in which the supreme court has appellate jurisdiction under the constitution, notwithstanding the fact that it was commenced in the justice's court, the practice of taking an appeal first to the superior court and next to the supreme court is probably correct, in view of the first subdivision of this section. Edsall v. Short, 122 Cal. 533; 55 Pac. 327. The supreme court has jurisdiction of an appeal from an order of the superior court, on certiorari, annulling an order of a justice's court. Heinlen v. Phillips, 88 Cal. 557; 26 Pac. 366; but see contra, Bienenfeld v. Fresno Milling Co., 82 Cal. 425; 22 Pac. 1113.

Separate appeals. Every judgment, and every order subsequent to judgment, entered against a party, is the subject of a distinct and separate appeal, and must be appealed from as an entirety; no separate appeal lies from parts of two judgments: each should be appealed from by a notice and an undertaking of its own. People v. Center, 61 Cal. 191; Sharon v. Sharon, 68 Cal. 326; 9 Pac. 187.

Void orders and judgment. Void orders are appealable. Estate of Bullock, 75 Cal. 419; 17 Pac. 540. Thus, a void judgment of a superior court, rendered upon an appeal from a void judgment of a justice of the peace, is appealable (De Jarnatt v. Marquez, 127 Cal. 558; 78 Am. St. Rep. 90; 60 Pac. 45); as is also a void judgment rendered by a court without jurisdiction, or coram non judice, where it is entered in form as a judgment in the records of the court, upon which final process might be issued. Merced Bank v. Rosenthal, 99 Cal. 39; 31 Pac. 849.

Denying continuance. An order denying a continuance is not appealable. Haraszthy v. Horton, 46 Cal. 545.

What may be reviewed on appeal from the judgment. See note ante, § 956.

New-trial order appealable when. An order granting or refusing a new trial is appealable where a new trial is authorized. People v. Oakland, 123 Cal. 145; 55 Pac. 772; Estate of Sutro, 152 Cal. 249; 92 Pac. 486, 1027; Harper v. Hildreth, 99 Cal. 265; 33 Pac. 1103. An order granting or denying a motion for a new trial may be reviewed upon an appeal taken in time, notwithstanding the judgment may be final. Houser etc. Mfg. Co. v. Hargrove, 129 Cal. 90; 61 Pac. 660. An order granting or denying a new trial in a contest over the probate of a will is appealable, in cases where a new trial is authorized. Estate of Doyle, 68 Cal. 132; 8 Pac. 691; Estate of Bauquier, 88 Cal. 302; 26 Pac. 178; Estate of Spencer, 96 Cal. 448; 31 Pac. 453; Estate of Smith, 98 Cal. 636; 33 Pac. 744; Hartmann v. Smith, 140 Cal. 461; 74 Pac. 7. An order granting a motion to dismiss proceedings on motion for a new trial is appealable (Kokole v. Superior Court, 17 Cal. App. 454; 120 Pac. 67); as is also an order dismissing a motion for a new trial for want of prosecution, as that amounts to a denial of it. Voll v. Hollis, 60 Cal. 569. An order refusing to dismiss a motion for a new trial is not appealable: such order does not finally dispose of the motion itself (Griess v. State Investment etc. Co., 93 Cal. 411; 28 Pac. 1041); nor is an order denying a motion for a new trial in an action for divorce appealable, where there was no trial upon issues of fact, and judgment was entered for want of an answer: in such case there is no office to be subserved by a new trial. Foley v. Foley, 120 Cal. 33; 65 Am. St. Rep. 147; 52 Pac. 122. An appeal by the plaintiff may be presented with an appeal by the defendants from an order denying their motion for a new trial. Blood v. Munn, 155 Cal. 228; 100 Pac. 694. An appeal from an order denying a new trial, taken within proper time, may be considered, though the appeal from the judgment was not taken in time. Chase v. Holmes, 19 Cal. App. 670; 127 Pac. 652. Where the appeal from the judgment was taken more than six months after its entry, that appeal may be dismissed, and the review must be limited to the appeal from the order denying a new trial. Breidenbach v. McCormick Co., 20 Cal. App. 184; 128 Pac. 423.

Review, where no abuse of discretion shown. A general order granting a new trial to the plaintiff will not be disturbed upon appeal, if there is any ground upon which the court could reasonably, in the exercise of a proper discretion, have granted a new trial. Pollitz v. Wickersham, 150 Cal. 238; 88 Pac. 911; Witter v. Redwine, 14 Cal. App. 393; 112 Pac. 311; Hughes v. Rawhide Gold Mining Co., 16 Cal. App. 293; 116 Pac. 969; Shea-Bocqueraz Co. v. Hartman, 20 Cal. App. 534; 129 Pac. 807. Where there is a substantial conflict of evidence, the granting of a new trial upon the ground of the insufficiency of the evidence is conclusive upon the appellate court, in the absence of a showing that the action of the trial court was an abuse of discretion. McCarthy v. Morris, 17 Cal. App. 723; 121 Pac. 696. The action of the trial court in granting or denying a new trial will not be disturbed upon appeal, where no abuse of discretion is shown. Serpiglio v. Downing, 14 Cal. App. 683; 112 Pac. 905. The trial court has a discretion in granting or denying a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence, and such discretion, unless a clear abuse thereof is shown, will not be disturbed upon appeal. Rockwell v. Italian-Swiss Colony, 10 Cal. App. 633; 103 Pac. 162; Smith v. Hyer, 11 Cal. App. 597; 105 Pac. 787; Foley v. Northern California Power Co., 14 Cal. App. 401; 112 Pac. 467; Serpiglio v. Downing, 14 Cal. App. 683; 112 Pac. 905; Union Lumber Co. v. Webster, 15 Cal. App. 165; 113 Pac. 891; Spencer v. Clarke, 15 Cal. App. 512; 115 Pac. 248; Estate of Doolittle, 153 Cal. 29; 94 Pac. 240; Estate of Dolbeer, 153 Cal. 652; 15 Ann. Cas. 207; 96 Pac. 266; People v. Bennett, 161 Cal. 214; 118 Pac. 710; People v. Selby Smelting etc. Co., 163 Cal. 84; Ann. Cas. 1913E, 1267; 124 Pac. 692. The action of the trial court in granting or denying a new trial for insufficiency of the evidence to support the verdict or to justify the decision, will not be disturbed upon appeal, where no abuse of discretion appears. Estate of Everts, 163 Cal. 449; 125 Pac. 1058; Shea-Bocqueraz Co. v. Hartman, 20 Cal. App. 534; 129 Pac. 807; Walker v. Beaumont Land etc. Co., 15 Cal. App. 726; 115 Pac. 766; Webster v. Suiter, 15 Cal. App. 390; 114 Pac. 1007; Colon v. Tosetti, 14 Cal. App. 693; 113 Pac. 366; Brown v. Northern California Power Co., 14 Cal. App. 661; 114 Pac. 54; Witter v. Redwine, 14 Cal. App. 393; 112 Pac. 311. Although there may be some conflict in the testimony, yet it is the duty of the trial court to grant a new trial on the ground of insufficiency of the evidence, whenever the judge is convinced that the verdict is clearly against the weight of the evidence; and his action in that regard will not be disturbed, unless an abuse of discretion is shown. Weisser v. Southern Pacific Ry. Co., 148 Cal. 426; 7 Ann. Cas. 636; 83 Pac. 439.

Order granting new trial. Contents. Any limitation of an order granting a new trial, to be effectual, must be specified in the order itself. Classen v. Thomas, 164 Cal. 196; 128 Pac. 329; Weisser v. Southern Pacific Ry. Co., 148 Cal. 426; 7 Ann. Cas. 636; 83 Pac. 439.

Necessity of application for. On appeal from an order granting a new trial, the appellant's objection, that the order was made without an application therefor by respondent, is untenable, where the record shows that a hearing was had, with counsel for both parties present, and that the court ordered a new trial. Hovey v. Thorp, 17 Cal. App. 677; 121 Pac. 303.

Should be sustained when. On appeal from an order granting a new trial, it is the duty of the appellate court to sustain the order, if it can be upheld upon any ground embodied in the notice of intention. Shea-Bocqueraz Co. v. Hartman, 20 Cal. App. 534; 129 Pac. 807.

Effect of order. Where the plaintiff, in an action for personal injuries, obtains judgment for damages, prior to his death, proceedings to obtain a new trial operate merely to suspend the judgment until the final disposition of the motion; if the motion is finally denied, the judgment for damages will stand. Fowden v. Pacific Coast S. S. Co., 149 Cal. 151; 86 Pac. 178.

Notice of order. One appealing from an order denying a new trial is not entitled to notice of the entry of the order: he must take notice and inform himself thereof. Bell v. Staacke, 148 Cal. 404; 83 Pac. 245.

When service of notice necessary. The time for the doing of an act, or the taking of a step in a proceeding in court, begins to run from the service of a notice, only in cases where, by some law or rule of court, it is so provided. Bell v. Staacke, 148 Cal. 404; 83 Pac. 245.

Service of notice of motion for new trial. A failure to serve the notice of motion for a new trial on an adverse party necessitates a denial of the motion, and, on appeal, an affirmance of the order denying such motion. Johnson v. Phenix Insurance Co., 152 Cal. 196; 92 Pac. 182; National Bank v. Mulford, 17 Cal. App. 551; 120 Pac. 446.

Review of order, when no bill presented. An order denying a new trial must be affirmed on appeal, where no statement was settled upon the motion for a new trial. De Mitchell v. Croake, 20 Cal. App. 643; 129 Pac. 946. Where there is no settled statement or bill of exceptions to be used upon a motion for a new trial, the order denying a new trial must be affirmed upon appeal therefrom. Machado v. Kinney, 135 Cal. 354; 67 Pac. 331. Error in refusing to settle a proposed statement to be used on motion for a new trial cannot be taken advantage of by an appeal from the order denying the motion: the proper remedy is a proceeding to compel the settlement.

Estudillo v. Security Loan etc. Co., 158 Cal. 66; 109 Pac. 881. The incorporation, in a bill of exceptions, of an unsettled proposed statement, does not entitle it to consideration, on appeal, as a statement in support of the motion for a new trial. De Mitchell v. Croake, 20 Cal. App. 643; 129 Pac. 946. A preliminary objection to the hearing of an appeal from an order denying a new trial, that the bill of exceptions was not presented in time, is without merit. Bollinger v. Bollinger, 153 Cal. 190; 94 Pac. 770. Where the record on appeal from an order denying a new trial contains no bill of exceptions or statement of the case settled and signed by the judge who tried the case, the error cannot be reviewed on appeal. Pereira v. City Savings Bank, 128 Cal. 45; 60 Pac. 524. Upon appeal from an order refusing a new trial, alleged errors of law committed at the trial cannot be reviewed, where the bill of exceptions fails to indicate any ruling of the court, or any exception made in behalf of the appellant (Smith v. Smith, 163 Cal. 630; 126 Pac. 475); nor can an alleged error in excluding depositions be considered, where such depositions are not incorporated in the bill of exceptions, and the record shows no error in the ruling (Oldershaw v. Matteson & Williamson Mfg. Co., 19 Cal. App. 180; 125 Pac. 263); nor can unauthenticated affidavits, charging misconduct of the respondent, be considered, where they are not incorporated in a bill of exceptions (Cook v. Suburban Realty Co., 20 Cal. App. 538; 129 Pac. 801); nor can the ground of newly discovered evidence be reviewed, when the affidavits showing the same are not referred to nor included in the authenticated bill of exceptions. Schroeder v. Mauzy, 16 Cal. App. 443; 118 Pac. 459; West v. Mears, 17 Cal. App. 718; 121 Pac. 700. Unauthenticated affidavits cannot be considered on appeal from an order refusing to vacate a judgment and to grant a new trial. Estate of Dean, 149 Cal. 487; 87 Pac. 13. An order granting a new trial, based upon a bill of exceptions, should be affirmed, if the bill can properly be considered, and justifies the order; otherwise the order should be reversed. Pollitz v. Wickersham, 150 Cal. 238; 88 Pac. 911. A statement on appeal cannot be annexed to an order granting or refusing a new trial. Quivey v. Gambert, 32 Cal. 304.

Effect of appeal. An appeal from an order denying a new trial deprives the superior court of jurisdiction to set aside such order. Merced Bank v. Price, 152 Cal. 697; 93 Pac. 866.

Review limited to grounds and record of trial court. An order denying a new trial cannot be reviewed, if the settled statement used upon the hearing of the motion fails to show the motion itself, or the grounds upon which the defendant relied for a new trial. Carver v. San Joaquin Cigar Co., 16 Cal. App. 761; 118 Pac. 92. Upon appeal from an order denying a new trial, the appellate court is limited, in its review, to the grounds upon which the lower court was authorized to grant or deny a new trial, and cannot review the sufficiency of the pleadings or findings to support the judgment, nor consider any errors in the conclusions of law or in the judgment. Swift v. Occidental Mining etc. Co., 141 Cal. 161; 74 Pac. 700; Great Western Gold Co. v. Chambers, 153 Cal. 307, 95 Pac. 151; Stockton Iron Works v. Walters, 18 Cal. App. 373; 123 Pac. 240; Sebring v. Harris, 20 Cal. App. 56; 128 Pac. 7. Even though the order granting a new trial declares that the motion is granted for one or more reasons only, the appellate court is not precluded from considering any other assigned ground upon which the motion should have been granted, subject only to the limitation that the trial court may restrict the order granting the motion, so as to exclude, as a ground of its action, the insufficiency of the evidence; but such exclusion, to be effectual, must be declared in the order itself. Briggs v. Hall, 20 Cal. App. 372; 129 Pac. 288. The appellate court, in reviewing an order granting a new trial, is not limited to the grounds expressly stated in the order, but will affirm the order, if it was correctly made, upon any ground upon which the motion was based, except upon the single question as to the sufficiency of the evidence, where it is conflicting. Thompson v. California Construction Co., 148 Cal. 35; 82 Pac. 367; Wendling Lumber Co. v. Glenwood Lumber Co., 153 Cal. 411; 95 Pac. 1029; Brett v. Frank, 153 Cal. 267; 94 Pac. 1051. The action of the trial court in limiting the ground for granting a new trial, does not restrict the appellate court in examining the record to ascertain any other ground for granting a new trial, except the sufficiency of the evidence, where it is conflicting. Weisser v. Southern Pacific Ry. Co., 148 Cal. 426; 7 Ann. Cas. 636; 83 Pac. 439. The appellate court is precluded from considering the defendant's appeal from an order denying his motion for a new trial, where the statement of the case, as settled by the trial judge, does not show the motion or the grounds therefor, but, on his appeal from the judgment, the court may review alleged errors of law occurring at the trial, upon the statement of the case used upon the motion for a new trial and found in the record. Carver v. San Joaquin Cigar Co., 16 Cal. App. 761; 118 Pac. 92. An order granting or refusing a new trial can be reviewed only on the record made and settled before the order was made. Quivey v. Gambert, 32 Cal. 304; Merced Bank v. Price, 152 Cal. 697; 93 Pac. 866. Upon an appeal from an order denying a new trial, the scope of the inquiry is limited to the order appealed from, and the judgment roll and the affidavits or bill of exceptions or statement used on the hearing (Emeric v. Alvarado, 64 Cal. 529; 2 Pac. 418); and where the record does not contain the notice of intention, nor show the grounds of the motion or order, neither the evidence nor the order itself can be reviewed thereon (Morcom v. Baiersky, 16 Cal. App. 480; 117 Pac. 560); nor can an affidavit, not shown to have been used on the motion for a new trial, be considered, though it states good grounds for a new trial. Broads v. Mead, 159 Cal. 765; Ann. Cas. 1912C, 1125; 116 Pac. 46.

Record on new trial. See also note ante, § 952.

Sufficiency of evidence to sustain findings. Whether the findings are supported by the evidence may be reviewed on an appeal from an order denying a motion for a new trial. Suisun Lumber Co. v. Fairfield School District, 19 Cal. App. 587; 127 Pac. 349. On appeal from an order denying a new trial, the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain the findings is reviewable, but the findings cannot be examined to determine whether they support the judgment: that question may be considered only on appeal from the judgment. Bennett v. Potter, 16 Cal. App. 183; 116 Pac. 681; and see Foster v. Butler, 164 Cal. 623; 130 Pac. 6. The right of the appellants to have the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain the findings reviewed, upon appeal from an order denying a new trial, is not affected by the fact that the appeal was not taken within sixty days, nor by their failure to move, under §§ 663, 663a, ante, to set the judgment aside. J. F. Parkinson Co. v. Building Trades Council, 154 Cal. 581; 16 Ann. Cas. 1165; 21 L. R. A. (N. S.) 550; 98 Pac. 1027.

Review of evidence. The sufficiency of the evidence to support a finding cannot be reviewed upon appeal from an order denying a new trial, in the absence of specifications of insufficiency, as prescribed in § 648, ante. Layne v. Johnson, 19 Cal. App. 95; 124 Pac. 860. Although the record on appeal fails to contain a copy of the notice of intention to move for a new trial, yet the evidence may be reviewed on appeal from an order refusing a new trial, where the record does contain a bill of exceptions in which the insufficiency of the evidence to sustain the findings is specified. Dennis v. Gordon, 163 Cal. 427; 125 Pac. 1063. Where the bill of exceptions does not specify, either generally or specially, the particulars wherein the evidence is insufficient, its insufficiency cannot be reviewed upon appeal from the order denying a new trial. First National Bank v. Trognitz, 14 Cal. App. 176; 111 Pac. 402.

Conflicting evidence. The supreme court will not disturb the ruling of the trial court, on a motion for a new trial, upon the ground of insufficiency of the evidence, where the evidence is conflicting. Fowden v. Pacific Coast S. S. Co., 149 Cal. 151; 86 Pac. 178. It is the duty of a trial judge to grant a new trial if he is not satisfied with the verdict, in a case tried by a jury, or with the findings, if tried by the court: he is not bound by the rule as to conflicting evidence, as is the supreme court. Pollitz v. Wickersham, 150 Cal. 238; 88 Pac. 911. Where there is any appreciable conflict in the evidence, an order granting a new trial for insufficiency of the evidence to sustain the verdict is not reviewable. Harloe v. Berwick, 7 Cal. Unrep. 58; 70 Pac. 1060. The action of the trial court in granting a new trial upon the ground that the evidence is insufficient to justify the decision, is not open for review on appeal, if there is any appreciable conflict in the evidence. Hughes Bros. v. Rawhide Gold Mining Co., 16 Cal. App. 296; 116 Pac. 969; Briggs v. Hall, 20 Cal. App. 372; 129 Pac. 288. An order granting a new trial will not be disturbed upon appeal, where insufficiency of the evidence to justify the decision is one of the grounds specified in the notice of intention, and where the record upon appeal does not disclose whether or not the evidence was conflicting: it is only where the evidence shows an uncontradicted state of facts in favor of a party to an action that a question of law arises, which an appellate court may consider. McCann v. McCann, 20 Cal. App. 567; 129 Pac. 965.

Objection to evidence. An objection to evidence, on the ground that the complaint does not state a cause of action, cannot be reviewed upon appeal from an order denying a new trial. Spaeth v. Ocean Park Realty etc. Co., 16 Cal. App. 329; 116 Pac. 980.

Review of errors, verdict, and decision. Only upon an appeal from the judgment can the court consider errors apparent upon the judgment roll, or review the verdict or decision, if excepted to, or errors assigned on a statement on appeal: such matters cannot be considered upon an appeal from an order denying a new trial. Thompson v. Patterson, 54 Cal. 542. Error in overruling a motion for a new trial, made on the ground that the decision was one "against law," may be reviewed on appeal from the order. Great Western Gold Co. v. Chambers, 153 Cal. 307; 95 Pac. 151. The failure of the trial court to make a finding of fact upon a material issue renders the decision one "against law," and error in overruling a motion for a new trial, made on that ground, may be reviewed on appeal from the order. Great Western Gold Co. v. Chambers, 153 Cal. 310; 95 Pac. 151; Lyden v. Spohn-Patrick Co., 155 Cal. 177; 100 Pac. 236; Cargnani v. Cargnani, 16 Cal. App. 96; 116 Pac. 306. A verdict or other decision of fact may be reviewed upon an appeal from an order denying a motion for a new trial. Schroeder v. Mauzy, 16 Cal. App. 443; 118 Pac. 459.

Regarding pleadings. An order directing that a complaint be made more definite and certain is not appealable. McFarland v. Holcomb, 123 Cal. 84; 55 Pac. 761. No appeal lies from an order sustaining or overruling a demurrer. Wood v. Missouri Pacific Ry. Co., 152 Cal. 344; 92 Pac. 868; Foster v. Bowles, 138 Cal. 449; 71 Pac. 495; Hanke v. McLaughlin, 20 Cal. App. 204; 128 Pac. 772; Hadsall v. Case, 15 Cal. App. 541; 115 Pac. 330; Kinard v. Jordan, 10 Cal. App. 219; 101 Pac. 696; Litch v. Kerns, 8 Cal. App. 747; 97 Pac. 897.

Regarding amendments. An order amending an order dismissing a complaint in interpleader, limiting such dismissal to the defendants who demurred to such complaint, is appealable. Kaufman v. Superior Court, 108 Cal. 446; 41 Pac. 476; and see Livermore v. Campbell, 52 Cal. 75. An order denying a motion to amend the minutes of the trial court, after judgment, is not subject to review by the ordinary process of appeal. Griess v. State Investment etc. Co., 93 Cal. 411; 28 Pac. 1041.

Of pleadings, findings, and conclusions of law. On appeal from an order denying a motion for a new trial, no question as to the sufficiency of the pleadings or findings can be reviewed: such questions are reviewable only on an appeal from the judgment. Estate of Keating, 162 Cal. 406; 122 Pac. 1079; Shaw v. Shaw, 160 Cal. 733; 117 Pac. 1048; Arroyo Ditch etc. Co. v. Baldwin, 155 Cal. 280; 100 Pac. 14; Quist v. Sandman, 154 Cal. 748; 99 Pac. 204; Crescent Feather Co. v. United Upholsterers Union, 153 Cal. 434; 95 Pac. 871; Great Western Gold Co. v. Chambers, 153 Cal. 307; 95 Pac. 151; Kaiser v. Dalto, 140 Cal. 167; 73 Pac. 828; Sebring v. Harris, 20 Cal. App. 56; 128 Pac. 7; Clark v. Torchiana, 19 Cal. App. 786; 127 Pac. 831; Stockton Iron Works v. Walters, 18 Cal. App. 373; 123 Pac. 240; Schroeder v. Mauzy, 16 Cal. App. 443; 118 Pac. 459; Spaeth v. Ocean Park Realty etc. Co., 16 Cal. App. 329; 116 Pac. 980; Bennett v. Potter, 16 Cal. App. 183; 116 Pac. 681. It cannot be urged, upon reviewing an order denying a new trial, that any of the findings made upon sufficient evidence are outside of the issues pleaded. Schroeder v. Mauzy, 16 Cal. App. 443; 118 Pac. 459. That the court has erroneously applied the law to the facts, or has drawn the wrong conclusion of law from the facts found, may be reviewed only upon an appeal from the judgment: such matters cannot be considered on appeal from an order denying a new trial. Estate of Doyle, 73 Cal. 564; 15 Pac. 125; Swift v. Occidental Mining etc. Co., 141 Cal. 161; 74 Pac. 700; Quist v. Sandman, 154 Cal. 748; 99 Pac. 204. Conclusions of law are superseded by the judgment, and cannot be reviewed on appeal from an order denying a new trial: they are reviewable only on appeal from the judgment or from an order made under §§ 663, 663a, ante. Mentone Irrigation Co. v. Redlands Electric Light etc. Co., 155 Cal. 323; 22 L. R. A. (N. S.) 382; 17 Ann. Cas. 1222; 100 Pac. 1082; Elizalde v. Murphy, 11 Cal. App. 32; 103 Pac. 904.

Of order striking out. An order striking out amended affidavits, filed upon a motion for a new trial, may be reviewed upon an appeal from an order denying the motion. Melde v. Reynolds, 120 Cal. 234; 52 Pac. 491. Orders striking out pleadings can be reviewed only on appeal from the judgment: they are not reviewable on appeal from an order denying a motion for a new trial. Stockton Iron Works v. Walters, 18 Cal. App. 373; 123 Pac. 240. On appeal taken only from an order denying a new trial, an order striking out an amendment to the answer cannot be reviewed: it can be reviewed only upon an appeal from the judgment. Reclamation District v. Hershey, 160 Cal. 692; 117 Pac. 904.

Refusing to vacate appealable order. An order refusing to vacate an unappealable order is not appealable. Harper v. Hildreth, 99 Cal. 265; 33 Pac. 1103; and see Estate of Keane, 56 Cal. 407. Thus, an order refusing to set aside an order refusing to transfer a cause to a Federal court is not appealable. Tripp v. Santa Rosa Street R. R., 69 Cal. 631; 11 Pac. 219. An order dismissing an action as to certain defendants, an order denying leave to file an amended and supplemental complaint, and an order denying a motion to introduce certain evidence, are not appealable; therefore orders denying motions to vacate these orders are not appealable. Harper v. Hildreth, 99 Cal. 265; 33 Pac. 1103. An order denying a motion to vacate an order that is itself appealable is not appealable (Harper v. Hildreth, 99 Cal. 265; 33 Pac. 1103; and see Holmes v. McCleary, 63 Cal. 497; Tripp v. Santa Rosa Street R. R., 69 Cal. 631; 11 Pac. 219; Eureka etc. R. R. Co. v. McGrath, 74 Cal. 49; 15 Pac. 360; Larkin v. Larkin, 76 Cal. 323; 18 Pac. 396; Goyhineeh v. Goyhineeh, 80 Cal. 409; 22 Pac. 175; Deering v. Richardson-Kimball Co., 109 Cal. 73; 41 Pac. 801), unless the record presents matters for consideration that could not be presented upon the appeal from the original order or judgment. Bell v. Solomons, 162 Cal. 105; 121 Pac. 377. Thus, an order denying a motion to vacate an order denying the petition of an executor for the allowance of compensation for extraordinary services, and to restore the cause to the calendar, is not appealable (Estate of Walkerly, 94 Cal. 352; 29 Pac. 719); nor is an order refusing to set aside an order granting a writ of assistance appealable (Davis v. Donner, 82 Cal. 35; 22 Pac. 879); nor an order refusing to revoke an order appointing a guardian of a minor (Guardianship of Get Young, 90 Cal. 77; 27 Pac. 158); nor an order denying a motion to set aside an appealable order that does not present any features not before the court when it exercised its judgment upon the original matter (Deering v. Richardson-Kimball Co., 109 Cal. 73; 41 Pac. 801); nor an order refusing to vacate a prior order or judgment, where the order does not present any facts other than those presented on appeal from the judgment itself (Kent v. Williams, 146 Cal. 3; 79 Pac. 527); nor an order denying an application to vacate an order substituting a person as plaintiff (Grant v. Los Angeles etc. Ry. Co., 116 Cal. 71; 47 Pac. 872); nor an order refusing to vacate a prior order refusing to vacate a judgment, or denying a motion for a new trial. Doyle v. Republic Life Ins. Co., 125 Cal. 15; 57 Pac. 667. An order refusing to set aside an order dismissing an action as to certain defendants is not appealable: such order of dismissal is a final judgment when entered, and is itself appealable. Tripp v. Santa Rosa Street R. R., 69 Cal. 631; 11 Pac. 219; Gates v. Walker, 35 Cal. 289. An appeal lies from an order striking out a statement on motion for a new trial (Calderwood v. Peyser, 42 Cal. 110; Clark v. Crane, 57 Cal. 629); hence, that being an appealable order, no appeal lies from an order refusing to vacate an order striking such a statement from the files. Symons v. Bunnell, 101 Cal. 223; 35 Pac. 770.

Overruling exceptions. An order overruling exceptions to a referee's report is not appealable. Peck v. Courtis, 31 Cal. 207.

Of refusal to settle statement. The refusal of the court to settle the statement on motion for a new trial cannot be reviewed upon an appeal from the judgment, and from an order denying a new trial: the remedy therefor is by mandamus. Machado v. Kinney, 135 Cal. 354; 67 Pac. 331; Hartmann v. Smith, 140 Cal. 461; 74 Pac. 7.

Of misconduct of district attorney. The misconduct of a district attorney cannot be regarded on a motion for a new trial: it can be reviewed only on an appeal from the judgment. People v. Pang Sui Lin, 15 Cal. App. 260; 114 Pac. 582.

Affirmance of order. An appeal from an order denying an improper motion for a new trial will not be dismissed: the proper course is to affirm the order. Quist v. Sandman, 154 Cal. 748; 99 Pac. 204. Though an order granting a new trial does not specify the particular ground upon which it was based, yet it must be affirmed upon appeal, if there is any ground upon which it can be sustained. Witter v. Redwine, 14 Cal. App. 393; 112 Pac. 311; Petaluma v. White, 152 Cal. 192; 92 Pac. 177; Webster v. Suiter, 15 Cal. App. 390; 114 Pac. 1007; Pollitz v. Wickersham, 150 Cal. 238; 88 Pac. 911.

Reversal of order. The appellate court will not disturb the action of the trial court in denying a motion for a new trial, if, upon any hypothesis, it can be sustained. Union Lumber Co. v. Webster, 15 Cal. App. 165; 113 Pac. 891. Where a new trial was properly denied as to some issues, and erroneously as to others, the order should be reversed only so far as may be necessary to correct error in the order, where the issues are entirely separate. Robinson v. Muir, 151 Cal. 118; 90 Pac. 521. Upon a proper appeal from an order denying a new trial, where the grounds of the motion are insufficiency of the evidence to justify the decision, and that the decision is against law, the order will be reversed, where the decision is against the effect of the evidence. McGorray v. Stockton Sav. & L. Soc., 131 Cal. 321; 63 Pac. 479. A failure to find upon the defendant's plea of estoppel, where there is substantial evidence to support it, is reversible error, justifying a new trial. Banning v. Kreiter, 153 Cal. 33; 94 Pac. 246.

Order regarding injunction. An order granting an injunction is appealable (Sullivan v. Triunfo Gold etc. Mining Co., 33 Cal. 385; Golden Gate etc. Mining Co. v. Superior Court, 65 Cal. 187; 3 Pac. 628); and such order, made without due notice of the application therefor, cannot be annulled in a proceeding for a writ of review (Golden Gate etc. Mining Co. v. Superior Court, 65 Cal. 187; 3 Pac. 628); and an order refusing to dissolve an injunction is also appealable (Neumann v. Moretti, 146 Cal. 31; 79 Pac. 512; Tehama County v. Sisson, 152 Cal. 179; 92 Pac. 64); but the rule was otherwise under the Practice Act. Allender v. Fritts, 24 Cal. 447. An order striking out the mandatory portion of a preliminary injunction is appealable (Wolf v. Board of Supervisors, 143 Cal. 333; 76 Pac. 1108); but an order refusing to restrain a sheriff from executing a writ of assistance is not appealable (Pignaz v. Burnett, 119 Cal. 157; 51 Pac. 48); nor is a mere declaratory order, signed by a judge, not purporting to vacate or dissolve an injunction, but merely declaring that the injunction is no longer in force, which order was not filed with the clerk, nor intended to be entered in the minutes of the court (Devlin v. Rydberg, 132 Cal. 324; 64 Pac. 396); nor is the refusal of an application for an order to show cause why an injunction should not issue: it is not an order refusing to grant an injunction. Grant v. Johnston, 45 Cal. 243.

Regarding receivers. An appeal lies from an order appointing a receiver (First Nat. Bank v. Superior Court, 12 Cal. App. 335; 107 Pac. 322); though it was otherwise under the former statute. Emeric v. Alvarado, 64 Cal. 529; 2 Pac. 418. While a direct appeal may be taken from an order appointing a receiver, yet the statute does not allow an appeal from an order refusing to vacate the appointment of a receiver. Title Insurance etc. Co. v. California Development Co., 159 Cal. 484; 114 Pac. 838. An order made pending suit, authorizing a receiver, appointed to take charge of and work the property involved in such suit, is not appealable (Free Gold Mining Co. v. Spiers, 135 Cal. 130; 67 Pac. 61), nor is an order, made before final judgment, approving the account of a receiver. Rochat v. Gee, 91 Cal. 355; 27 Pac. 670.

Mandamus, where order appealable. An order dismissing a petition to restore to legal capacity one adjudged insane by the superior court of another county, is appealable; and mandamus does not lie to compel the court to consider such application. Aldrich v. Superior Court, 135 Cal. 12; 66 Pac. 846.

Regarding attachment. Under the Practice Act, an appeal did not lie from an order refusing to dissolve an attachment. (Allender v. Fritts, 24 Cal. 447); but an appeal now lies from an order dissolving an attachment (Kennedy v. Merickel, 8 Cal. App. 378; 97 Pac. 81), and from an order refusing to dissolve an attachment; hence, irregularities in an attachment, merely as to its inception or form, must be considered on direct appeal from the order refusing to dissolve the attachment, and not on appeal from the judgment. Mudge v. Steinhart, 78 Cal. 34; 12 Am. St. Rep. 17; 20 Pac. 147. The term "an attachment," as used in this section, is broad enough to include seizure and custody under the writ, as well as the writ itself; therefore an order discharging a writ of attachment in respect to particular property claimed not to be liable to seizure under the writ is, in effect, an order dissolving the attachment as to such property, and is appealable. Risdon Iron etc. Works v. Citizens' Traction Co., 122 Cal. 94; 68 Am. St. Rep. 25; 54 Pac. 529.

Regarding place of trial. An order changing the place of trial is appealable (Chase v. Superior Court, 154 Cal. 789; 99 Pac. 355); as is also an order denying a motion for a change of the place of trial. Bohn v. Bohn, 164 Cal. 532; 129 Pac. 981.

Refusing transfer of cause. An order refusing to transfer a cause to a Federal court is not appealable. Hopper v. Kalkman, 17 Cal. 517.

On motion to strike out. An order striking a statement from the files is appealable as a special order made after judgment (Symons v. Bunnell, 101 Cal. 223; 35 Pac. 770); as is also an order striking from the files an undertaking to stay execution, and directing the sheriff to pay the moneys collected under the garnishment in satisfaction of the judgment (Southern California Ry. Co. v. Superior Court, 127 Cal. 417; 59 Pac. 789); and a special order reducing the amount of the judgment by striking out the costs therefrom (Elledge v. Superior Court, 131 Cal. 279; 63 Pac. 360); and an order striking out competent affidavits used upon a motion for a new trial (Gay v. Torrance, 145 Cal. 144; 78 Pac. 540); but an order striking from the files amended affidavits filed in support of a motion for a new trial, after it had been made, and while it was pending, is not appealable (Melde v. Reynolds, 120 Cal. 234; 52 Pac. 491); nor is an order made on a motion to strike out portions of a pleading (Wood v. Missouri Pacific Ry. Co., 152 Cal. 344; 92 Pac. 868); nor an order directing the striking out of the complaint, or a part thereof (Clifford v. Allman, 84 Cal. 528; 24 Pac. 292; Swain v. Burnette, 76 Cal. 299; 18 Pac. 394); nor are rulings, made during the trial, refusing to strike out testimony. Leavens v. Pinkham, 164 Cal. 242; 128 Pac. 399.

Order modifying judgment. An order of the trial court, modifying a judgment in accordance with the directions of the supreme court, made on a prior appeal, and also the judgment as modified, is appealable (Randall v. Duff, 104 Cal. 126; 43 Am. St. Rep. 79; 37 Pac. 803); as is also an order denying a motion to correct a judgment, or the file-mark thereon, where an appeal upon the judgment roll would not present all the facts upon which the motion is based. Tuffree v. Stearns Ranchos Co., 6 Cal. Unrep. 134; 54 Pac. 826. An order denying a motion for a different judgment upon the findings is a special order made after final judgment, and appealable (Rahmel v. Lehndorff, 142 Cal. 681; 100 Am. St. Rep. 154; 65 L. R. A. 88; 76 Pac. 659); but otherwise as to an order adding to the judgment a provision requiring the plaintiff to pay the guardian ad litem of a minor defendant the sum of two hundred dollars for his services as such: such portion of the judgment, being merely for costs or expenses taxable against the defendant, and not amounting to three hundred dollars, is insufficient to confer jurisdiction on the supreme court. Aronson v. Levison, 148 Cal. 364; 83 Pac. 154.

Regarding bill of exceptions or statement. An order refusing to settle a bill of exceptions, and refusing to relieve the party presenting it from an objection that it was not served in due season, on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, and excusable neglect, is appealable. Stonesifer v. Kilburn, 94 Cal. 33; 29 Pac. 332. An order denying a motion to settle a statement on motion for a new trial is a special order made after judgment, and appealable (Clark v. Crane, 57 Cal. 629); but an order relieving a party moving for a new trial from his failure to present his bill of exceptions for settlement within the time required by law, upon the ground that such failure was excusable, and owing to inadvertence, is not appealable, as it is not a special order made after final judgment, within the meaning of the second subdivision of this section, although it was made subsequently to the entry of judgment (Kaltschmidt v. Weber, 136 Cal. 675; 69 Pac. 497); nor is the certificate of a judge, settling an engrossed statement on motion for a new trial, an appealable order (Henry v. Merguire, 106 Cal. 142; 39 Pac. 599; but see Stonesifer v. Kilburn, 94 Cal. 33; 29 Pac. 332); nor is an order permitting the amendment of a statement on motion for a new trial in a contest over the probate of a will, appealable. Estate of Smith, 98 Cal. 636; 33 Pac. 744. An order striking a statement on motion for a new trial from the files is a special order made after final judgment, and appealable. Calderwood v. Peyser, 42 Cal. 110; Kimball v. Semple, 31 Cal. 657; Morris v. De Celis, 41 Cal. 331; Dooly v. Norton, 41 Cal. 439; but see Quivey v. Gambert, 32 Cal. 304; Leffingwell v. Griffing, 29 Cal. 192; Ketchum v. Crippen, 31 Cal. 365. An order refusing to strike out a statement on motion for a new trial is not a special order made after judgment, but an interlocutory order in the proceedings to obtain a new trial, and is in a different line of proceeding, in which the order granting or refusing a new trial is the final and appealable order; therefore it is not appealable. Ketchum v. Crippen, 31 Cal. 365.

Interlocutory judgments, orders, and decrees. An interlocutory decree, not intended to be an ultimate adjudication of the merits, is not a final decree. Doudell v. Shoo. 159 Cal. 448; 114 Pac. 579. No appeal lies from an interlocutory order, unless it is designated by statute as one of those from which an appeal may be taken. Title Insurance etc. Co. v. California Development Co., 159 Cal. 484; 114 Pac. 838. An interlocutory decree, in cases other than those prescribed by statute, is not appealable, but will be reviewed on appeal from the final decree. Watson v. Sutro, 77 Cal. 609; 20 Pac. 88. In a proceeding in partition, an interlocutory decree is indispensable definitely to ascertain and determine the rights of the parties. Lorenz v. Jacobs, 53 Cal. 24. In an action to have a trust declared in real property, alleged to have been fraudulently conveyed, an interlocutory judgment is not appealable (Duff v. Duff, 71 Cal. 513; 12 Pac. 570); nor in an action to compel the conveyance of real property (Kofoed v. Gordon, 122 Cal. 314; 54 Pac. 1115); nor does an appeal lie from an interlocutory decree for an accounting, in an action to enforce a constructive trust (Grey v. Brennan, 147 Cal. 355; 81 Pac. 1014); nor, in such an action, to subject a trust fund to the payment of a claim. Grey v. Brennan, 147 Cal. 355; 81 Pac. 1014.

In actions for divorce. A special order, made after final judgment, in favor of the plaintiff in an action for divorce, requiring the defendant to pay counsel fees and costs, to enable the plaintiff to contest the defendant's motion for a new trial, is appealable, the supreme court having appellate jurisdiction over all questions arising in an action for divorce, on the ground that it is a case in equity, regardless of the amount involved (Harron v. Harron, 123 Cal. 508; 56 Pac. 334); and an order directing a receiver of the property of the husband to sell it for the purpose of satisfying a judgment for alimony, is appealable; regardless of whether there is an excess of the jurisdiction of the court in making it, the remedy by appeal is conclusive of the right to review it upon certiorari (White v. Superior Court, 110 Cal. 54; 42 Pac. 471); and an order, pendente lite, directing the payment of alimony, is appealable. Sharon v. Sharon, 67 Cal. 185; 7 Pac. 456.

In partition. This section makes provision for an appeal from an interlocutory judgment in partition proceedings. Dore v. Klumpke, 140 Cal. 356; 73 Pac. 1064. An appeal from an interlocutory judgment in partition proceedings, under the second subdivision of this section, is only "from such interlocutory judgment as determines the rights and interests of the respective parties, and directs partition to be made," and not from an interlocutory decree directing the property to be sold and the proceeds distributed, which does not become final until the sale is confirmed, when an appeal may be had. Hammond v. Cailleaud, 111 Cal. 206; 52 Am. St. Rep. 167; 43 Pac. 607. An interlocutory decree in partition proceedings, finally determining the rights of the several parties, and directing a sale of the property, is appealable (Holt v. Holt, 131 Cal. 610; 63 Pac. 912; Barry v. Barry, 56 Cal. 10); and to be appealable, it must definitely ascertain the rights and interests of the parties in the subject-matter; therefore conclusions of law, which form the basis for such a decree, cannot be appealed from. Lorenz v. Jacobs, 53 Cal. 24; Emeric v. Alvarado, 64 Cal. 529; 2 Pac. 418. An order confirming a sale in partition is conclusive upon the purchaser, if he fails to appeal. Hammond v. Cailleaud, 111 Cal. 206; 52 Am. St. Rep. 167; 43 Pac. 607. The interlocutory decree in partition, directing a sale, is to be regarded as a final judgment with respect to subsequent orders in aid of its execution; and a tenant in common in possession has the right to oppose the confirmation of the sale, and to review, on appeal, an order confirming such sale. Gordon v. Graham, 153 Cal. 297; 95 Pac. 145. An order vacating an order of reference and the proceedings subsequent thereto, in partition proceedings, was not appealable, under the former statute. Hastings v. Cunningham, 35 Cal. 549.

In condemnation proceedings. A final order of condemnation, made after the judgment awarding damages has been affirmed, adjudging that the damages and costs awarded to the defendants have been paid, or have been deposited in court, is a special order made after final judgment, and appealable. Los Angeles v. Pomeroy, 132 Cal. 340; 64 Pac. 477; Alameda v. Cohen, 133 Cal. 5; 65 Pac. 127; Sacramento etc. R. R. Co. v. Harlan, 24 Cal. 334.

In actions to redeem. It is not imperative upon the court, in all actions to redeem, to make an interlocutory order, so as to give the opportunity to appeal: the court, in its discretion, may make such an order, but it is not bound to do so. Smith v. Goethe, 147 Cal. 725; 82 Pac. 384.

Special orders made after final judgment. A special order, made after final judgment, is appealable (Bond v. United Railroads, 159 Cal. 270; Ann. Cas. 1912C, 50; 113 Pac. 366; Rogers v. Superior Court, 158 Cal. 467; 111 Pac. 357; Aronson v. Levison, 148 Cal. 364; 83 Pac. 154; Los Angeles v. Pomeroy, 132 Cal. 340; 64 Pac. 477; Holt v. James, 10 Cal. App. 360; 101 Pac. 1065; Magee v. Superior Court, 10 Cal. App. 154; 101 Pac. 532), without reference to any amount in value that may be involved in the order. Southern California Ry. Co. v. Superior Court, 127 Cal. 417; 59 Pac. 789. An appeal from an order that an original judgment be carried into execution is not an appeal from a judgment, but from an order made after final judgment. Weldon v. Rogers, 154 Cal. 632; 98 Pac. 1070. The provisions of the second subdivision of this section, relative to appeals from orders made after final judgment, are not applicable to probate proceedings. Estate of Wittmeier, 118 Cal. 255; 50 Pac. 393.

Regarding sales. An order, made after final judgment, authorizing the sale of perishable property, notwithstanding a stay of proceedings by virtue of an appeal, is appealable. Rogers v. Superior Court, 158 Cal. 467; 111 Pac. 357. An order, made after judgment, restraining the sale of property, pending an appeal, is appealable either as an order made after final judgment, or as an order granting an injunction. Stoddard v. Superior Court, 108 Cal. 303; 41 Pac. 278. An order refusing to confirm part of a sale in partition proceedings, in so far as it relates to a particular purchaser, is appealable as an order made after final judgment; and such purchaser is a party aggrieved, who is entitled to appeal from such order. Dunn v. Dunn, 137 Cal. 51; 69 Pac. 847; and see Hammond v. Cailleaud, 111 Cal. 206; 52 Am. St. Rep. 167; 43 Pac. 607.

Regarding deposits in court. An order directing that money, paid into court in satisfaction of a judgment, and claimed by a third party, be retained by the clerk until the determination of proceedings instituted to ascertain the right of the claimant to the money, is an order made after final judgment, and therefore appealable: it is not the subject of review by certiorari. Slavonic etc. Ass'n v. Superior Court, 65 Cal. 500; 4 Pac. 500.

Appeal from order made after final judgment. See also note ante, § 939.

Order made on motion to vacate judgment. No direct appeal lies from an order refusing a motion to dismiss an action, but, for error affecting the jurisdiction, for want of facts to support such order, a motion may be made to vacate the judgment rendered after trial, and the order made upon such motion is appealable, and reviewable upon a bill of exceptions, as an order made after judgment. Huntington Park Improvement Co. v. Superior Court, 17 Cal. App. 692; 121 Pac. 701.

Modifying or vacating judgments or orders. An order setting aside a judgment, entered by the clerk, even if only a judgment in form, and invalid, is appealable (Livermore v. Campbell, 52 Cal. 75); as is also an order refusing to set aside and vacate a judgment: it is a special order made after final judgment. McCourtney v. Fortune, 42 Cal. 387; Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc. v. Cochran, 6 Cal. Unrep. 821; 66 Pac. 732. An order refusing to set aside a judgment, where an appeal upon the judgment roll would not present all the facts upon which the motion is based, is appealable (De la Montanya v. De la Montanya, 112 Cal. 101; 53 Am. St. Rep. 165; 32 L. R. A. 82; 44 Pac. 345); as is also an order denying a motion made under §§ 663, 663a, ante, to vacate and set aside the judgment, as not supported by the findings (Taylor v. Darling, 19 Cal. App. 232; 125 Pac. 249); but an order refusing to set aside a judgment, on the ground that findings had not been waived, and there were no findings to support it, is not appealable (Gregory v. Gregory, 3 Cal. Unrep. 836; 32 Pac. 531); nor is an order refusing to set aside a judgment, on the ground that no findings or conclusions of law were filed, and that they were not waived, where such ground existed before the judgment was entered, and would have been reviewable upon an appeal from the judgment (Mantel v. Mantel, 135 Cal. 315; 67 Pac. 758); nor is an order refusing to set aside a judgment, and to enter a different judgment on the findings, appealable. Birch v. Cooper, 136 Cal. 636; 69 Pac. 420.

Regarding writs. Any error committed in issuing a writ of possession, or in a subsequent order refusing to set it aside, is reviewable upon appeal, and cannot be corrected by mandamus. Gutierrez v. Superior Court, 106 Cal. 171; 39 Pac. 530. An order refusing to quash an execution is a special order made after judgment, and appealable (Gilman v. Contra Costa County, 8 Cal. 52; 68 Am. Dec. 290); as is also an order refusing a motion of persons in possession of lands sold under foreclosure of a mortgage, who were not notified of an ex parte order granting a writ of assistance to a purchaser at the sale, to restrain the sheriff from executing the writ; and the fact that the motion was, in effect, a motion to vacate the order granting the writ and to recall the writ, does not justify the dismissal of the appeal from the order refusing the motion. Pignaz v. Burnett, 119 Cal. 157; 51 Pac. 48. An order granting a writ of assistance is appealable. Davis v. Donner, 82 Cal. 35; 22 Pac. 879; Gordon v. Graham, 153 Cal. 297; 95 Pac. 145. A writ of prohibition to prevent an order directing payment from the estate of a decedent, on the ground that the statute under which the court is proceeding has been repealed, will not issue, since such order, if made, would be reviewable by appeal under the third subdivision of this section. Cross v. Superior Court, 2 Cal. App. 342; 83 Pac. 815. A judgment of the superior court granting or denying a writ of mandate is appealable (Knowles v. Thompson, 133 Cal. 245; 65 Pac. 468; Palache v. Hunt, 64 Cal. 473; 2 Pac. 245; Heinlen v. Phillips, 88 Cal. 557; 26 Pac. 366); as is also an order denying a writ of review. Beaumont v. Samson, 4 Cal. App. 701; 89 Pac. 137.

In probate. An order in probate proceedings, refusing compensation for extraordinary services by an executor, is not a special order made after final judgment and is not appealable (Estate of Walkerly, 94 Cal. 352; 29 Pac. 719); nor is an order of the probate court, refusing to quash an execution, appealable. Blum v. Brownstone, 50 Cal. 293. Neither an original order directing the place of interment of the body of a deceased person, nor an order refusing to vacate such order, is appealable. Estate of Seymour, 15 Cal. App. 287; 114 Pac. 1023. An order requiring a distributee to restore property received under a final decree of distribution is not appealable as a special order made after final judgment. Iversen v. Superior Court, 115 Cal. 27; 46 Pac. 817.

Jurisdiction of probate appeals. Appeals lie only in such probate matters as may be provided by statute (Estate of Hathaway, 111 Cal. 270; 43 Pac. 754; Estate of Winslow, 128 Cal. 311; 60 Pac. 931); and the only appealable orders in probate matters are those designated in this section. Estate of Edelman, 148 Cal. 233; 113 Am. St. Rep. 231; 82 Pac. 962; Estate of Walkerly, 94 Cal. 352; 29 Pac. 719; Estate of Bouyssou, 1 Cal. App. 657; 82 Pac. 1066. The third subdivision of this section is the only authority for an appeal in any probate matter (Estate of Seymour, 15 Cal. App. 287; 114 Pac. 1023): the second subdivision, relative to appeals from orders made after final judgment, is not applicable to probate proceedings. Estate of Wittmeier, 118 Cal. 255; 50 Pac. 393; Estate of Seymour, 15 Cal. App. 287; 114 Pac. 1023. Wherever an order or decree involves a construction of the proper exercise of the duties of a trustee or administrator, or presents a question as to his right or power to comply therewith, or wherever obedience thereto might subject him to liability, he may appeal. Estate of Welch, 106 Cal. 427; 39 Pac. 805. An order directing an administratrix to allow her name to be used by a creditor of the estate, in a suit to set aside a conveyance of the decedent as having been made to defraud his creditors, is not appealable (Estate of Ohm, 82 Cal. 160; 22 Pac. 927); nor is an order commanding the dismissal of an action brought against the executor of an estate, and directing the discharge of the administrator, upon the settlement of an account not yet filed. Estate of Bullock, 75 Cal. 419; 17 Pac. 540. A statement on appeal from a probate court must specify the particular errors or grounds upon which the appellant intends to rely. Estate of Boyd, 25 Cal. 511.

Order appointing administrator. An appeal may be taken from an order appointing an administrator. Estate of Davis, 151 Cal. 318; 121 Am. St. Rep. 105; 86 Pac. 183; 90 Pac. 711. A public administrator, who has applied for appointment as administrator, has a right to appeal from an adverse order appointing another administrator, and non-resident heirs may join in such appeal. Estate of Graves, 8 Cal. App. 254; 96 Pac. 972. The provision of the third subdivision of this section, that a judgment or order granting, refusing, or revoking letters testamentary or of administration, was directed toward orders appointing general administrators, and not toward orders appointing special administrators; therefore an order appointing a special administrator is not appealable. Estate of Carpenter, 73 Cal. 202; 14 Pac. 677; but see contra, Estate of Crozier, 65 Cal. 332; 4 Pac. 109.

Regarding appointment of guardian. An order appointing a guardian of a minor is appealable (Guardianship of Get Young, 90 Cal. 77; 27 Pac. 158; Ex parte Miller, 109 Cal. 643; 42 Pac. 428); as is also an order appointing a guardian of a person alleged to be incompetent, to manage his property, and the alleged incompetent is an "aggrieved party," who has a right of appeal from such order (In re Moss, 120 Cal. 695; 53 Pac. 357); but an order setting aside an order appointing a guardian ad litem for an incompetent person, is not appealable. Estate of Hathaway, 111 Cal. 270; 43 Pac. 754.

Special administrator may appeal. A special administrator, with authority to preserve and protect the estate, has authority to appeal to the supreme court in a suit in equity. Davey v. Mulroy, 7 Cal. App. 1; 93 Pac. 297.

Regarding probate of wills. Prior to the amendment of this section in 1901, an order refusing to revoke probate of will was not appealable (Estate of Montgomery, 55 Cal. 210; Estate of Sbarboro, 70 Cal. 147; 11 Pac. 563; Estate of Hathaway, 111 Cal. 270; 43 Pac. 754; Estate of Winslow, 128 Cal. 311; 60 Pac. 931); but now an order refusing the probate of a will is appealable (Estate of Hughston, 133 Cal. 321; 65 Pac. 742; Hartmann v. Smith, 140 Cal. 461; 74 Pac. 7), under the third subdivision of this section, and not under the first subdivision. Estate of Fay, 145 Cal. 82; 104 Am. St. Rep. 17; 78 Pac. 340. The only appealable orders in probate matters are those designated in the third subdivision of this section; and an order dismissing a contest of the probate of a will after probate is appealable. Estate of Edelman, 148 Cal. 233; 113 Am. St. Rep. 231; 82 Pac. 962. An order dismissing the contest of a proved will is, in effect, an order refusing to revoke the probate of the will, and appealable (Mahoney v. Superior Court, 140 Cal. 513; 74 Pac. 13); but an order revoking an order refusing to admit a will to probate is not appealable. Estate of Bouyssou, 1 Cal. App. 657; 82 Pac. 1066. For orders previous to the change in the statute, see Estate of Sbarboro, 70 Cal. 147; 11 Pac. 563. An order denying a motion for a new trial in a contest over the probate of a will is appealable, where there is an appeal from a judgment or order in such contest (Hartmann v. Smith, 140 Cal. 461; 74 Pac. 7; and see Estate of Spencer, 96 Cal. 448; 31 Pac. 453); as is also an order directing the payment of attorney's fees to the unsuccessful proponent of a will. Mousnier v. Superior Court, 159 Cal. 663; 115 Pac. 221.

Regarding trustee in will. An order vacating an order substituting a trustee for the one appointed in a will is not appealable. Estate of Moore, 86 Cal. 58; 24 Pac. 816.

Regarding setting aside of property. An order setting apart, or refusing to set apart, a homestead to a widow is appealable (Estate of Burns, 54 Cal. 223; Gruwell v. Seybolt, 82 Cal. 7; 22 Pac. 938; Estate of Harrington, 147 Cal. 124; 109 Am. St. Rep. 118; 81 Pac. 546); and the right to have such order reviewed for error is lost by failure to appeal therefrom. Gruwell v. Seybolt, 82 Cal. 7; 22 Pac. 938. An order refusing to vacate, in part, an order setting apart a homestead, is not appealable (Estate of Cahill, 142 Cal. 628; 76 Pac. 383); nor is an order of the probate court, setting aside its own proceedings, upon the application of the surviving wife to have the homestead set aside to her, made before the final order, appealable. Estate of Johnson, 45 Cal. 257. An order setting aside a homestead in insolvency proceedings, and such personal property as is exempt, is appealable. Noble v. Superior Court, 109 Cal. 523; 42 Pac. 155.

Regarding family allowance. An appeal lies from an original order granting or refusing to grant a family allowance (Estate of Overton, 13 Cal. App. 117; 108 Pac. 1021; Estate of Harrington, 147 Cal. 124; 109 Am. St. Rep. 118; 81 Pac. 546; Estate of Stevens, 83 Cal. 322; 17 Am. St. Rep. 252; 23 Pac. 379; Estate of Nolan, 145 Cal. 539; 79 Pac. 428); and this rule applies to an order directing the payment of a family allowance for a widow, in the case of an insolvent estate, for a period subsequent to one year after the granting of letters testamentary or of administration (Estate of Treat, 162 Cal. 250; 121 Pac. 1003); but no appeal can be taken from an order discontinuing a family allowance. Estate of Overton, 13 Cal. App. 117; 108 Pac. 1021. The special administrator of the estate of a deceased person may appeal from an order directing him to pay arrearages in the family allowance, which had accrued since the suspension of the general administrator, and also from a decree of partial distribution. Estate of Welch, 106 Cal. 427; 39 Pac. 805. An order directing one who has been appointed guardian of the estate of a minor, but who has never given bonds, to pay for the maintenance of the minor, is appealable. Murphy v. Superior Court, 84 Cal. 592; 24 Pac. 310.

Regarding probate sales. An order of the probate court, directing the sale of real property, is appealable (Stuttmeister v. Superior Court, 71 Cal. 322; 12 Pac. 270; and see Estate of Corwin, 61 Cal. 161); as is also an order directing or refusing to direct a conveyance of real estate by an executor or administrator (Estate of Corwin, 61 Cal. 160; Estate of Bazzuro, 161 Cal. 71; 118 Pac. 454); and an order directing a resale of real property, which had been sold by the administrator and the sale confirmed (Estate of Boland, 55 Cal. 310); and an order confirming a sale of real property, made under a power of sale in the will, and directing a conveyance thereof to be made (Estate of Pearsons, 98 Cal. 603; 33 Pac. 451); and an order setting aside a prior order confirming the sale of land belonging to the estate of a deceased person (Estate of West, 162 Cal. 352; 122 Pac. 953); but an order of the probate court, directing an executor to proceed with the sale of real property, previously ordered to be sold, is not appealable. Estate of Martin, 56 Cal. 208. An order refusing the confirmation of a sale of real property, and refusing to hear evidence thereon, is, in effect, an order against directing the sale or conveyance of real estate, and is appealable. Estate of Leonis, 138 Cal. 194; 71 Pac. 171. Under the former statute, an order of the probate court refusing to set aside an order for the sale of real property was not appealable. Estate of Smith, 51 Cal. 563. An order authorizing an executor to mortgage the lands of the estate is an order directing the conveyance of real property, and is appealable. Estate of McConnell, 74 Cal. 217; 15 Pac. 746. An order dismissing a petition for an order that the executor of an estate return to the petitioner the purchase-money paid for real estate of the testator, in pursuance of an order of the court confirming the sale of such estate, is not appealable. Estate of Williams, 3 Cal. Unrep. 788; 32 Pac. 241.

Regarding settlement of accounts of executors and administrators. An order settling the account of an executor is not a final judgment, within the meaning of the first subdivision of this section (Estate of Franklin, 133 Cal. 584; 65 Pac. 1081); but, under the third subdivision, such an order is appealable (Estate of Richmond, 9 Cal. App. 402; 99 Pac. 554; Estate of Sanderson, 74 Cal. 199; 15 Pac. 753; Estate of Rose, 80 Cal. 166; 22 Pac. 86; Estate of Grant, 131 Cal. 426; 63 Pac. 731), if the appeal is taken within sixty days (Estate of Sanderson, 74 Cal. 199; 15 Pac. 753; § 1715, post), irrespective of the amount involved, and though a decree of distribution is made at the same time (Estate of Delaney, 110 Cal. 563; 42 Pac. 981), and although the letters of administration have been revoked. Estate of McPhee, 154 Cal. 385; 97 Pac. 878. An interlocutory order settling the account of an administrator, but not discharging him from his trust, is appealable. Estate of Rose, 80 Cal. 166; 22 Pac. 86. An order of a probate court, setting aside an order by which the annual account of an executor was allowed, is not appealable (Estate of Dunne, 53 Cal. 631; Estate of Cahalan, 70 Cal. 604; 12 Pac. 427); nor is an order vacating a prior order settling the final account of an administrator. Estate of Hickey, 121 Cal. 378; 53 Pac. 818.

Regarding distribution. A decree of final distribution is appealable (Estate of Wiard, 83 Cal. 619; 24 Pac. 45; Daly v. Pennie, 86 Cal. 552; 21 Am. St. Rep. 61; 25 Pac. 67); as is also an order decreeing a partial distribution of an estate, upon the petition of the legatees (Estate of Mitchell, 121 Cal. 391; 53 Pac. 810); therefore relief against an erroneous decree cannot be had in equity (Daly v. Pennie, 86 Cal. 552; 21 Am. St. Rep. 61; 25 Pac. 67); but an order refusing to postpone a decree of final distribution is not appealable (Estate of Burdick, 112 Cal. 387; 44 Pac. 734); nor is an order declaring an executor or administrator in contempt for disobedience of a decree of distribution (Estate of Wittmeier, 118 Cal. 255; 50 Pac. 393); nor an order vacating a decree of final distribution (Estate of Murphy, 128 Cal. 339; 60 Pac. 930); nor an order vacating a decree of distribution and the settlement of the final account of the executor (Estate of Calahan, 60 Cal. 232); nor an order refusing to vacate and set aside a decree of final distribution, and denying a new trial (Estate of Wiard, 83 Cal. 619; 24 Pac. 45); nor an order refusing to set aside and vacate an order of distribution, and to settle the final account of an executor. Estate of Lutz, 67 Cal. 457; 8 Pac. 39.

Regarding payment of claims. An order directing the payment of a claim by an administrator is appealable: no limitation as to the amount of the debt or claim being made by statute, the fact that the claim is less than three hundred dollars does not impair the right of appeal. Ex parte Orford, 102 Cal. 656; 36 Pac. 928. An order directing the payment of a preferred claim against an estate is appealable, notwithstanding a previous adjudication that it is a preferred claim, from which no appeal has been taken (Estate of Smith, 117 Cal. 505; 49 Pac. 456); and an order dismissing a petition to have an administrator show cause why a claim that has been allowed should not be paid, is appealable. Estate of McKinley, 49 Cal. 152. The word "claim" includes a demand for counsel fees allowed by the court to the administrator for the services of his attorney (Cross v. Superior Court, 2 Cal. App. 342; 83 Pac. 815); hence, an order allowing counsel fees to the attorney of an executor is appealable. Estate of Kruger, 123 Cal. 391; 55 Pac. 1056. The demand of an attorney for compensation for services rendered an administrator during the progress of the settlement of the estate of his decedent, which is presented to the administrator, and allowed and approved by the probate court, and ordered to be paid out of the estate in the due course of administration, although not technically a "claim" against the estate within the meaning of this section, will be treated as such, and the order directing the administrator to pay it is appealable (Stuttmeister v. Superior Court, 72 Cal. 487; 14 Pac. 35); but no appeal lies from an order vacating the allowance of a claim against an estate. Kowalsky v. Superior Court, 13 Cal. App. 218; 109 Pac. 158.

New trials and appeals in probate. See also note post, §§ 1466, 1714.

Judgment in special proceeding. An appeal lies from a judgment in a special proceeding, removing an officer. Covarrubias v. Board of Supervisors, 52 Cal. 622. A final judgment in condemnation proceedings is a special proceeding, and appealable. Sacramento etc. R. R. Co. v. Harlan, 24 Cal. 334. Final orders in a special probate proceeding are not appealable, under the provision of this section, that an appeal lies from a final judgment entered in a special proceeding commenced in the superior court. Estate of Ohm, 82 Cal. 160; 22 Pac. 927.

In foreclosure suit. An order, in an ordinary foreclosure action, to empower a third person, who is not a party to the action, and who is designated as an agent of the court, to remove and retain a certain defendant's property, is not appealable. Boca etc. R. R. Co. v. Superior Court, 150 Cal. 147; 88 Pac. 715.

In insolvency. An order setting aside an order settling an account of the assignee of an insolvent debtor, reported by a referee in an action by creditors to set aside and vacate a fraudulent assignment of the insolvent, is not a special order made after final judgment, and is not appealable. Etchebarne v. Roeding, 89 Cal. 517; 26 Pac. 1079.

Appeal dismissed when. A motion to dismiss an appeal from a judgment, on the ground that the transcript does not contain a complete judgment roll, will be denied, where, before the hearing of the motion, the defects in the judgment roll are remedied. Richardson v. Eureka, 92 Cal. 64; 28 Pac. 102. Upon appeal from an order denying a motion to vacate and set aside a judgment and an order denying a new trial, and to stay execution, the ex parte certificate of the judge, that certain papers annexed were used by the moving party on the hearing of the motion, and that he used no other evidence, but that the court, of its own motion, took notice of its records, is not the equivalent of the bill of exceptions required by the rule of the supreme court, and, in the absence of such bill, the appellant is not entitled to be heard, and the appeal will be dismissed. Ramsbottom v. Fitzgerald, 128 Cal. 75; 60 Pac. 522.

Motion to dismiss. The rule sometimes applied by the appellate court, in its discretion, that the merits of an appeal will not be considered upon a motion to dismiss, will not be applied when the motion is made on the ground that the order is not appealable. Grey v. Brennan, 147 Cal. 355; 81 Pac. 1014.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. 1. Appeals from final judgments. An appeal lies from a judgment for contempt. Ware v. Robinson, 9 Cal. 107; Ex parte Rowe, 7 Cal. 175; see Briggs v. McCullough, 36 Cal. 542. From a judgment in a proceeding for the condemnation of land. San Francisco etc. R. R. Co. v. Mahoney, 29 Cal. 112; Sacramento etc. R. R. Co. v. Harlan, 24 Cal. 334. From a judgment in an insolvent case. People v. Rosborough, 29 Cal. 415. For a judgment for less than three hundred dollars, when the amount claimed in the complaint exceeds that sum. Solomon v. Reese, 34 Cal. 28. From a judgment rendered at chambers. Brewster v. Hartley, 37 Cal. 15; 99 Am. Dec. 237. From a judgment in certiorari cases. Morley v. Elkins, 37 Cal. 454. From a judgment in a contested-election case. Dorsey v. Barry, 24 Cal. 449; Day v. Jones, 31 Cal. 261; Knowles v. Yates, 31 Cal. 82. From a decree in a divorce case. Conant v. Conant, 10 Cal. 249; 70 Am. Dec. 717; see also Neall v. Hill, 16 Cal. 145; 76 Am. Dec. 508; Adams v. Woods, 18 Cal. 30.

2. From what orders an appeal will lie. An order setting aside a decree in equity. Riddle v. Baker, 13 Cal. 295. An order changing a judgment. Bryan v. Berry, 8 Cal. 130. An order refusing to quash an execution. Gilman v. Contra Costa County, 8 Cal. 52; 68 Am. Dec. 290. An order setting aside an execution. Bond v. Pacheco, 30 Cal. 530. An order granting an injunction. Sullivan v. Triunfo Gold etc. Min. Co., 33 Cal. 385.

3. From what orders an appeal will not lie. An order granting a nonsuit. Juan v. Ingoldsby, 6 Cal. 439. An order made before final judgment refusing to transfer a cause to a United States court. Brooks v. Calderwood, 19 Cal. 124; Hopper v. Kalkman, 17 Cal. 517. An order refusing to set aside a former order. Horn v. Volcano Water Co., 18 Cal. 141; Henly v. Hastings, 3 Cal. 341. An order overruling a demurrer. Gates v. Walker, 35 Cal. 289; Moraga v. Emeric, 4 Cal. 308; People v. Ah Fong, 12 Cal. 424. From an order admitting a party to bail under the provisions of the Habeas Corpus Act. People v. Schuster, 40 Cal. 627. From an order sustaining a demurrer. The order can only be reviewed through an appeal from the judgment. Hibberd v. Smith, 39 Cal. 145; Agard v. Valencia, 39 Cal. 292; Daniels v. Landsdale, 38 Cal. 567. In Briggs v. McCullough, 36 Cal. 542, the question was raised, but not decided, whether an appeal lies from an order made after final judgment adjudging a judgment debtor guilty of contempt for not applying his property on the execution. An order vacating an order dismissing a cause. Gates v. Walker, 35 Cal. 289. An order vacating an order of reference and the proceedings had under it. Hastings v. Cunningham, 35 Cal. 549; Johnson v. Hopkins, 6 Cal. 83; Baker v. Baker, 10 Cal. 527. From an order making a new party defendant. Beck v. San Francisco, 4 Cal. 375. From an order refusing to grant a commission to take testimony. People v. Stillman, 7 Cal. 117. From an interlocutory order, except in the cases provided by the code. De Barry v. Lambert, 10 Cal. 503. From an order of court refusing to set aside an interlocutory judgment. Stearns v. Marvin, 3 Cal. 376. From an order overruling a motion for a new trial, when the party fails to prosecute his motion before the district court. Mahoney v. Wilson, 15 Cal. 43; Frank v. Doane, 15 Cal. 304. From an order denying leave to intervene. Wenborn v. Boston, 23 Cal. 321. From an order made in an action pending in the district court staying all proceedings therein until the further direction of the court. Rhodes v. Graig, 21 Cal. 419. From an order directing a statement on motion for a new trial to be settled. Leffingwell v. Griffing, 29 Cal. 192. From an order striking out a statement on motion for a new trial. Quivey v. Gambert, 32 Cal. 304; Ketchum v. Crippen, 31 Cal. 365. From an order denying a motion to certify a statement. Genella v. Relyea, 32 Cal. 159. From a judgment of nonsuit rendered on motion of the party appealing. Sleeper v. Kelly, 22 Cal. 456. From an order overruling exceptions to a referee's report. Peck v. Courtis, 31 Cal. 207. From an order refusing to amend an order allowing time to move for a new trial. Pendegast v. Knox, 32 Cal. 73. If the plaintiff dismisses the action before trial, and the court, on defendant's motion, makes an order restoring the cause to the calendar, no appeal lies from this order. Dimick v. Deringer, 32 Cal. 488. An order made on motion to retax costs. Stevenson v. Smith, 28 Cal. 102; 87 Am. Dec. 107; Levy v. Geteeson, 27 Cal. 686; Lasky v. Davis, 33 Cal. 677; see also Meeker v. Harris, 23 Cal. 285. Orders that are not appealable can only be reviewed through an appeal from the judgment. Gates v. Walker, 35 Cal. 289.

4. Orders in partition. An appeal does not lie from an interlocutory judgment, rendered in partition, determining the interests of the several parties, and appointing a referee to make a partition, and report the same to the court. Gates v. Salmon, 28 Cal. 320. An interlocutory judgment in partition, which adjudges that one of the parties has no interest in the property, is not a final judgment as to him, from which he can appeal. Peck v. Vandenberg, 30 Cal. 11. On the 22d of April, 1863, no appeal could be taken from an interlocutory judgment, in an action for partition to be made. Nor was an appeal from such a judgment, rendered before the passage of the act, given by the act of March 23, 1864. Id.; Moulton v. Ellmaker, 30 Cal. 527. The act of 1864, allowing appeals to be taken from an interlocutory order in partition, determining the rights of several parties, and directing a partition, did not apply to judgments rendered before its passage. Peck v. Courtis, 31 Cal. 207.

5. Generally. Error must affirmatively appear. Todd v. Winants, 36 Cal. 129. If the judgment is broader than the facts alleged and found, it is no ground for a new trial. The remedy is by appeal from the judgment. Shepard v. McNeil, 38 Cal. 72. If, on an appeal from an order refusing to grant a new trial, the order is reversed, and the cause remanded for a new trial, the judgment of the court below is vacated. Fulton v. Hanna, 40 Cal. 278. A finding made upon conflicting evidence will not be disturbed on appeal. Frost v. Harford, 40 Cal. 165; Lick v. Madden, 36 Cal. 208; 95 Am. Dec. 175; King v. Meyer, 35 Cal. 646. If a demurrer is properly sustained, and the adverse party declines, after leave, to amend, the judgment will not be reversed to allow an amendment. Sutter v. San Francisco, 36 Cal. 112. For a technical variance between the evidence, findings, and pleadings, a judgment will not be reversed, if the objection is taken for the first time in the appellate court. Dikeman v. Norrie, 36 Cal. 94. A party cannot prosecute two separate and distinct remedies in the supreme court for a review of the same question at the same time. Kirk v. Reynolds, 12 Cal. 99. An appeal from a judgment, and from an order denying a new trial, may be prosecuted separately, or the two appeals may be prosecuted together. Carpentier v. Williamson, 25 Cal. 159.

§ 964. Appeals; in what cases appealed from justices' courts. The foregoing section does not apply in cases appealed from justices', police, or other inferior courts, except cases of forcible entry and detainer, and cases involving the title or possession of real property, or the legality of any tax, impost, assessment, toll, or municipal fine, or in which the demand, exclusive of interest, or the value of the property in controversy, amounts to three hundred dollars.

Appeals to superior court. Post, §§ 974 et seq.
Forcible entry and detainer. Concurrent jurisdiction of justices' courts. Ante, § 113, subd. 1.

Legislation § 964. 1. Added by Code Amdts. 1880, p. 15.
2. Repeal by Stats. 1901, p. 174; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5. See ante, Legislation Chapter II.

Test of jurisdiction. Where, in an action commenced in the justice's court, the sum demanded is less than three hundred dollars, the jurisdiction of the justice, as well as the appellate jurisdiction of the supreme court, must be tested by the sum demanded in the complaint; but the costs, though more than three hundred dollars, cannot be deemed a part of the demand. Henigan v. Ervin, 110 Cal. 37; 42 Pac. 457.

Appeals from justice's court to superior court. See note post, § 974.

§ 965. Appeals by executors and administrators. When an executor, administrator, or guardian, who has given an official bond, appeals from a judgment or order of the superior court made in the proceedings had upon the estate of which he is executor, administrator, or guardian, his official bond shall stand in the place of an undertaking on appeal; and the sureties thereon shall be liable as on such undertaking.

Probate appeals. Ante, § 963, subd. 3.

Legislation § 965. 1. Added by Code Amdts. 1880, p. 15.
2. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 171, and renumbered § 938; repeal by Stats. 1901, p. 174; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5. See ante, Legislation Chapter II.

Application of section. This section applies to appeals from judgments and orders made in probate proceedings; therefore the bond of an administratrix stands in the place of an undertaking on appeal, not only for the purpose of perfecting the appeal, but also to stay proceedings under the order appealed from, directing the payment of a debt or claim. Ex parte Orford, 102 Cal. 656; 36 Pac. 928; and see In re Sharp, 92 Cal. 577; 28 Pac. 783. But this section does not apply where there is nothing in the record to show that the executors, who appealed, ever gave any official bond, and where the appeal was not from an order made in proceedings had upon the estate. Pacific Paving Co. v. Bolton, 89 Cal. 154; 26 Pac. 650.

Necessity of giving undertaking on appeal. Upon an appeal by an administrator, who has given an official undertaking, from an order directing him to make a conveyance of real estate, an undertaking on appeal is unnecessary. Estate of Corwin, 61 Cal. 160. An appeal from an order of distribution by the executor of a deceased heir does not entitle such executor to claim the benefit of this section as to bonds on appeal, the appeal not being from an order made in the settlement of estate of which he is executor. Estate of Skerrett, 80 Cal. 62; 22 Pac. 85. An appeal by an administrator of an estate from an order revoking his letters is not a proceeding had upon the estate of which he is executor, within the meaning of this section, providing that no bond need be given (Estate of Danielson, 88 Cal. 480; 26 Pac. 505); nor is an appeal by a special administratrix, subsequently to her resignation, from an order disallowing her accounts, within the meaning of this section. Estate of McDermott, 127 Cal. 450; 59 Pac. 783

Interest warranting appeal. An executor or administrator has, in general, no such interest in the conflicting claims of heirs and devisees as warrant his appeal from adjudications fixing their rights and distributing the estate accordingly. Estate of Welch, 106 Cal. 427; 39 Pac. 805.

§ 966. Acts of executors and administrators, where appointment vacated. When the judgment or order appointing an executor, or administrator, or guardian, is reversed on appeal, for error, and not for want of jurisdiction of the court, all lawful acts in administration upon the estate performed by such executor, or administrator, or guardian, if he have qualified, are as valid as if such judgment or order had been affirmed.

Appointment of executor, etc., appeal from, Ante, § 963, subd. 3.

Restitution on reversal, etc. Ante, § 957.

Legislation § 966. Added by Code Amdts. 1880, p. 15.

The original § 966 was based on Practice Act, § 359, as amended by Code Amdts. 1866–67, p. 846, and prescribed in what cases an appeal might be taken to the supreme court from a final judgment of the county court.

Acts pending appeal. A guardian has not, under this section, the right to act as such pending an appeal from the order appointing him. Coburn v. Hynes, 161 Cal. 685; 120 Pac. 26.

CHAPTER III.

APPEALS TO SUPERIOR COURTS.

§ 974. Appeal from judgment of justice's or police court.
§ 975. Appeal on questions of law. Statement.
§ 976. Appeal on questions of fact, or law and fact.
§ 977. Transmission of papers to appellate court.
§ 978. Undertaking on appeal.
§ 978a. Filing of undertaking. Exception to and justification of sureties.
§ 979. Stay of proceedings on filing undertaking.
§ 980. Powers of superior court on appeal.
§ 981. Fees payable on filing appeal.

Legislation Chapter III. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872, and then contained only one section (§ 966), relating to the time when appeals might be taken to the supreme court from county courts.
2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1880, p. 14. See ante, Legislation Chapter II.

§ 974. Appeal from judgment of justice's or police court. Any party dissatisfied with a judgment rendered in a civil action in a police or justice's court, may appeal therefrom to the superior court of the county, at any time within thirty days after the rendition of the judgment. The appeal is taken by filing a notice of appeal with the justice or judge, and serving a copy on the adverse party. The notice must state whether the appeal is taken from the whole or a part of the judgment, and if from a part, what part, and whether the appeal is taken on questions of law or fact, or both.

Notice of appeal, service of, on adverse party. See post, §§ 1010 et seq.

Legislation § 974. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872 (based on Practice Act, § 624, as amended by Stats. 1854, Redding ed. p. 70, Kerr ed. p. 98), (1) inserting "civil action in a police or" before "justice's court"; (2) adding "at" before "any time"; (3) substituting "is" for "shall be" before "taken"; (4) inserting "or judge" after "justice"; and (5) substituting "must" for "shall" before "state."

2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1880, p. 15, substituting "superior" for "county."

3. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 175; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

Jurisdiction. The steps required to perfect an appeal from a justice's court must be completed within the time prescribed, in order to give jurisdiction (Regan v. Superior Court, 14 Cal. App. 572; 114 Pac. 72; Crowley Launch etc. Co. v. Superior Court, 10 Cal. App. 342; 101 Pac. 935); but jurisdiction is acquired of an appeal from a justice's court, where all the necessary steps were taken in time (Golden Gate Tile Co. v. Superior Court, 159 Cal. 474; 114 Pac. 978); and also of an appeal from the judgment of a justice of the peace, in an action tried by a jury, although when the appeal was taken no judgment had been entered by the justice in conformity with the verdict. Montgomery v. Superior Court, 68 Cal. 407; 9 Pac. 720. On appeal from a justice's court, the appellant, who appeared in the superior court and proceeded, without objection, to a trial on the merits, cannot afterwards question the jurisdiction of the superior court on the ground that the justice had not entered the judgment in his docket at the time the appeal was taken. Montgomery v. Superior Court, 68 Cal. 407; 9 Pac. 720.

Nature of appeal determined how. Where the record on appeal from a judgment of a justice of the peace contains a statement of the case, the superior court is called upon to determine the nature of the appeal. Smith v. Superior Court, 2 Cal. App. 529; 84 Pac. 54.

Appealable judgments or orders. An appeal may be taken to the superior court on questions of law or fact, or both, from a judgment rendered in a civil action in a police court or justice's court. Simpson v. Police Court, 160 Cal. 530; 117 Pac. 553; Baird v. Justice's Court, 11 Cal. App. 439; 105 Pac. 259; Hamberger v. Police Court, 12 Cal. App. 153; 106 Pac. 894. A judgment by default in a justice's court is appealable (Tucker v. Justice's Court, 120 Cal. 513; 52 Pac. 808); but an order made by a justice of the peace, in proceedings supplementary to execution, requiring a judgment debtor to apply designated property to the satisfaction of the judgment, is not in the nature of a judgment, and is not appealable: the omission of all mention of "orders," in this section, is significant, and shows that there was no intention to give an appeal therefrom (Wells v. Torrance, 119 Cal. 437; 51 Pac. 626); nor is an order of a justice of the peace vacating a judgment appealable (Weimmer v. Sutherland, 74 Cal. 341; 15 Pac. 849); nor an order vacating an order granting a motion to open a judgment. Merriman v. Walton, 105 Cal. 403; 45 Am. St. Rep. 50; 30 L. R. A. 786; 38 Pac. 1108. The mere entry of the verdict of a jury by the justice, in his docket, is not the entry of the judgment, and will not support an appeal taken from the judgment. Thomson v. Superior Court, 161 Cal. 329; 119 Pac. 98.

Time of appeal. The time for an appeal from a justice's judgment begins to run upon its "rendition"; from the judgment of a court of record, it runs from the "entry" of judgment. Thomson v. Superior Court, 161 Cal. 329; 119 Pac. 98; June v. Superior Court, 16 Cal. App. 126; 116 Pac. 293. The time within which to appeal from a judgment of a justice's court is not prolonged by any proceedings in such court. Hollenbeak v. McCoy, 127 Cal. 21; 59 Pac. 201. An appeal taken after the entry of the verdict, but before the entry of the judgment, is premature, and the superior court does not acquire jurisdiction thereof. Thomson v. Superior Court, 161 Cal. 329; 119 Pac. 98; June v. Superior Court, 16 Cal. App. 126; 116 Pac. 293.

How perfected. To perfect an appeal from a justice's court, a notice of appeal must be filed with the justice, a copy of such notice must be served upon the adverse party, and a written undertaking must be filed; and all these things are jurisdictional, and must be done within thirty days after the rendition of the judgment. Stimpson Computing Scale Co. v. Superior Court, 12 Cal. App. 536; 107 Pac. 1013; Crowley Launch etc. Co. v. Superior Court, 10 Cal. App. 342; 101 Pac. 935. None of the jurisdictional prerequisites to an appeal from a justice's court can be dispensed with; nor can any of them be supplied, if not done; nor remedied, if fatally defective, after the time limited by statute. McKeen v. Naughton, 88 Cal. 462; 26 Pac. 364; McCracken v. Superior Court, 86 Cal. 74; 24 Pac. 845; Coker v. Superior Court, 58 Cal. 177.

Rules of court as to appeal. The superior court may, by rule, require an appellant from a justice's court, within thirty days after the filing of the transcript upon appeal, to deposit with the clerk the sum of six dollars for his costs upon the appeal, under penalty, for failure to do so, of a dismissal of the appeal, upon motion, after notice to the appellant. Behymer v. Superior Court, 18 Cal. App. 464; 123 Pac. 340.

Notice of appeal. An appeal is taken by filing and serving a notice of appeal. Jeffries Co. v. Superior Court, 13 Cal. App. 193; 109 Pac. 147; Moffat v. Greenwalt, 90 Cal. 368; 27 Pac. 296. A notice of appeal from a justice's court is sufficient if signed by the appellant personally, or by any one he may select for that purpose: the attorney of record need not sign it. Totton v. Superior Court, 72 Cal. 37; 13 Pac. 72. Where an appeal is taken from the whole of a justice's judgment, the notice of appeal is not required to state whether the appeal is taken upon questions of law or fact. Rauer's Law etc. Co. v. Superior Court, 10 Cal. App. 423; 102 Pac. 547. A mistake in the date of a judgment, in a notice of appeal served on a respondent, is not material, where the judgment is otherwise correctly described. Sherman v. Rolberg, 9 Cal. 17. The notice of appeal is not conclusive as to the nature or character of the appeal. Smith v. Superior Court, 2 Cal. App. 529; 84 Pac. 54. A declaration in a notice of appeal from a justice's court, that it is taken both upon questions of law and fact, is not conclusive: such a declaration cannot vary the fact. Peacock v. Superior Court, 163 Cal. 701; 126 Pac. 976.

Service of notice. A copy of the notice of appeal must be served on the adverse party (Green v. Rogers, 18 Cal. App. 572; 123 Pac. 974), to render the appeal effectual, and to give the appellate court jurisdiction (Trobock v. Caro, 60 Cal. 301; Matthews v. Superior Court, 70 Cal. 527; 11 Pac. 665); and a judgment of affirmance, rendered without such service, is erroneous (Trobock v. Caro, 60 Cal. 301); but the party upon whom the law requires notice to be served may voluntarily appear and submit himself to the jurisdiction of the court; and his appearance is a waiver of the want of notice. Matthews v. Superior Court, 70 Cal. 527; 11 Pac. 665. A notice of appeal from a judgment of a justice of the peace may be served on the adverse party personally, although he was represented in the justice's court by an attorney; and where the adverse party is a corporation, service on the manager thereof is sufficient to give the superior court jurisdiction. Pacific Coast Ry. Co. v. Superior Court, 79 Cal. 103; 21 Pac. 609. Where, in an action in a justice's court against married women on an express contract, their husbands were joined as parties, but judgment was rendered only against the wives, upon an appeal by the wives the husbands are not adverse parties upon whom notice of appeal is to be served. Terry v. Superior Court, 110 Cal. 85; 42 Pac. 464. Adverse parties are those who, by the record, appear to be interested in the judgment, so that they will be affected by its reversal or nullification; therefore parties not served with summons in a justice's court, and not having appeared, are not parties to the judgment, and are not adverse parties upon appeal so that it was incumbent that they should be served with notice of appeal. Terry v. Superior Court, 110 Cal. 85; 42 Pac. 464; Bullock v. Taylor, 112 Cal. 147; 44 Pac. 457. An intervener, if there is such under justice court practice, and a defendant in an action in a justice's court are adverse parties, and must be served with notice of appeal. Rossi v. Superior Court, 114 Cal. 371; 46 Pac. 177.

Filing of notice. The filing of the notice of appeal with the justice of the peace is a jurisdictional prerequisite to the appeal. Coker v. Superior Court, 58 Cal. 177. The notice of appeal is not required to be filed prior to the service of a copy thereof upon the adverse party, nor need the undertaking thereon be filed simultaneously with the notice. Hall v. Superior Court, 71 Cal 550; 12 Pac. 672. The marking of the filing of the notice of appeal by a justice of the peace is not the only competent evidence of the filing of the paper; nor is the absence of an entry in the justice's docket to that effect conclusive proof that it had not been filed. Williams v. Superior Court, 5 Cal. Unrep. 598; 47 Pac. 783.

Failure of sureties to justify. An appeal is taken by filing a notice of appeal with the justice, and serving a copy on the adverse party: the fact that the sureties did not justify does not prevent the appeal from having been taken. Moffat v. Greenwalt, 90 Cal. 368; 27 Pac. 296.

Liability of sureties. Where the bond given upon an appeal from a judgment of a justice's court is conditioned that if the appeal should be dismissed, the sureties will pay the judgment and costs, the sureties take the risk that the appeal may be erroneously dismissed. Nolan v. Fidelity etc. Co., 2 Cal. App. 1; 82 Pac. 1119.

Effect of appeal. The effect of an appeal from a judgment of a justice's court is to vacate the judgment, and to require all the issues of fact between the plaintiff and the defendant to be tried anew in the superior court. Rossi v. Superior Court, 114 Cal. 371; 46 Pac. 177.

Conclusiveness of judgment on appeal. The judgment of a superior court, on appeal from a justice's court, though erroneous, is final and conclusive, where no excess of jurisdiction appears, and where there is no remedy by appeal. Karry v. Superior Court, 162 Cal. 281; 122 Pac. 475.

Dismissal of appeal. Failure to take an appeal within thirty days after the rendition of judgment in justices' courts is ground for dismissal. Hollenbeak v. McCoy, 127 Cal. 21; 59 Pac. 201. The dismissal of an appeal from an erroneous judgment of a justice of the peace has the effect to affirm such erroneous judgment, and to put it beyond attack for any error which could have been availed of on appeal. Ritzman v. Burnham, 114 Cal. 522; 46 Pac. 379.

Appeal from recorder's court. The code makes no provision for an appeal from a recorder's court, but, under the provisions of the Municipal Corporation Act, such an appeal is taken in the same manner as appeals from justices' courts. Regan v. Superior Court, 14 Cal. App. 572; 114 Pac. 72.

Action on judgment. An independent action in the superior court on a money judgment rendered in a justice's court is barred, under §§ 336, 685, ante, upon the expiration of five years after their entry.

Heinlen Co. v. Cadwell, 3 Cal. App. 80; 84 Pac. 443.

Police court may appeal from superior court. A police court may appeal from a judgment of the superior court, prohibiting it from proceeding in a civil action, of which it has concurrent jurisdiction with justices of the peace, and be relieved from any writ improperly issued so prohibiting it. Simpson v. Police Court, 160 Cal. 530; 117 Pac. 553.

Civil jurisdiction of justices of the peace. See note ante, § 112.

Statement unnecessary when. Upon an appeal from a justice's court, upon questions of law, where the alleged errors appear in the copy of the justice's docket, or in the copies of papers sent up by the justice, as required by this section and § 977, post, there is no necessity for a statement. Southern Pacific R. R. Co. v. Superior Court, 59 Cal. 471.

Transfer of copy of docket. Where all the papers in the case, on an appeal from a judgment of a justice's court, have been transferred, except a copy of the justice's docket, the superior court has jurisdiction to order the transfer of such copy of the docket, under this section. Burgess v. Superior Court, 2 Cal. Unrep. 741; 13 Pac. 166.

Remand of cause, where appeal is upon questions of law alone. See note post, § 980.

Waiver of failure to serve or defects in service of process by appeal from justice's court to court where trial must be de novo. See note 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 661.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. An appeal does not lie from an order made by a justice of the peace, directing property alleged to have been stolen, and discovered and brought before the justice by a peace-officer, by virtue of a search-warrant issued by the justice, to be delivered to the owner. People v. Halloway, 26 Cal. 651. An appeal lies from a judgment rendered in a justice's court, in an action brought to recover the penalty from an overcharge, under the provisions of the act of the 14th of April, 1863, concerning street-railroads in this state. Burson v. Cowles, 25 Cal. 535. On appeal from a justice's court, the record not showing that notice of appeal had been served on the adverse party, appellant may prove by his affidavit that it was in fact served. Mendioca v. Orr, 16 Cal. 368. The general rule regulating appeals, which provides that notice may be served on the party or his attorney, governs cases arising in justices' courts. Welton v. Garibardi, 6 Cal. 245.

§ 975. Appeal on questions of law. Statement. When a party appeals to the superior court on questions of law alone, he must, within ten days from the rendition of judgment, prepare a statement of the case and file the same with the justice or judge. The statement must contain the grounds upon which the party intends to rely on the appeal, and so much of the evidence as may be necessary to explain the grounds, and no more. Within ten days after he receives notice that the statement is filed, the adverse party, if dissatisfied with the same, may file amendments. The proposed statement and amendments must be settled by the justice or judge, and if no amendment be filed, the original statement stands as adopted. The statement thus adopted, or as settled by the justice or judge, with a copy of the docket of the justice or judge, and all motions filed with him by the parties during the trial, and the notice of appeal, may be used on the hearing of the appeal before the superior court.

Settlement of statement on appeal. Ante, § 650.

Legislation § 975. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872 (based on Practice Act, § 625, as amended by Stats. 1855, p. 198), (1) substituting "must" for "shall" after "he" and after "statement"; (2) inserting "or judge" after "justice" in every instance; (3) substituting (a) "stands as" for "shall be," and (b) "may" for "shall" before "be used."

2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1880, p. 16, substituting "superior" for "county."

3. Repeal by Stats. 1901, p. 175; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. If a new trial is ordered by the county court, it should be had in that court. People v. Freelon, 8 Cal. 518.

§ 976. Appeal on questions of fact, or law and fact. When a party appeals to the superior court on questions of fact, or on questions of both law and fact, no statement need be made, but the action must be tried anew in the superior court.

Conduct of trial. Post, § 980.

Legislation § 976. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872 (based on Practice Act, § 626, as amended by Stats. 1854, Redding ed. p. 70, Kerr ed. p. 99), substituting "must" for "shall."

2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1880, p. 16, substituting "superior" for "county," in both instances.

3. Repeal by Stats. 1901, p. 175; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

Appeal on question of law and fact. On an appeal from a judgment of a justice's court, on questions of both law and fact, the superior court has original jurisdiction to try the case without a statement, if there was any trial of the issues in the justice's court, with or without jurisdiction. Armantage v. Superior Court, 1 Cal. App. 130; 81 Pac. 1033.

Procedure and jurisdiction. On an appeal on questions of both law and fact, where there has been no trial on issues of fact in the justice's court, the superior court must entertain and decide the appeal as upon questions of law alone; and the affirmance of a judgment of the justice in overruling a demurrer to the complaint is the proper method of procedure. Fabretti v. Superior Court, 77 Cal. 305; 19 Pac. 481. An appeal from a judgment of a justice's court, on questions of both law and fact, deprives the justice's court of all jurisdiction over the case, and vacates and sets aside the judgment therein, and the case is thereafter in the superior court, and the rights of the parties are to be determined by the action of that court. Bullard v. McArdle, 98 Cal. 355; 35 Am. St. Rep. 176; 33 Pac. 193. The superior court has jurisdiction to dismiss an action, on motion, on an appeal taken on questions of both law and fact. Holbrook v. Superior Court, 106 Cal. 589; 39 Pac. 936.

Jurisdiction. Where the plaintiff founds his right of action upon the allegation that the title to land agreed to be purchased by him is invalid, and, according to his own pleadings, he seeks the return of a purchase-deposit upon the ground of such invalidity, title to land is necessarily involved in the action, and original jurisdiction is not in the justice's court, but in the superior court. Bates v. Ferrier, 19 Cal. App. 79; 124 Pac. 889. Where a defendant, sued in the justice's court of the wrong county, objected to the jurisdiction by a motion to dismiss the action, and also by special demurrer, and afterwards, not waiving his motion or demurrer, in his answer to the merits, pleaded, in a separate defense, facts showing that the court had no jurisdiction, if all of his objections to the jurisdiction were overruled and the case determined upon the merits, the defendant may appeal to the superior court upon questions both of law and fact, and he is not bound to take only the question of jurisdiction to the superior court upon a statement of the case. Holbrook v. Superior Court, 106 Cal. 589; 39 Pac. 936. Where a want of jurisdiction of a justice's court appears upon the record transmitted from such court to the appellate court, an objection made by the appellant to the appellate court, trying the case upon the merits, is good if seasonably made. Bates v. Ferrier, 19 Cal. App. 79; 124 Pac. 889.

Transfer of cases to the superior court. See also note ante, § 838.

Jurisdiction of appellate court. See also note post, § 980.

Trial de novo in the superior court. See note post, § 980.

Remand of cause, where appeal is upon questions both of law and fact. See note post, § 980.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. No appeal lies to the county court, upon questions of fact, from a judgment by default. People v. El Dorado County Court, 10 Cal. 19.

§ 977. Transmission of papers to appellate court. Upon receiving the notice of appeal, and on payment of the fees of the justice or judge, payable on appeal and not included in the judgment, and filing an undertaking as required in the next section, and after settlement or adoption of statement, if any, the justice or judge must, within five days, transmit to the clerk of the superior court, if the appeal be on questions of law alone, a certified copy of his docket, the statement as admitted or as settled, the notice of appeal, and the undertaking filed; or, if the appeal be on questions of fact, or both law and fact, a certified copy of his docket, the pleadings, all notices, motions, and all other papers filed in the cause, the notice of appeal, and the undertaking filed; and the justice or judge may be compelled by the superior court, by an order entered upon motion, to transmit such papers, and may be fined for neglect or refusal to transmit the same. A certified copy of such order may be served on the justice or judge by the party or his attorney. In the superior court, either party may have the benefit of all legal objections made in the justice's or police court.

Legislation § 977. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872 (based on Practice Act, § 627, as amended by Stats. 1855, p. 198), (1) inserting "or judge" after "justice," in each instance, (2) inserting after "next section" the words "and after settlement or adoption of statement, if any," (3) substituting "must" for "shall" before "within," and (4) inserting, at end, "or police" before "court."

2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1880, p. 16, substituting "superior" for "county," in each instance.

3. Amended by Stats. 1897, p. 210, inserting (1) "payable on appeal and not included in the judgment" before "and filing," (2) "and after settlement or adoption of statement, if any," after "section," (3) "all" before "other papers," and (4) changing comma to semicolon before "and the justice."

4. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 175; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

Payment of costs and fees. The payment of the costs of the action is one of the conditions upon which an appeal is allowed from a judgment of a justice of the peace. McDermott v. Douglass, 5 Cal. 89. A party appealing from a judgment of a justice of the peace must pay all the fees of the justice, including those incurred by the respondent as well as by the appellant on the trial, and those on appeal, before the justice can be compelled to forward the papers to the clerk of the superior court. Webster v. Hanna, 102 Cal. 177; 36 Pac. 421; and see Bray v. Redman, 6 Cal. 287. The provision of this section, in reference to the payment of fees, refers to the making out of the papers; the payment or the tender of the fees does not strictly constitute a condition of appeal, but a condition precedent to sending up the papers, and this condition may be waived by the justice, and the fees paid at any time, so as to bring the case up before the superior court within the period limited by the rules of that court. People v. Harris, 9 Cal. 571.

Transmission of papers required when. No statement is required on an appeal taken on questions of both law and fact, but the justice certifies and transmits all the papers in the cause, including a copy of his docket, to the superior court, and the action is tried anew in that court. Nail v. Superior Court, 11 Cal. App. 27; 103 Pac. 902.

Right to compel. It is the duty of the justice, under this section, to send up the notice of appeal received by him; and the action of the superior court in refusing to allow an appellant the opportunity of moving to compel the justice to send it up, by peremptorily dismissing the appeal, is error. Sherman v. Rolberg, 9 Cal. 17.

Return of papers to justice. When the papers upon an appeal from a justice's court have been properly filed in the superior court, the justice has no power to recall them for any purpose, nor has the superior court any authority to cause them to be returned to the justice. Budd v. Superior Court, 14 Cal. App. 256; 111 Pac. 628.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. 1. Payment of costs. One of the conditions upon which an appeal is allowed, is payment of costs. McDermott v. Douglass, 5 Cal. 89. The fees must be paid, or tendered unconditionally. People v. Harris, 9 Cal. 571. But the justice may waive payment, and if he sends up the record without payment, it is no ground for dismissal. Bray v. Redman, 6 Cal. 287.

2. Generally. If the justice fails to send up the notice of appeal, it is error to refuse to allow appellant the opportunity of moving to compel the justice to send it up, by peremptorily dismissing the appeal. Sherman v. Rolberg, 9 Cal. 17. The omission of the words "to pay to" will not invalidate an appeal bond; if it did, leave should be granted to file a new bond. Billings v. Roadhouse, 5 Cal. 71. An appeal is made by filing and serving the notice of appeal. Both must be done to complete the appeal. A failure to notify the adverse party is fatal. Whipley v. Mills, 9 Cal. 641. See generally, People v. Freelon, 8 Cal. 517.

§ 978. Undertaking on appeal. An appeal from a justice's or police court is not effectual for any purpose, unless an undertaking be filed with two or more sureties in the sum of one hundred dollars for the payment of the costs on the appeal; or, if a stay of proceedings be claimed, in a sum equal to twice the amount of the judgment, including costs, when the judgment is for the payment of money; or twice the value of property, including costs, when the judgment is for the recovery of specific personal property, and must be conditioned, when the action is for the recovery of money, that the appellant will pay the amount of the judgment appealed from, and all costs, if the appeal be withdrawn or dismissed, or the amount of any judgment and all costs that may be recovered against him in the action in the superior court. When the action is for the recovery of or to enforce or foreclose a lien on specific personal property, the undertaking must be conditioned that the appellant will pay the judgment and costs appealed from, and obey the order of the court made therein, if the appeal be withdrawn or dismissed, or any judgment and costs that may be recovered against him in said action in the superior court, and will obey any order made by the court therein. When the judgment appealed from directs the delivery of possession of real property, the execution of the same cannot be stayed unless a written undertaking be executed on the part of the appellant, with two or more sureties, to the effect that during the possession of such property by the appellant, he will not commit, or suffer to be committed, any waste thereon, and that if the appeal be dismissed or withdrawn, or the judgment affirmed, or judgment be recovered against him in the action in the superior court, he will pay the value of the use and occupation of the property from the time of the appeal until the delivery of possession thereof; or that he will pay any judgment and costs that may be recovered against him in said action in the superior court, not exceeding a sum to be fixed by the justice of the court from which the appeal is taken, and which sum must be specified in the undertaking. A deposit of the amount of the judgment, including all costs appealed from or of the value of the property, including all costs in actions for the recovery of specific personal property, with the justice or judge, is equivalent to the filing of the undertaking, and in such cases, the justice or judge must transmit the money to the clerk of the superior court, to be by him paid out on the order of the court.

Undertaking on appeal. Compare ante, § 941.
Sureties.
1. Justification. Ante, § 948.
2. Qualification. Post, § 1057.

Legislation § 978. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872, based on Practice Act, § 628, as amended by Stats. 1860, p. 305, which had a final sentence (see § 978a, infra), reading, "The adverse party may, however, except to the sufficiency of the sureties within five days after the filing of the undertaking, and unless they or other sureties justify before the justice before whom the appeal is taken, within five days thereafter, upon notice to the adverse party, to the amounts stated in their affidavits, the appeal shall be regarded as if no such undertaking had been given." The changes made in adopting the section in 1872 consisted in (1) substituting (a) "or police court is not" for "court shall not be," and (b) "must" for "shall," in each instance; (2) omitting (a) "said" before "action in the county court," and (b) the first part of the sentence now beginning "A deposit," which read, "The undertaking shall be accompanied by the affidavits of the sureties that they are residents of the county, and are each worth the amount specified in the undertaking, over and above all their just debts and liabilities, exclusive of property exempt from execution; or the bond shall be executed by a sufficient number of sureties who can justify, in the aggregate, to an amount equal to double the amount specified in the bond, or"; (3) substituting "or judge is," after "justice," for "and such deposit shall be"; (4) inserting "or judge" after "justice," in each instance; (5) omitting "in this act mentioned" before "and in such cases"; and (6) omitting "however" before "except," in the final sentence, quoted supra.

2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1880, p. 16, (1) substituting "superior" for "county," in each instance; (2) in sentence beginning "When the action," inserting "or to enforce or foreclose a lien on" before "specific personal"; (3) adding the sentence beginning "When the judgment"; (4) in final sentence, quoted supra, omitting "before whom the appeal is taken" before "within five days."

3. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 175; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

4. Amended by Stats. 1909, p. 1064, (1) in first sentence, omitting "the" after "value of," and (2) omitting the final sentence, quoted from Practice Act, supra.

Construction of section. The word "or," in the first sentence of this section, joining the clauses referring, respectively, to the undertaking for costs on appeal and the undertaking for a stay of proceedings, manifestly must be construed as meaning "and"; and the former undertaking is therefore a prerequisite, without which no effectual appeal is taken. McConky v. Superior Court, 56 Cal. 83. The provision of this section, that an appeal is not effectual for any purpose unless an undertaking is filed, implies that when the undertaking is filed the appeal is effectual. Moffat v. Greenwalt, 90 Cal. 368; 27 Pac. 296. The amendment to this section in 1880 did not repeal, by implication, § 926, ante. Swem v. Monroe, 148 Cal. 741; 83 Pac. 1074. This section adds a further condition to the perfecting of the appeal, and all the steps required to perfect it must be completed within thirty days. Regan v. Superior Court, 14 Cal. App. 572; 114 Pac. 72.

Condition of undertaking. The condition of the bond is not affected by the point raised on appeal. Nolan v. Fidelity etc. Co., 2 Cal. App. 1; 82 Pac. 1119.

Approval of undertaking. Where a justice of the peace fails to reject an appeal bond promptly, his subsequent disapproval of it is ineffectual, and the appellate court will hold that the bond was approved. People v. Harris, 9 Cal. 571.

Deposit in lieu of undertaking. This section does not provide for a deposit in lieu of the undertaking on appeal: such a provision is made by § 926, ante. Pacific Window Glass Co. v. Smith, 8 Cal. App. 762; 97 Pac. 898. An appeal from a judgment of a justice's court is perfected by the deposit, with the justice, of money in lieu of the undertaking on appeal, under § 926, ante, and such money need not be transmitted to the superior court as provided by this section. Laws v. Troutt, 147 Cal. 172; 81 Pac. 401. A deposit of money may be made in lieu of an undertaking on appeal; and it cannot be withdrawn after the statutory time for filing an undertaking, and should be transmitted to the clerk of the superior court as security on the appeal. Mullen v. Hunt, 67 Cal. 69; 7 Pac. 121. A deposit, with the justice, of the requisite amount of money, gives the superior court jurisdiction of the appeal (Pacific Window Glass Co. v. Smith, 8 Cal. App. 762; 97 Pac. 898), although the sum deposited greatly exceeds the amount required (Thomas v. Hawkins, 12 Cal. App. 327; 107 Pac. 578); but the superior court has no jurisdiction if the deposit made is in a sum less than one hundred dollars. Swem v. Monroe, 148 Cal. 741; 83 Pac. 1074.

Liability of sureties. The liability of the sureties upon an undertaking to stay proceedings, pending an appeal from the judgment of a justice's court, is not affected by the fact that there was a misnomer of the defendant in the body of the judgment, which was amended by the justice, pending the appeal, where such undertaking correctly describes the judgment. Adler v. Staude, 136 Cal. 182; 68 Pac. 599.

Action upon undertaking. The assignment of a judgment only, without the assignment of the undertaking on appeal therefrom, does not pass to the assignee any right of action upon the undertaking on appeal, whether the judgment was assigned pending the appeal or after it had become final. Chilstrom v. Eppinger, 127 Cal. 326; 78 Am. St. Rep. 46; 59 Pac. 696. The failure to file the undertaking on appeal from a judgment of a justice of the peace within thirty days after the rendition of the judgment is good ground for dismissing the appeal, but will not defeat a recovery on a stay bond given at any time before the dismissal of the appeal. Nolan v. Fidelity etc. Co., 2 Cal. App. 1; 82 Pac. 1119.

Allegations of complaint. The undertaking on appeal from a justice's court to the superior court to stay execution is an independent and absolute contract on the part of the sureties, and on dismissal of the appeal they become liable to pay the amount of the judgment and all costs; and to discharge themselves from such liability, they must show that the judgment has been satisfied, either by a return of the property, or by payment of the amount of the judgment and costs; and in an action against the sureties on such undertaking, it is not necessary to the sufficiency of the complaint to allege the issuance and return of the execution unsatisfied, or that notice of the dismissal of the appeal was given, or that demand was made prior to the commencement of the action, or that a delivery of the property could not be had, or that any order was made by the superior court which the appellant failed or refused to obey. Pieper v. Peers, 98 Cal. 42; 32 Pac. 700. An allegation, in an action on a stay bond given on an appeal from a judgment of a justice's court, that "judgment was rendered," etc., instead of "judgment was duly made and given," etc., is sufficient. Nolan v. Fidelity etc. Co., 2 Cal. App. 1; 82 Pac. 1119.

Undertaking for costs. An appeal is perfected, or made effectual, by filing an undertaking "for the payment of the costs on appeal." Jeffries Co. v. Superior Court, 13 Cal. App. 193; 109 Pac. 147. An undertaking on appeal from a money judgment, in a greater sum than one hundred dollars, and conditioned for the payment of the costs on appeal, is sufficient to confer jurisdiction on the superior court, though it also purports to be given to stay execution. Edwards v. Superior Court, 159 Cal. 710; 115 Pac. 649. The expression, "all costs," in an undertaking conditioned to pay the amount of the judgment and all costs, etc., includes the costs on appeal. Jones v. Superior Court, 151 Cal. 589; 91 Pac. 505. The superior court has no jurisdiction to entertain an appeal, where no bond for costs, or deposit in lieu thereof, was given. Stimpson Computing Scale Co. v. Superior Court, 12 Cal. App. 536; 107 Pac. 1013; Thomas v. Hawkins, 12 Cal. App. 327; 107 Pac. 578. A bond on attachment, given months prior to the appeal, though undertaking to pay damages and costs awarded on appeal, is not a good undertaking on appeal. Stimpson Computing Scale Co. v. Superior Court, 12 Cal. App. 536; 107 Pac. 1013.

Time for filing undertaking. See note post, § 978a.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. When the appeal bond is presented, the justice must act promptly; if he receives the bond without objection, it will be too late to disapprove it next day. People v. Harris, 9 Cal. 571. If the sureties are excepted to, and appear before the justice, and the party then states that he knows them to be good, and that he excepted to them for the sole reason that his attorney told him to do so, he waives their justification. Blair v. Hamilton, 32 Cal. 50.

§ 978a. Filing of undertaking. Exception to and justification of sureties. The undertaking on appeal must be filed within five days after the filing of the notice of appeal and notice of the filing of the undertaking must be given to the respondent. The adverse party may except to the sufficiency of the sureties within five days after the filing of the undertaking, and unless they or other sureties justify before the justice or judge within five days thereafter, upon notice to the adverse party, to the amounts stated in their affidavits, the appeal must be regarded as if no such undertaking had been given.

Legislation § 978a. Added by Stats. 1909, p. 1065. Compare ante, Legislation § 978, par. 1.

Construction of section. This section is not to be construed as if the word "immediately" were added to the end of the first sentence thereof. Golden Gate Tile Co. v. Superior Court, 159 Cal. 474; 114 Pac. 978.

Time of filing undertaking. The undertaking must be filed within the prescribed time from the rendition of the judgment, to give jurisdiction. Lane v. Superior Court, 5 Cal. App. 762; 91 Pac. 405; McKeen v. Naughton, 88 Cal. 462; 26 Pac. 354. The time for filing the undertaking does not begin to run at the time of the rendition of the judgment: it begins to run at the time of the filing of the notice of appeal, and continues for five days after the filing of such notice. Rigby v. Superior Court, 162 Cal. 334; 122 Pac. 958. The filing and service of the notice of appeal is, in legal effect, a notice that, under the law, the appellant must file his undertaking within five days thereafter, to make his appeal prima facie effective. Jeffries Co. v. Superior Court, 13 Cal. App. 193; 109 Pac. 147. The undertaking must be filed within five days after the perfecting of the appeal. Stimpson Computing Scale Co. v. Superior Court, 12 Cal. App. 536; 107 Pac. 1013. As the notice of appeal, under § 974, ante, may be filed at any time within thirty days after the rendition of the judgment appealed from, it necessarily follows that the time for filing the undertaking does not stop with the expiration of such thirty days, but may, in some cases, be filed as much as five days after the thirty-day period has elapsed. Rigby v. Superior Court, 162 Cal. 334; 122 Pac. 958.

Filing of undertaking. The filing of a written undertaking on appeal from a judgment of a justice's court is a jurisdictional prerequisite to the appeal. McKeen v. Naughton, 88 Cal. 462; 26 Pac. 354. Under this section, it is not required that the undertaking on appeal shall be filed before or at the time of service and filing of the notice of appeal. Coker v. Superior Court, 58 Cal. 177. Where a notice of appeal from a judgment of a justice's court was filed one day after the service thereof, and the undertaking on appeal was filed four days after the filing of the notice, and these several acts were done within the time limited by statute, the appeal was regularly taken: the mere order in which the acts are done is not material. Hall v. Superior Court, 68 Cal. 24; 2 Pac. 509. Where the undertaking on appeal was delivered and left at the office of the justice of the peace within the statutory period of thirty days, but was not received nor marked "Filed" by him until two days after that time, the appeal will not be dismissed. Perkins v. Superior Court, 4 Cal. Unrep. 788; 37 Pac. 780.

Notice of filing. Notice of the filing of the undertaking must be given. Stimpson Computing Scale Co. v. Superior Court, 12 Cal. App. 536; 107 Pac. 1013. It is not a step in the perfecting of the appeal, but merely a part of the collateral proceeding to justify (Jeffries Co. v. Superior Court, 13 Cal. App. 193; 109 Pac. 147); nor is it essential to the jurisdiction of the superior court, of the appeal (Rigby v. Superior Court, 162 Cal. 334; 122 Pac. 958; Widrin v. Superior Court, 17 Cal. App. 93; 118 Pac. 550; Blake v. Superior Court, 17 Cal. App. 52; 118 Pac. 448; Jeffries v. Superior Court, 13 Cal. App. 193; 109 Pac. 147; but see Green v. Rogers, 18 Cal. App. 572; 123 Pac. 974); and the omission to give notice is a mere irregularity, as no time is fixed within which the notice is to be given, and no penalty is attached to the failure to give it. Blake v. Superior Court, 17 Cal. App. 51; 118 Pac. 448; Jeffries v. Superior Court, 13 Cal. App. 193; 109 Pac. 147.

Result of absence of undertaking. The superior court cannot, in the absence of any undertaking on appeal, take a deposit in lieu of a bond; nor can it take a new bond. Stimpson Computing Scale Co. v. Superior Court, 12 Cal. App. 536; 107 Pac. 1013; Bergevin v. Wood, 11 Cal. App. 643; 105 Pac. 935.

Exception to sureties. Exception to the sufficiency of the sureties upon the undertaking on appeal must be made within five days after the filing of the undertaking, without reference to any notice of its filing. Jeffries Co. v. Superior Court, 13 Cal. App. 193; 109 Pac. 147; Widrin v. Superior Court, 17 Cal. App. 93; 118 Pac. 550. A party excepting to the sufficiency of the sureties must file his notice of exception with the justice: no such exception is complete until such notice is filed; and where such notice has been filed, the justice should hold the papers for a further period of five days to allow justification to be made. Budd v. Superior Court, 14 Cal. App. 256; 111 Pac. 628. The objection to the sufficiency of the sureties may be waived, but such waiver must be made within the five days. Crowley Launch etc. Co. v. Superior Court, 10 Cal. App. 342; 101 Pac. 935.

Filing exception to sureties. The filing of an exception to the sureties, with a justice of the peace, after the appeal is taken, is not sufficient to require the sureties to justify, since such exception must be served on the appellant. Reynolds v. County Court, 47 Cal. 604.

Notice of justification. Notice for the justification of sureties, at a time more than five days after the service of the notice of exception to them, is ineffectual to confer jurisdiction of the appeal upon the superior court. Randall v. Superior Court, 19 Cal. App. 184; 124 Pac. 1058.

Justification. The adverse party is allowed five days after the filing of notice excepting to the sufficiency of sureties, within which to submit his sureties for the purpose of having them justify; and a justification within five days after the filing of the notice, though more than seven days after the service thereof, is in time. Budd v. Superior Court, 14 Cal. App. 256; 111 Pac. 628. After a case in the justices' court of the city and county of San Francisco has been assigned for trial to a particular justice thereof, the sureties on an undertaking, after due notice to the adverse party, may justify before any other justice of the same court. Werner v. Superior Court, 161 Cal. 209; 118 Pac. 709. The qualification by the sureties upon an undertaking for costs on appeal is, in the absence of exception, a full and complete justification. Jeffries Co. v. Superior Court, 13 Cal. App. 193; 109 Pac. 147. The justification of sureties on undertakings may be waived by the failure of the party excepting to appear at the time set for justification. Budd v. Superior Court, 14 Cal. App. 256; 111 Pac. 628; Blair v. Hamilton, 32 Cal. 49. A motion to dismiss an appeal from a justice's court to the superior court, because of the failure of sureties to justify, is properly denied, where the excepting party was not present at the time fixed for justification. Budd v. Superior Court, 14 Cal. App. 256; 111 Pac. 628. The justification of sureties after notice is not a necessary step in taking an appeal. Jeffries Co. v. Superior Court, 13 Cal. App. 193; 109 Pac. 147.

Effect of failure to justify. Where the sureties fail to justify in time, after they have been excepted to, the appeal must be regarded as if no undertaking had been given. Crowley Launch etc. Co. v. Superior Court, 10 Cal. App. 342; 101 Pac. 935; Lane v. Superior Court, 5 Cal. App. 762; 91 Pac. 405; McCracken v. Superior Court, 86 Cal. 74; 24 Pac. 845. The provision of this section, that unless the sureties justify within five days after an exception has been taken to their sufficiency, the appeal must be regarded as if no undertaking had been given, is to be construed, not as having the effect, ipso facto, of vacating an appeal already completed, but as giving to the respondent the right to move for its dismissal on the ground that since it was taken it had become ineffectual. Moffat v. Greenwalt, 90 Cal. 368; 27 Pac. 296. The sureties on an undertaking on appeal from a judgment of a justice's court are liable on their undertaking on the dismissal of the appeal, although they failed to justify. Moffat v. Greenwalt, 90 Cal. 368; 27 Pac. 296.

New undertaking. The superior court has power to authorize the appellant to file a new undertaking on appeal, in lieu of an undertaking insufficient in form. Gray v. Superior Court, 61 Cal. 337. Where the sufficiency of the sureties upon an undertaking on appeal from a justice's court is excepted to, the appeal cannot be perfected by filing a new undertaking, without notice to the adverse party. Wood v. Superior Court, 67 Cal. 115; 7 Pac. 200; Herting v. Superior Court, 10 Pac. 514. The signing of an undertaking on appeal, by a new surety, in place of one who fails to justify, does not render the undertaking sufficient, where he is not mentioned in the body of the undertaking, nor otherwise made a party thereto; and such defective undertaking cannot be made effective by the action of the superior court in allowing the appellant to file a new undertaking. Bennett v. Superior Court, 113 Cal. 440; 45 Pac. 808. A defective undertaking on appeal may be cured by the filing, in the superior court, of a sufficient undertaking, in pursuance of leave first obtained from that court. Werner v. Superior Court, 161 Cal. 209; 118 Pac. 709. A superior court has no jurisdiction to allow a new bond to be filed after it has dismissed an appeal. Bergevin v. Wood, 11 Cal. App. 643; 105 Pac. 935.

New undertaking on appeal to supreme court. See note ante, § 954.

Jurisdiction to order justification. An order requiring sureties to justify before the superior judge, where the court commissioner before whom they had justified had not taken the oath of office, is within the jurisdiction of the superior court. Gray v. Superior Court, 61 Cal. 337. The superior court has no power to extend the time within which the sureties on an undertaking on appeal from a judgment of a justice's court may justify; and § 1054, post, has no application in such case. McCracken v. Superior Court, 86 Cal. 74; 24 Pac. 845.

Waiver of justification. The failure of the respondent to appear at the time set for the justification of sureties, to whom he has excepted, is a waiver of such justification. Bank of Escondido v. Superior Court, 106 Cal. 43; 39 Pac. 211.

Justification of new sureties. The superior court, where a new undertaking is given on appeal thereto, may order the sureties to appear and justify before it. Gray v. Superior Court, 61 Cal. 337.

§ 979. Stay of proceedings on filing undertaking. If an execution be issued on the filing of the undertaking staying proceedings, the justice or judge must, by order, direct the officer to stay all proceedings on the same. Such officer must, upon payment of his fees for services rendered on the execution, thereupon relinquish all property levied upon and deliver the same to the judgment debtor, together with all moneys collected from sales or otherwise. If his fees be not paid, the officer may retain so much of the property or proceeds thereof as may be necessary to pay the same.

Legislation § 979. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872 (based on Practice Act, § 629), (1) omitting "all" before "proceedings," (2) inserting "or judge" after "justice," and (3) substituting "must" for "shall" after "officer."

2. Repealed by Code Amdts. 1880, p. 64, in repealing original code chapters IV and V, q.v., Legislation IV, V, post.

3. Re-enacted by Code Amdts. 1880, p. 17.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. An order staying execution cannot be reviewed on certiorari. Coulter v. Stark, 7 Cal. 244.

§ 980. Powers of superior court on appeal. Upon an appeal heard upon a statement of the case, the superior court may review all orders affecting the judgment appealed from, and may set aside, or confirm, or modify any or all of the proceedings subsequent to and dependent upon such judgment, and may, if necessary or proper, order a new trial. When the action is tried anew, on appeal, the trial must be conducted in all respects as other trials in the superior court. The provisions of this code as to changing the place of trial, and all the provisions as to trials in the superior court, are applicable to trials on appeal in the superior court. For a failure to prosecute an appeal, or unnecessary delay in bringing it to a hearing, the superior court, after notice, may order the appeal to be dismissed, with costs; and if it appear to such court that the appeal was made solely for delay, it may add to the costs such damages as may be just, not exceeding twenty-five per cent of the judgment appealed from. Judgments rendered in the superior court on appeal shall have the same force and effect and may be enforced in the same manner as judgments in actions commenced in the superior court.

Amendments. Ante, § 473.
Trial de novo. See ante, § 976.
New trial. Ante, §§ 656 et seq.

Legislation § 980. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872 (based on Practice Act, § 367, as amended by Stats. 1854, Redding ed. p. 66, Kerr ed. p. 93), (1) substituting (a) "a" for "the" (of Kerr's ed.; Redding prints the article "a") before "statement," (b) "such" for "said" before "judgment," (c) "must" for "shall" after "trial," (d) "code" for "act," and (e) "are" for "shall be" before "applicable"; (2) omitting "shall" after "appeal"; and (3) inserting "may" before "be enforced."

2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1880, p. 17, (1) in first sentence, changing "county" to "superior"; (2) in sentence beginning "When," (a) adding "other" before "trials," and (b) changing "district" to "superior"; (3) in sentence beginning "The provisions," (a) before "court," in first instance, changing "district" to "superior," and (b) in second instance, "county" to "superior"; (4) in sentence beginning "For," (a) changing "county" to "superior," and (b) adding, after "dismissed," the words "with costs; and if it appear to such court that the appeal was made solely for delay, it may add to the costs such damages as may be just, not exceeding twenty-five per cent of the judgment appealed from"; and (5) in sentence beginning "Judgments," (a) changing, before "court on appeal," "county" to "superior," (b) adding "shall" after "appeal," and (c) changing "district" to "superior" at end of section.

3. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 176; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

Constitutionality of section. An appeal from a justice's court to the superior court of the county in which the action was brought cannot be transferred for trial to the superior court of any other county; the provision of this section, purporting to authorize such a transfer, is in conflict with article VI, § 9, of the constitution. Luco v. Superior Court, 71 Cal. 555; 12 Pac. 677; and see Gross v. Superior Court, 71 Cal. 382; 12 Pac. 264.

Construction of section. The provision of this section, that, upon an appeal on questions of law alone, the superior court may review all orders affecting the judgment appealed from, and may set aside, or confirm, or modify, any or all of the proceedings subsequent to and dependent upon such judgment, and may, if necessary or proper, order a new trial, confers upon the superior court, plenary appellate jurisdiction, and there are no other provisions which limit it in the exercise of that jurisdiction. Maxson v. Superior Court, 124 Cal. 468; 57 Pac. 379.

Jurisdiction of superior court. The superior court acquires no jurisdiction of an appeal from a justice's court, where the undertaking on appeal was prematurely filed before the filing of the notice of appeal. Goodman v. Superior Court, 19 Cal. App. 457; 126 Pac. 185. A defendant, who, after appealing to the superior court upon questions of law and fact, seasonably challenges the jurisdiction of the court to try the action upon its merits, by reason of want of jurisdiction of the justice's court over the subject-matter of the action, appearing upon the face of the record, is entitled to a judgment or order dismissing the action for want of jurisdiction to try it upon its merits. Bartnett v. Hull, 19 Cal. App. 91; 124 Pac. 885. Parties cannot waive jurisdiction of the subject-matter, nor confer it by consent. Stimpson Computing Scale Co. v. Superior Court, 12 Cal. App. 536; 107 Pac. 1013. Where a justice of the peace has no jurisdiction of a case, but an appeal is taken to the superior court, and the case is there heard de novo, without objection to the jurisdiction, the judgment of the superior court cannot be questioned. Nolan v. Hentig, 138 Cal. 281; 71 Pac. 440; Bates v. Ferrier, 19 Cal. App. 79; 124 Pac. 889. Upon appeal from the judgment of a justice of the peace, the court of review may admit proof supplemental to the record, in aid of its jurisdiction. Los Angeles v. Young, 118 Cal. 295; 62 Am. St. Rep. 234; 50 Pac. 534.

What orders reviewable. The superior court may review all orders affecting the judgment appealed from. Baird v. Justice's Court, 11 Cal. App. 439; 105 Pac. 259; Hamberger v. Police Court, 12 Cal. App. 153; 106 Pac. 894; Clark v. Minnis, 50 Cal. 509. The superior court may review the order refusing to transfer the cause, and, in a proper case, may direct the justice to enter an order transferring the cause. Clark v. Minnis, 50 Cal. 509. An order of a justice of the peace, refusing to set aside a sale of property under execution, will be presumed to have been correct, unless the contrary appears; the action of the justice may be reviewed by the superior court upon an appeal from the judgment. Peterson v. Weissbein, 65 Cal. 42; 2 Pac. 730. An order of a justice of the peace, refusing to dissolve an attachment, is not reviewable in the superior court. Nail v. Superior Court, 11 Cal. App. 27; 103 Pac. 902.

Affirmance or reversal of judgment. Where, in an action in a justice's court, the defendant, who was served with the summons, but not with a copy of the complaint, appeared specially to move to set aside the service, and the motion was granted and judgment entered against the plaintiff, who took an appeal, and the defendant appeared specially in the superior court for the purpose of moving to dismiss the appeal, the superior court has jurisdiction only to affirm or reverse the judgment, and has no power to make the order in question. Southern Pacific R. R. Co. v. Superior Court, 59 Cal. 471. Where there has been no trial in fact, there is no evidence to be embodied in a statement of the case; but the superior court is authorized to reverse the judgment, if error appears in the copy of the justice's docket, or in the papers and files sent up from the justice's court. Miklanschutz v. Superior Court, 16 Cal. App. 227; 116 Pac. 376. Upon an appeal from an order setting aside the service of summons in a justice's court, the superior court cannot order a new trial, because the action has not been tried; the superior court, therefore, has jurisdiction merely to affirm or reverse the justice's judgment. Southern Pacific R. R. Co. v. Superior Court, 59 Cal. 471. Where an appeal is taken from a judgment of a justice of the peace, to the superior court, upon a question of law, upon a record showing that evidence was adduced by both parties, which clearly showed that the right of possession and title to the land mentioned in the plaintiff's case was involved, it is the duty of the superior court to reverse the judgment. King v. Kutner-Goldstein Co., 135 Cal. 65; 67 Pac. 10. Upon an appeal to the superior court upon a question of law alone, where there has been no trial of issues of fact, but the ruling of the justice's court, upon demurrer to the complaint, is held erroneous, the superior court, on reversing the cause, cannot retry the cause; but such reversal does not have the effect of dismissing the action, and the superior court may remand the cause, with instructions to the justice's court to overrule the demurrer, with leave to the plaintiff to amend if so advised. Maxson v. Superior Court, 124 Cal. 468; 57 Pac. 379.

New trial proper when. Where a nonsuit has been granted on the trial of an appeal from a justice's court, the superior court has jurisdiction to grant a new trial. Massman v. Superior Court, 71 Cal. 582; 12 Pac. 685. Upon an appeal from a judgment in a justice's court, setting aside a judgment previously rendered and dismissing the action, the superior court cannot affirm the judgment set aside, which was not appealed from and which has ceased to exist: its jurisdiction is limited to a review of the judgment appealed from, and if of the opinion that the court erred in vacating the previous judgment, it should reverse the judgment appealed from and order a new trial. Sherer v. Superior Court, 94 Cal. 354; 29 Pac. 716. Where an appeal to a superior court is based on questions of law alone, the proper procedure is to remand the cause for trial in the justice's court. Smith v. Superior Court, 2 Cal. App. 529; 84 Pac. 54. The superior court, upon an appeal on questions of law alone, has jurisdiction to review the rulings of the justice's court, and to remand the cause, with directions to the lower court to proceed in accordance with the decision of the appellate court. Maxson v. Superior Court, 124 Cal. 468; 57 Pac. 379. Upon an appeal from a judgment of a justice's court, taken on questions of both law and fact, the superior court has no authority to remand the cause to the justice's court for a trial de novo: it should proceed with the trial, and in case of refusal, it may be compelled to do so by mandamus. Acker v. Superior Court, 68 Cal. 245; 9 Pac. 109; 10 Pac. 416. An appeal from a judgment of a justice's court granting a nonsuit, though taken on questions of both law and fact, presents a question of law only, and the superior court, upon reversal, properly refused to grant a trial de novo, and remanded the case for a new trial. Smith v. Superior Court, 2 Cal. App. 529; 84 Pac. 54. The effect of a stipulation, in a justice's court, for a trial upon the merits, is to treat the case as at issue, and, after such a stipulation, the superior court has jurisdiction to vacate a judgment taken by default, and to remand the case to the justices' court for trial upon the merits. Miklauschutz v. Superior Court, 16 Cal. App. 226; 116 Pac. 376.

Trial de novo in the superior court. A new trial on appeal, on a question of law alone, is properly ordered to be had in the superior court. Curtis v. Superior Court, 63 Cal. 435; People v. Freelon, 8 Cal. 517. Where the want of jurisdiction of the justice's court appears upon the record transmitted to the superior court, the appellant's objection to the superior court's trying the case anew upon the merits is good, if seasonably made. Bates v. Ferrier, 19 Cal. App. 79; 124 Pac. 889. A new trial of a cause in the superior court on appeal cannot be had, unless there has been a trial of issues of fact in the justice's court. Maxson v. Superior Court, 124 Cal. 468; 57 Pac. 379; and see People v. County Court, 10 Cal. 19; Funkenstein v. Elgutter, 11 Cal. 328; Southern Pacific R. R. Co. v. Superior Court, 59 Cal. 471; Rickey v. Superior Court, 59 Cal. 661; Myrick v. Superior Court, 68 Cal. 98; 8 Pac. 648. Upon an appeal from a judgment of a justice's court, in favor of an intervener and the defendant, the plaintiff has the right not only to have the superior court pass upon the sufficiency of his demurrer to the complaint in intervention without any statement of the case, but also to have tried de novo all the issues of fact that were presented in the justice's court. Rossi v. Superior Court, 114 Cal. 371; 46 Pac. 177. The erroneous entry of a judgment of dismissal against the plaintiff does not deprive him of his right to appeal upon questions of both law and fact, so as to have his cause tried de novo in the superior court. Peacock v. Superior Court, 163 Cal. 701; 126 Pac. 976. After a trial upon the merits and a final judgment in the justice's court, an appeal on questions of law and fact will compel a trial de novo in the superior court. Smith v. Superior Court, 2 Cal. App. 529; 84 Pac. 54. Where an appeal is taken "on questions of fact" or "on questions of both law and fact," the action must be tried anew in the superior court. Armantage v. Superior Court, 1 Cal. App. 130; 81 Pac. 1033; Ketchum v. Superior Court, 65 Cal. 494; 4 Pac. 492. When an appeal from a justice's court is perfected, upon questions of both law and fact, the case is removed to the superior court for a trial de novo, and the superior court must try the case as if there had been no trial in the justice's court. Kraker v. Superior Court, 15 Cal. App. 651; 115 Pac. 663. It is the duty of the superior court, when an appeal to it has been duly perfected, to determine the case as if it had been commenced by the plaintiff therein. Rabin v. Pierce, 10 Cal. App. 734; 103 Pac. 771. Upon appeal from a justice's court, the trial in the superior court is anew, and must be conducted, in all respects, as other trials in the superior court. Nail v. Superior Court, 11 Cal. App. 27; 103 Pac. 902. All the provisions of this code, relative to the trial of cases which have been commenced within the original jurisdiction of the superior court, are made applicable to the trial de novo of cases within its appellate jurisdiction; therefore the allowance of amendments to pleadings is a matter within its discretion. Ketchum v. Superior Court, 65 Cal. 494; 4 Pac. 492. The power given to try the action anew does not give the superior court jurisdiction to review the action of the justice's court in an ancillary proceeding, such as an attachment, but the trial must be conducted in the superior court in all respects as other trials in the superior court; and the judgment rendered on the appeal has the same effect as if the action had been commenced in the superior court, and as if there had been no trial in the justice's court. Nail v. Superior Court, 11 Cal. App. 27; 103 Pac. 902. Where the superior court, without authority, dismisses an appeal taken to it from a justice's court, the order of dismissal may be annulled on writ of review, when the case will stand for trial de novo in the superior court. Kraker v. Superior Court, 15 Cal. App. 654; 115 Pac. 663.

Judgment necessary to appeal. The superior court has no jurisdiction of an appeal from a justice's court, in which there was a trial by jury, but no judgment had been entered in the docket in conformity with the verdict when the appeal was taken. June v. Superior Court, 16 Cal. App. 126; 116 Pac. 293.

Dismissal for delay in filing papers. The superior court has jurisdiction to adopt and enforce a rule that the record and transcript on appeal from a justice's court must be filed within ten days after the perfecting of the appeal, and that, in default thereof, the appeal will be dismissed on motion; and its order dismissing an appeal in conformity with such rule cannot be annulled upon certiorari. McKay v. Superior Court, 86 Cal. 431; 25 Pac. 10.

For failure to perfect or prosecute appeal. The power of the superior court to dismiss an appeal with costs, etc., applies only to cases wherein there was a failure technically to perfect the appeal; and where an appeal has not been properly perfected, all that the superior court can do is to dismiss it. Rabin v. Pierce, 10 Cal. App. 734; 103 Pac. 771.

Dismissal for failure to prosecute appeal. A failure to produce in the appellate court a duly certified copy of the docket of the justice of the peace, is a failure to prosecute the appeal, within the meaning of this section, and is a ground for the dismissal of the appeal. People v. Elkins, 40 Cal. 642. Where the defendant has appealed to the justice's court, on questions of law and fact, the superior court is without jurisdiction to dismiss the appeal for want of prosecution, and to render a judgment for the plaintiff below. Kraker v. Superior Court, 15 Cal. App. 651; 115 Pac. 663. The superior court has no power to dismiss an appeal for want of prosecution by the appellant. Rabin v. Pierce, 10 Cal. App. 734; 103 Pac. 771.

Municipal court could dismiss. The municipal court of appeals had jurisdiction to dismiss appeals from justices' courts (Alexander v. Municipal Court, 2 Cal. Unrep. 390; 4 Pac. 961); and it had power to dismiss an appeal for failure to prosecute it; and such dismissal, although erroneous, could not be reviewed on certiorari. Alexander v. Municipal Court, 66 Cal. 387; 5 Pac. 675.

Effect of dismissal. Where a premature appeal is dismissed by the superior court, although the motion was not made upon that ground, it cannot be compelled to proceed with the trial of the case (June v. Superior Court, 16 Cal. App. 126; 116 Pac. 293); but where the superior court erroneously dismisses an appeal on the theory that it has no jurisdiction, mandamus lies to compel it to hear and decide the cause. Peacock v. Superior Court, 163 Cal. 701; 126 Pac. 976; Blake v. Superior Court, 17 Cal. App. 51; 118 Pac. 448; Widrin v. Superior Court, 17 Cal. App. 93; 118 Pac. 550. The superior court can vacate its erroneous order of dismissal. Edwards v. Superior Court, 159 Cal. 710; 115 Pac. 649.

Papers not returnable to justice. Where the papers upon appeal have once been properly filed in the superior court, the justice has no power to recall them for any purpose; nor has the superior court any authority to cause the papers to be returned to the justice. Budd v. Superior Court, 14 Cal. App. 256; 111 Pac. 628.

Transmission of judgment. A certified copy of the judgment of the superior court, rendered upon an appeal, including its directions to the justice's court, is sufficient for the transmission of the judgment to the justice's court. Maxson v. Superior Court, 124 Cal. 468; 57 Pac. 379.

Petition for rehearing. A petition for a rehearing, after a judgment rendered upon an appeal from a justice's court, is unknown to the law, or to the practice of the superior court. Fabretti v. Superior Court, 77 Cal. 305; 19 Pac. 481.

Prohibition. An appeal from a justice's court will not be disturbed on prohibition, where the superior court has jurisdiction. Budd v. Superior Court, 14 Cal. App. 256; 111 Pac. 628.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. Cullen v. Langridge, 17 Cal. 67; People v. Harris, 9 Cal. 573; Hunter v. Hoole, 17 Cal. 418; Escolle v. Merle, 9 Cal. 94; Cunningham v. Hopkins, 8 Cal. 33.

§ 981. Fees payable on filing appeal. No appeal taken from a judgment rendered in a police or justice court in civil matters shall be effectual for any purpose whatever unless the appellant shall, at the time of filing the notice of appeal, pay in addition to the fee payable to the justice of the peace on appeal, the fees provided by law to be paid to the county clerk for filing the appeal and for placing the action on the calendar in the superior court. Upon transmitting the papers on appeal, the justice or judge shall transmit to the county clerk the sum thus deposited for filing the appeal in the superior court and for placing the action on the calendar. No notice of appeal shall be filed unless the fees herein provided for are paid in accordance with the provisions of this section.

CHAPTER I.

PROCEEDINGS AGAINST JOINT DEBTORS.

§ 989. Parties not summoned in action on joint contract may be summoned after judgment.
§ 990. Summons in that case, what to contain, and how served.
§ 991. Affidavit to accompany summons.
§ 992. Answer. What it may contain.
§ 993. What constitute the pleadings in the case.
§ 994. Issues, how tried. Verdict, what to be.

§ 989. Parties not summoned in action on joint contract may be summoned after judgment. When a judgment is recovered against one or more of several persons, jointly indebted upon an obligation, by proceeding as provided in section four hundred and fourteen, those who are not originally served with the summons, and did not appear to the action, may be summoned to show cause why they should not be bound by the judgment, in the same manner as though they had been originally served with the summons.

Cognate provisions. Ante, §§ 383, 414, 579.

Joining persons severally liable upon instrument. Ante, § 383.

Summons served on one defendant out of several, plaintiff may proceed against him alone. Ante, § 414.

Judgment against some defendants, proceeding continuing against others. Ante, § 579.

Release of one joint debtor does not discharge others. Civ. Code, § 1543.

Legislation § 989. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 368 (New York Code, § 375), substituting "four hundred and fourteen" for "thirty-two."

Construction of chapter. An action under this chapter is really an action on the original joint contract, and matters of defense in respect to the judgment are merely incidental to the action. Tay v. Hawley, 39 Cal. 93. Proceedings under this chapter, for the purpose of binding a partner by a judgment recovered against his copartner, are in the nature of an action upon a judgment; and neither the pleadings nor the judgment in the original action can be amended. Waterman v. Lipman, 67 Cal. 26; 6 Pac. 875; Cooper v. Burch, 140 Cal. 548; 74 Pac. 37. Proceedings under this chapter furnish the exclusive mode by which a defendant, who was not served with summons, can be bound by the judgment, and they necessarily imply that he is not already bound, and he is not a proper party to an action on judgment. Were it not for this statute, no action could be maintained against him on the original contract, for the reason that it would be merged in the first judgment, and the merger is restrained only for the purpose and to the extent of enabling the proceedings to be had as prescribed in this statute. These provisions would be useless if an action could be maintained on the judgment against a defendant not served in the former action. Tay v. Hawley, 39 Cal. 93.

Defendants not served, how bound by judgment. A judgment against the defendants served in an action against several defendants jointly may be entered, and those not served may be brought in and bound by proceedings under this chapter. Roberts v. Donovan, 70 Cal. 108; 9 Pac. 180. Where a judgment is rendered against a party upon several promissory notes signed by him, and one of the notes is also signed by two other persons, who are made parties defendant, but who were not served with process and do not appear, such other persons may be brought into court to show cause why they should not be bound by the judgment, to the extent of the note which they signed, and they may be declared bound by it. Sneath v. Griffin, 48 Cal. 438.

Jurisdiction over joint debtor. The jurisdiction that a court acquires over a joint debtor not served, after a judgment against other joint debtors, is limited to an order for him to show cause why he should not be bound to the same extent as his co-obligors, by the judgment already entered against them. Cooper v. Burch, 140 Cal. 548; 74 Pac. 37; and see Tay v. Hawley, 39 Cal. 93. Under this section, when a judgment is recovered against one or more of several persons, jointly indebted upon an obligation, those not originally served may be brought in and bound by the judgment already entered against their co-obligors. Melander v. Western National Bank, 21 Cal. App. 462; 132 Pac. 265.

Right of incoming defendant to plead. A demurrer to the original complaint by an incoming defendant is not provided for by statute, and the defendant is, in express terms, denied the right to plead the statute of limitations; and this is perfectly proper, if the complaint is to remain intact for all purposes, but no good reason can be suggested for it, if it might be amended, because, as the amendment might change the cause of action from a suit upon a written instrument to one on parol contract, an opportunity would then, for the first time, be open either to the defendant or his co-obligors to avail themselves of the benefit of the statute. Cooper v. Burch, 140 Cal. 548; 74 Pac. 37.

Judgment against alleged copartners. Proceedings under this chapter, for the purpose of binding a partner by a judgment recovered against his copartner, are in the nature of an action upon a judgment; and neither the pleadings nor the judgment in the original action can be amended. Waterman v. Lipman, 67 Cal. 26; 6 Pac. 875. In a suit against two defendants, alleged to be copartners, in which summons is served on one only, a judgment against the other cannot be rendered: the remedy of the plaintiff is by proceedings under this chapter. Feder v. Epstein, 69 Cal. 456; 10 Pac. 785. A judgment recovered in a sister state, against several defendants as copartners, directing that it be enforced against the joint property of all the defendants, and against the separate property of one, who was the only one served, is not void as to such defendant, and action may be maintained thereon in this state. Stewart v. Spaulding, 72 Cal. 264; 13 Pac. 661.

Judgment against joint debtors. See note post, § 994.

Effect of judgment against co-trespasser as bar to action against others. See note 54 Am. Dec. 205.

Effect of judgment against one joint tort-feasor upon liability of the other. See note 58 L. R. A. 410.

Validity and effect as against defendant not personally served within the state of a judgment in personam against joint debtors. See note 35 L. R. A. (N. S.) 312.

§ 990. Summons in that case, what to contain, and how served. The summons, as provided in the last section, must describe the judgment, and require the person summoned to show cause why he should not be bound by it, and must be served in the same manner, and returnable within the same time, as the original summons. It is not necessary to file a new complaint.

Summons, contents, service, etc., of. Ante, §§ 407, 410 et seq.

Legislation § 990. Enacted March 11, 1872 (based on Practice Act, § 369), substituting (1) "must" for "shall," in both instances, and (2) "is not" for "shall not be," in the last sentence.

Due process in service on joint debtors. See note 50 L. R. A. 595.

§ 991. Affidavit to accompany summons. The summons must be accompanied by an affidavit of the plaintiff, his agent, representative, or attorney, that the judgment, or some part thereof, remains unsatisfied, and must specify the amount due thereon.

Legislation § 991. Enacted March 11, 1872 (based on Practice Act, § 370), substituting (1) "must" for "should," and (2) "must" for "shall."

§ 992. Answer. What it may contain. Upon such summons, the defendant may answer within the time specified therein, denying the judgment, or setting up any defense which may have arisen subsequently; or he may deny his liability on the obligation upon which the judgment was recovered, by reason of any defense existing at the commencement of the action.

Answer, generally. Ante, § 437.

Legislation § 992. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872 (based on Practice Act, § 371), changing "limitation" to "limitations."

2. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 176; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

3. Amended by Stats. 1907, p. 600, substituting "by reason of any defense existing at the commencement of the action" for "except a discharge from such liability by the statute of limitations"; the code commissioner saying, "This removes the prohibition against the pleading of the statute of limitations if that defense existed at the commencement of the action."

§ 993. What constitute the pleadings in the case. If the defendant, in his answer, denies the judgment, or sets up any defense which may have arisen subsequently, the summons, with the affidavit annexed, and the answer, constitute the written allegations in the case; if he denies his liability on the obligation upon which the judgment was recovered, a copy of the original complaint and judgment, the summons, with the affidavit annexed, and the answer, constitute such written allegations, subject to the right of the parties to amend their pleadings as in other cases.

Legislation § 993. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872 (based on Practice Act, § 372), omitting "shall" before "constitute," in both instances.

2. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 177; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

3. Amended by Stats. 1907, p. 600, (1) substituting (a) "denies" for "deny," in both instances, and (b) "sets" for "set"; and (3) adding "subject to the right of the parties to amend their pleadings as in other cases"; the code commissioner saying, "thus entitling the parties to amend their pleadings as in other cases and changing the rule adopted in Waterman v. Lippman, 67 Cal. 26."

§ 994. Issues, how tried. Verdict, what to be. The issues formed may be tried as in other cases; but when the defendant denies, in his answer, any liability on the obligation upon which the judgment was rendered, if a verdict be found against him, it must be for not exceeding the amount remaining unsatisfied on such original judgment, with interest thereon.

Trial. Ante, §§ 607–645.

Legislation § 994. Enacted March 11, 1872 (based on Practice Act, § 373), (1) substituting "must" for "shall," and (2) inserting "not exceeding" before "the amount."

Judgment. After a judgment against joint debtors, the only judgment that can be rendered against a joint debtor appearing after judgment is one for such an amount as remains unsatisfied on the original judgment. Cooper v. Burch, 140 Cal. 548; 74 Pac. 37.

CHAPTER II.

OFFER OF DEFENDANT TO COMPROMISE.

§ 997. Proceedings on offer of the defendant to compromise after suit brought.

§ 997. Proceedings on offer of the defendant to compromise after suit brought. The defendant may, at any time before the trial or judgment, serve upon the plaintiff an offer to allow judgment to be taken against him for the sum or property, or to the effect therein, specified. If the plaintiff accept the offer, and give notice thereof within five days, he may file the offer, with proof of notice of acceptance, and the clerk must thereupon enter judgment accordingly. If the notice of acceptance be not given, the offer is to be deemed withdrawn, and cannot be given in evidence upon the trial; and if the plaintiff fail to obtain a more favorable judgment, he cannot recover costs, but must pay the defendant's costs from the time of the offer.

Offer.
1. Not an admission. Post, § 2078.
2. Equivalent to tender. Post, § 2074.
Compare ante, § 895.
Judgment by confession. Post, § 1132.

Legislation § 997. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 390 (New York Code, § 385), (1) substituting (a) "must" for "shall" before "thereupon" and before "pay," and (b) "is to" for "shall" before "be deemed," and (2) "cannot" for "shall not," in both instances.

2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1873–74, p. 342, (1) substituting "the offer, with proof," for "the summons, complaint, and offer, with an affidavit," and (2) inserting "upon the trial" after "evidence."

3. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 177; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

Construction of section. The true meaning of this section, authorizing the clerk to enter judgment upon an offer on the part of the defendant to suffer judgment for a specified sum, is, that he can enter judgment only where the offer is made after action is brought by the filing of the complaint, and while pending; and where a party hands to the clerk the complaint, offer of judgment, and notice of acceptance of the offer, at the same time, and the clerk thereupon enters judgment, it is void, and not merely irregular; to hold otherwise would simply be to hold that the safeguards which the law has thrown around confessions of judgment by a debtor, and which cautionary provisions are for the security of creditors, are nugatory. Crane v. Hirshfelder, 17 Cal. 582. The clear meaning of this section is, that the plaintiff shall have five days in which to consider the proposal made by the defendant, and if, in the meantime, without acceptance by the plaintiff in the manner prescribed, the trial shall have regularly progressed and been concluded, the offer of compromise, as against the plaintiff, simply goes for naught. Scammon v. Denio, 72 Cal. 393; 14 Pac. 98.

Time of making offer. The plaintiff may proceed to trial on the day set, without regard to the defendant's offer, where such offer is made within five days prior to the time, as at that time the offer is of no avail, and the defendant cannot, by making the offer on the eve of trial, when plaintiff is all prepared, and his expenses nearly all incurred, compel him, on the spur of the moment, to determine whether he shall yield a part of what he may consider a just and legal claim, or run the hazard of losing all his costs and necessary disbursements, and having judgment against him for the costs of the other party. Scammon v. Denio, 72 Cal. 393; 14 Pac. 98.

Manner of making offer. In an action of tort, the defendant has the right to offer to permit the plaintiff to take judgment in a specified sum, but should not accompany his pleading of tender with explanatory, apologetic, or extenuating matters in no way going to the defense of the action. Basler v. Sacramento Gas etc. Co., 158 Cal. 514; 111 Pac. 530. In an action brought to recover state and county taxes, the clerk of the superior court has no power, notwithstanding an order of court, to enter a judgment for a single sum, which is less than the amount alleged in the complaint to be due for state tax, county tax, penalties, etc.; and the district attorney, by accepting an offer to allow a judgment for less than the amount fixed by the state board, cannot estop the state from claiming such amount; but where the action is brought to recover several sums to be specified in the judgment, an offer may be made to allow judgment for one of such sums, or for sums less than the respective sums claimed in the complaint, but in order to authorize the clerk to enter a judgment for the amounts named in the offer, it must be specified in the offer in what sum judgment will be allowed for state and in what sum for county taxes. Sacramento County v. Central Pacific R. R. Co., 61 Cal. 250.

Tender made to whom. A tender, pending suit, may be made to the opposite party personally, and need not be made to his attorney, whose authority to control the suit does not preclude such tender. Ferrea v. Tubbs, 125 Cal. 687; 58 Pac. 308.

Effect of refusal of tender. A tender of the amount due on a debt secured by mortgage, made after the debt falls due, does not release the lien of the mortgage; if the tender was made in good faith, and was intended to be kept good, the mortgagor could have paid the money into court on the commencement of a proceeding to compel the mortgagee to accept it, and to satisfy the mortgage. Himmelmann v. Fitzpatrick, 50 Cal. 650. The refusal by the plaintiff, pending his appeal from a judgment, of a valid tender made to him by the defendant, operates as a release by the plaintiff, as judgment creditor, of all interest which would otherwise have accrued thereon after the date of the tender. Ferrea v. Tubbs, 125 Cal. 687; 58 Pac. 308. Where a tender is made of the full amount due, before suit is brought, which tender is kept good and brought into court, the judgment should be for the plaintiff for the amount tendered, and for the defendant for costs. Curiac v. Abadie, 25 Cal. 502. In an action to enforce the specific performance of an agreement to issue stock, where the defendant, before suit, tenders such stock as the court finds it was, under the terms of contract, to deliver, and keeps such tender good, judgment should be for the plaintiff for such stock, and for the defendant for costs. Williams v. Ashurst Oil etc. Co., 144 Cal. 619; 78 Pac. 28.

Offer to accept less than full amount revoked how. An offer of the obligee to accept, in full satisfaction, less than the amount due him, made before the commencement of the suit on the obligation, is revoked by the commencement of the suit, if not accepted before that time. Peachy v. Witter, 131 Cal. 316; 63 Pac. 468.

Agreement to settle. An agreement to settle a claim upon which suit has not been begun, is not supported by a sufficient consideration, when the party seeking to enforce it knew his claim to be groundless, and did not assert it in good faith. Snowball v. Snowball, 164 Cal. 476; 129 Pac. 784.

Duty of clerk in entering judgment. In entering judgments, the clerk acts merely in a ministerial capacity: he must follow closely the forms provided by law for the exercise of the power conferred upon him, or his acts are invalid. Old Settlers Investment Co. v. White, 158 Cal. 236; 110 Pac. 922.

Recovery of costs. A defendant, who pleads a tender, to entitle himself to costs, must not only aver a tender, but also aver that he has always been and is ready to pay the sum tendered, and the money must be brought into court. Bryan v. Maume, 28

Cal. 238. The failure of the plaintiff to accept an offer of compromise does not preclude him from the right to recover costs, although the judgment rendered in his favor is for a less amount than the offer, if the trial is concluded within five days after the offer was made. Scammon v. Denio, 72 Cal. 393; 14 Pac. 98. The plaintiff may recover costs accruing in his favor before an offer of judgment by the defendant, although he may recover a less favorable judgment than was offered. Douthitt v. Finch, 84 Cal. 214; 24 Pac. 929. Where a plaintiff, after the refusal of an offer to compromise, recovers a judgment within the superior court's jurisdiction, but less than the amount offered, he is not entitled to costs. Murphy v. Casey, 13 Cal. App. 781; 110 Pac. 956.

Right to attorneys' fees. An insufficient tender, in an answer to an action to foreclose a mortgage, cannot defeat the right to attorneys' fees. McCoy v. Buckley, 11 Cal. App. 241; 104 Pac. 705.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. The cognovit was good as an admission in pais after answer filed. It might be different if the cognovit was set aside by the court upon good cause shown. If judgment had been entered upon the cognovit, and by its authority, then the amount acknowledged would have been the sum of the judgment. But where, upon declaration and answer denying the facts alleged, the acknowledgment is used as evidence, interest may be given by way of damages. Hirschfield v. Franklin, 6 Cal. 609. We think that the true meaning of the statute authorizing judgment to be entered by the clerk upon an offer on the part of the defendant to suffer judgment for a specified sum, etc., is that judgment can be entered only when the offer is made after action is brought and while pending. To hold that a party may make out a complaint, and then get the defendant to acknowledge service, and to offer to pay all or a portion of an assumed demand, and then for the plaintiff to file these papers as parts of an entire arrangement with the clerk and have him enter judgment, which would be binding, is simply to hold that the safeguards which the law has thrown around confessions of judgment by a debtor, and which cautionary provisions are for the security of creditors, are nugatory. A judgment entered under such circumstances would be void, and not merely irregular. This case is distinguished from the case of Patrick v. Montader, 13 Cal. 434, which was a case of mere irregularity not affecting the jurisdiction. Crane v. Hirshfelder, 17 Cal. 584.

CHAPTER III.

INSPECTION OF WRITINGS.

§ 1000. A party may demand inspection and copy of a book, paper, etc.

§ 1000. A party may demand inspection and copy of a book, paper, etc. Any court in which an action is pending, or a judge thereof may, upon notice, order either party to give to the other, within a specified time, an inspection and copy, or permission to take a copy, of entries of accounts in any book, or of any document or paper in his possession, or under his control, containing evidence relating to the merits of the action, or the defense therein. If compliance with the order be refused, the court may exclude the entries of accounts of the book, or the document, or paper from being given in evidence, or if wanted as evidence by the party applying, may direct the jury to presume them to be such as he alleges them to be; and the court may also punish the party refusing for a contempt. This section is not to be construed to prevent a party from compelling another to produce books, papers, or documents when he is examined as a witness.

Items of an account. Ante, § 454.
Compelling production of books, etc. Post, §§ 1985 et seq. See also post, §§ 1938, 1939.
Contempt. Post, §§ 1209 et seq.

Legislation § 1000. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872: based on Practice Act, § 446 (New York Code § 388), substituting "is" for "shall" in last sentence.

2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1873–74, p. 342, (1) substituting "entries of accounts in any book, or of any document" for "any book, document"; (2) inserting "the entries of accounts of" after "exclude"; (3) inserting "or the" before "document," in second sentence; and (3) substituting "them" for "it" after "resume" and after "alleges."

3. Amended by Code Amdts. 1880, p. 72, omitting "or a county judge," after "or a judge thereof," in first line.

Construction of section. The only provision in this code, in the nature of a bill of discovery, other than §§ 1459, 1460, post, applying to probate proceedings, is contained in this section. Levy v. Superior Court, 105 Cal. 600; 29 L. R. A. 811; 38 Pac. 965. This section cannot be so used as to draw a drag-net of inspection through all the books of the other party, under the ostensible motive of trying to catch something which the other side had testified was not there, in the mean time exposing all the private business of the defendant, his dealings with persons other than the plaintiff, his method of conducting his affairs, perhaps his financial condition, and other matters vitally important to his welfare: there is no warrant in law for such a forcible violation of a person's privacy. Ex parte Clarke, 126 Cal. 235; 77 Am. St. Rep. 176; 46 L. R. A. 835; 58 Pac. 546.

Showing required to obtain order. There must be a substantial showing that the document or book sought for contains material evidence in favor of the party asking for it: an inquisitorial examination was not contemplated by the framers of the statute. Ex parte Clarke, 126 Cal. 235; 77 Am. St. Rep. 176; 46 L. R. A. 835; 58 Pac. 546.

Order granted when. Originally, an order for the production of a paper, document, or book was made only when the document was one declared on in the bill or set up as a defense, or where the party asking for it had an interest in the document itself, as where it was a contract between the parties and only one copy existed, or where the instrument was, in the very nature of things, material evidence, as where it was alleged to be forged or altered, and that it would on its face show the facts alleged, or where the books belonged to both parties, as in a suit between partners, or principal and agent, or trustee and beneficiary; but, afterwards, such orders were extended so as to include other grounds for the production of papers, but the principles applicable generally to the forced production of papers are as above stated. Ex parte Clarke, 126 Cal. 235; 77 Am. St. Rep. 176; 46 L. R. A. 835; 58 Pac. 546.

Undue inquisition. A court is bound to protect a party against undue inquisition into his affairs; and it would be difficult to imagine a more striking instance of undue inquisition than an order compelling a defendant to produce for inspection all his books, upon the mere suspicion, against positive evidence to the contrary, that they might possibly contain some evidence favorable to the plaintiff, and without pointing to any particular part of the books over which this suspicion was supposed to hover. Ex parte Clarke, 126 Cal. 235; 77 Am. St. Rep. 176; 46 L. R. A. 835; 58 Pac. 546.

Inspection of original documents. Where the defendant has forgotten the execution of the instruments alleged, or doubts the correctness of their description or copy in the complaint, he should, before answering, take the requisite steps to obtain an inspection of the original. Curtis v. Richards, 9 Cal. 34. Whether a copy of the contract upon which an action is based is or is not set forth in the complaint, the defendant may always demand and obtain an inspection of the original by pursuing the course prescribed in this section; and if, upon such inspection, it appears that the complaint misrepresents the contract, or has omitted a substantial part of it, such misrepresentation or omission is a matter of defense, but it is not available as a ground of general demurrer, because it does not appear upon the face of the complaint. Byrne v. Luning Co., 4 Cal. Unrep. 895; 38 Pac. 454. Where deeds or other documents have been admitted in evidence, the opposing counsel have a right to inspect them at any time during the progress of the trial: it will not be inferred on appeal that no damage resulted from a refusal to permit such inspection. Pope v. Dalton, 40 Cal. 638. Copies of records, called for in the taking of a deposition, in which such copies are incorporated, are as admissible as any other part of the deposition, without a production of the original records. Madera Ry. Co. v. Raymond Granite Co., 3 Cal. App. 668; 87 Pac. 27.

Production of documents by witness. The production of documents by a witness, when his examination discloses the possession of or control over the same, is within the meaning of the last sentence of this section. Morehouse v. Morehouse, 136 Cal. 332; 68 Pac. 976.

Power to compel production of books and papers. See note 41 Am. St. Rep. 388.

Effect of calling for and inspecting document to make it admissible in evidence. See note 33 L. R. A. (N. S.) 552.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. A court may order a party to produce books and papers before the court. Barnstead v. Empire Mining Co., 5 Cal. 299. The opposing counsel have the right to inspect, at any time during the progress of the trial, all papers, books, deeds, or other documents which have been admitted in evidence. Pope v. Dalton, 40 Cal. 638.

CHAPTER IV.

MOTIONS AND ORDERS.

§ 1003. Order and motion defined.
§ 1004. Motions and orders, where made.
§ 1005. Notice of motion. When must be given.
§ 1006. Transfer of motions and orders to show cause.
§ 1007. Order for payment of money, how enforced.

§ 1003. Order and motion defined. Every direction of a court or judge, made or entered in writing, and not included in a judgment, is denominated an order. An application for an order is a motion.

Motion.

1. Heard before court commissioners. Ante, § 259, subd. 1.
2. Notice of. Post, § 1005.

Order.

1. Enforcement. Ante, § 128, subd. 4.
2. Final effect of, as estoppel. Post, § 1908.
3. Renewing application for. Ante, §§ 182, 183.
4. Vacating. Ante, § 937.

Legislation § 1003. Enacted March 11, 1872; re-enactment of Practice Act, § 515 (New York Code, § 400).

Construction of section. In the enactment of this section there was no intention of abolishing the power of a court of equity to pronounce what in equity practice was called an interlocutory decree or decretal order, but only to provide that that which finally determined the rights of the parties should be called a judgment, and that every other direction of a court or judge, made or entered in writing, should be denominated an order. Thompson v. White, 63 Cal. 505.

Conflict of sections. No prohibition of such intermediate determinations by a court of equity as the exigencies of a case may demand is made by this section, and it is not in conflict with § 187, ante. Thompson v. White, 63 Cal. 505.

Order, defined and illustrated. In a legal sense, an order means a decision given in an action pending, and during the progress thereof. Nellis v. Justices' Court, 20 Cal. App. 394; 129 Pac. 472. An order, as distinguished from a final judgment, is the judgment or conclusion of the court upon any motion or proceeding. Estate of Rose, 80 Cal. 166; 22 Pac. 86. An order is the judgment or conclusion of the court or judge upon any motion or proceeding, and includes cases where affirmative relief is granted, or where relief is denied. Gilman v. Contra Costa County, 8 Cal. 52; 68 Am. Dec. 290. An order is a decision made during the progress of the cause, either prior or subsequent to final judgment, settling some point of practice, or some question collateral to the main issue presented by the pleadings, and necessary to be disposed of before such issue can be passed upon by the court, or necessary to be determined in carrying into execution the final judgment. Loring v. Illsley, 1 Cal. 24; Estate of Smith, 98 Cal. 636; 33 Pac. 744. The action of the court upon the demand for a change of the place of trial is an order. Bohn v. Bohn, 16 Cal. App. 182; 116 Pac. 568. A paper signed by the justices of the supreme court, extending the time to file a transcript, is an order of court, before the filing thereof. Desmond v. Faus, 83 Cal. 134; 23 Pac. 303. An order of sale of mortgaged premises, for the entire debt, after its maturity, made upon motion after judgment of foreclosure and sale, is an order made after judgment. Byrne v. Hoag, 126 Cal. 283; 58 Pac. 688. A judgment refusing to admit a will to probate is not a final judgment, but an order of the court, and an order subsequent thereto is not an order made after final judgment. Estate of Smith, 98 Cal. 636; 33 Pac. 744. A mere memorandum, entered in the rough minutes of the clerk, is not an order. Brownell v. Superior Court, 157 Cal. 703; 109 Pac. 91. A ruling made during the progress of a trial, either admitting or excluding evidence, is not an order, within the meaning of this section. McGuire v. Drew, 83 Cal. 225; 23 Pac. 312. A mere declaration by the judge, that an injunction is no longer in force, not being a "direction," does not constitute an "order." Devlin v. Rydberg, 132 Cal. 324; 64 Pac. 396. An order is not a judgment. Scott v. Shields, 8 Cal. App. 12; 96 Pac. 385. An interlocutory decree is an order, and not a judgment, in so far that, except where expressly provided by statute, an appeal does not lie, but it may be reviewed upon an appeal from the judgment. Watson v. Sutro, 77 Cal. 609; 20 Pac. 88. An interlocutory decree settling the account of an administrator, is not a final judgment, but a mere order. Estate of Rose, 80 Cal. 166; 22 Pac. 86. An order of a justice of the peace, under proceedings supplementary to execution, requiring the judgment debtor to apply designated property to the satisfaction of the judgment, does not constitute a judgment, within the meaning of § 974, ante. Wells v. Torrance, 119 Cal. 437; 51 Pac. 626.

Character of order as determined by its contents. The character of the court's action or direction is to be determined by the nature of the action itself, considered in the light of the authority of the court in the premises, rather than by what it is designated by the court: a direction for a further sale of mortgaged premises, under § 728, ante, is an order, although designated by the court a "decree of foreclosure and order of sale." Byrne v. Hoag, 126 Cal. 283; 58 Pac. 688. Where an order, required to be made by the court, is entitled and filed in the court, and bears the seal of the court, it will not be considered as an order of the judge at chambers, although in drafting the order the judge employs the introductory phrase, "It appearing to me," and in the testatum clause says, "In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand," etc. Oaks v. Rodgers, 48 Cal. 197.

Ex parte orders. The substitution of an executor, upon the suggestion of the death of a party to the action, may be made upon an ex parte application. Campbell v. West, 93 Cal. 653; 29 Pac. 219. An ex parte order allowing an intervention may be properly made. Kimball v. Richardson-Kimball Co., 111 Cal. 386; 43 Pac. 1111.

Discretion of court in making order. Where the allowance of an order rests in the discretion of the court, the exercise of the power must, in a great degree, depend upon the special circumstances of the case, and be so governed as to prevent delays and to promote justice; and where no meritorious defense is asserted, and no leave to answer is asked, in the court be low, the appellate court will not reverse the judgment and open the case for another trial. Thornton v. Borland, 12 Cal. 439.

Jurisdiction presumed. Where a court makes an order, and it does not appear upon the face of the record that it did not have jurisdiction to make it, it will be presumed, in a collateral attack, that the parties were before the court, and that the proper proceedings were had to authorize the court to make the order. Clark v. Sawyer, 48 Cal. 133.

Entry of orders. The order of the court should be entered in such terms as to express with precision the object to be attained. Jenkins v. Frink, 27 Cal. 337. It is the duty of the clerk to enter the motion, and the order made thereon, in the minutes of the court, and the entry should state, in substance, the grounds on which the motion is based, as stated by counsel making it, but these grounds need not, in all cases, be entered in full in the minutes; and if counsel refers to any document filed in the case for a statement of the grounds of the motion, the entry may, and for the sake of brevity should, refer to the same document. Williams v. Hawley, 144 Cal. 97; 77 Pac. 762. An order to the clerk to enter in the minutes, nunc pro tunc, an order alleged to have been made in open court, cannot properly be made by the judge at chambers, where there is nothing in the record to show that such order was made. Hegeler v. Henckell, 27 Cal. 491. An order nunc pro tunc may be made to correct a mistake in failing to enter an order which was actually made, or which should have been made as a matter of course; but an omission to make an order dispensing with an appeal bond cannot be supplied by an order nunc pro tunc after the time for making it has elapsed. Estate of Skerrett, 80 Cal. 62; 22 Pac. 85. Where an order appealed from was actually made, but was not entered upon the record, the appellate court may grant leave to have an order entered nunc pro tunc certified up, and if it appears to be the proper order, it is sufficient. Lee Chuck v. Quan Wo Chong Co., 81 Cal. 222; 15 Am. St. Rep. 50; 22 Pac. 594. The proof of service of summons may be amended, after judgment entered, by inserting a fact omitted from the affidavit, and order allowing such amendment entered nunc pro tunc as of a date before judgment. Woodward v. Brown, 119 Cal. 283; 63 Am. St. Rep. 108; 51 Pac. 2. The court has jurisdiction to have an order entered nunc pro tunc, substituting parties plaintiff; and its action in making such order is conclusive against any collateral attack. Crim v. Kessing, 89 Cal. 478; 23 Am. St. Rep. 491; 26 Pac. 1074. The clerk has no authority to enter upon the minutes of the court a certified copy of an order, without any direction of the court therefor. Devlin v. Rydberg, 132 Cal. 324; 64 Pac. 396. The validity of an order does not depend upon the entry by the clerk, but upon the fact that the order has been made; and whenever it is shown that an order has been made by the court, it is as effective as if it had been entered of record by the clerk. Niles v. Edwards, 95 Cal. 41; 30 Pac. 134. There is no provision of law requiring that all orders of a court shall be entered at length in its minutes, in order that they may be effective; and every direction of a court or judge is an order, whether merely made in writing or entered in the minutes; but if it is not entered, it should be filed, so that it may form a part of the record in the case. Von Schmidt v. Widber, 99 Cal. 511; 34 Pac. 109.

Orders proved by records. The records of a court are the best evidence, and the only evidence, of the orders made by it. Clark v. Crane, 57 Cal. 629.

Certified copy of order. A certified copy of an order required to be furnished on an appeal should be furnished and certified by the clerk of the court making the order, and in whose minutes it is entered. Mansfield v. O'Keefe, 133 Cal. 362; 65 Pac. 825.

Contempt for disobeying order. A party is not in contempt of court for not complying with an unauthorized or unlawful order. Hennessy v. Nicol, 105 Cal. 138; 38 Pac. 649.

Modifying or vacating orders. A conditional order, vacating a sale by assignees in insolvency, cannot be amended so as to become absolute, without notice to the purchaser. Thompson v. Superior Court, 119 Cal. 538; 51 Pac. 863. An order made without notice may be set aside without notice; hence, if an order, made without notice, setting aside an order also made without notice, is void, it follows that the first order was also void. Coburn v. Pacific Lumber etc. Co., 46 Cal. 32. Orders improvidently and unintentionally made may be set aside, but the parties interested have a right to be heard on the question, and are entitled to notice; that a given order was so made will not be presumed on appeal, but the fact must be affirmatively shown. Wunderlin v. Cadogan, 75 Cal. 617; 17 Pac. 713. An order made through inadvertence or mistake may be set aside; and if the question of mistake or inadvertence is disputed, the decision of the judge upon any controverted fact is not open to review. People v. Curtis, 113 Cal. 68; 45 Pac. 180. An interlocutory decree, or decretal order, may be entered in equity cases, and in cases other than those in partition; it is not conclusive, but may be modified on the final hearing, as the law and the evidence may require. Thompson v. White, 76 Cal. 381; 18 Pac. 399.

An order obtained by means of an artifice and trick practiced upon the court may be set aside by the court that made it. Page v. Page, 77 Cal. 83; 19 Pac. 183. The judge of the court, having made an order upon which the parties have acted, cannot, without any statutory authority, change his mind and discharge his order: such action of the judge would lead to great uncertainty, inconvenience, and in some cases to wrong and injustice; hence, a judge, having directed a stay of execution upon the giving of an undertaking, cannot arbitrarily set aside his stay after the order is perfected. Lee Chuck v. Quan Wo Chong Co., 81 Cal. 222; 15 Am. St. Rep. 50; 22 Pac. 594.

Motion and application, defined. A motion is an application for an order. Brownell v. Superior Court, 157 Cal. 703; 109 Pac. 91. A motion is an application for an order or direction of the court not included in a judgment. Estate of Harrington, 147 Cal. 124; 109 Am. St. Rep. 118; 81 Pac. 546. The application made upon the demand for a change of the place of trial is designated a motion. Bohn v. Bohn, 16 Cal. App. 179; 116 Pac. 568. "Motion" and "application" are really the same thing. Weldon v. Rogers, 151 Cal. 432; 90 Pac. 1062.

What constitutes a motion. A motion is properly an application for a ruling or order, made viva voce to a court or judge. It is distinguished from the more formal applications for relief by petition or complaint. The grounds of the motion are often required to be stated in writing and filed, and in practice the form of the application itself is often reduced to writing and filed; but the making up and filing of the application itself is not the making of a motion. If nothing more were done, it would not be error in the court entirely to ignore the proceeding. The attention of the court must be called to it, and the court must be moved to grant the order. People v. Ah Sam, 41 Cal. 645. A verified petition to compel a receiver to pay over funds to the petitioner is in the nature of a motion, in which the moving party makes a prima facie case by his sworn statement; and it is immaterial whether the statement be termed a complaint, or a petition in the nature of a complaint, or an affidavit, it being evidence which is to be met at the hearing upon the order to show cause; and if not so met, the court is authorized to treat the statements of the verified petition as established facts. California Title Insurance etc. Co. v. Consolidated Piedmont Cable Co., 117 Cal. 237; 49 Pac. 1.

Motion may be made by whom. One who is not a party to a proceeding cannot make a motion therein. Estate of Aveline, 53 Cal. 259.

Successive motions. A motion to open a default and a motion to vacate a judgment may be separate and distinct from each other, and depend upon a different record, and seek a different relief; and a party is not precluded from making one of these motions because the other has been denied. Thompson v. Alford, 128 Cal. 227; 60 Pac. 686.

Time to file counter-affidavits on motion. The granting of time to file counter-affidavits on motion is a matter within the discretion of the court. Pierson v. McCahill, 22 Cal. 127.

Judicial notice in determining motion. In all motions before a judge, during the progress of a trial, he may act on his own knowledge in regard to things which, in their nature, are better known to himself than they could be to others. Southern California Motor Road Co. v. San Bernardino Nat. Bank, 100 Cal. 316; 34 Pac. 711.

Leave to renew motion. If, after the decision of a motion, it is desired to present any new facts for the consideration of the court, the proper practice is to ask for leave to renew the motion; and if it is desired to review the action of the court upon an appeal, it is sufficient to present the order in connection with a bill of exceptions containing the matter upon which the court based its action. Harper v. Hildreth, 99 Cal. 265; 33 Pac. 1103. Leave to renew a motion may be given after the original motion has been denied. Hitchcock v. McElrath, 69 Cal. 634; 11 Pac. 487; and see Kenney v. Kelleher, 63 Cal. 442. It is quite usual, when a motion is denied, which the moving party desires to renew, to have the entry show that it was denied without prejudice; but leave to renew need not be given at the time of the denial: it may be given at any time afterwards, as well; and when given, it may be acted upon. Bowers v. Cherokee Bob, 46 Cal. 279. Leave to renew a motion may be given after the original motion is denied, and the granting or refusal of leave is within the legal discretion of the court, and will not be interfered with, except in case of abuse; and it is not an abuse of discretion to grant leave upon the same facts more fully stated. Kenney v. Kelleher, 63 Cal. 442. In all ordinary motions, where the jurisdiction is not limited by statute, it is discretionary with the court or judge hearing and denying the motion, to grant leave for its renewal; and this discretionary power will be presumed to have been properly exercised, unless the contrary appears. Hitchcock v. McElrath, 69 Cal. 634; 11 Pac. 487; and see Bowers v. Cherokee Bob, 46 Cal. 279. It is within the discretion of the court to allow a motion to be renewed, although it had previously been denied. Mace v. O'Reilley, 70 Cal. 231; 11 Pac. 721. The doctrine of res adjudicata, in its strict sense, does not apply to motions made in the course of practice, such as a motion for an alias writ of possession, or a motion for an order requiring a sheriff to execute a writ; and the court may, upon proper showing, allow a renewal of such a motion, once decided; but such leave will not be granted unless a new state of facts has arisen since the former hearing, or the facts were not then presented by reason of surprise or excusable neglect of the moving party. Ford v. Doyle, 4 Cal. 635; Bowers v. Cherokee Bob, 46 Cal. 279; Kenney v. Kelleher, 63 Cal. 442; Estate of Harrington, 147 Cal. 124; 109 Am. St. Rep. 118; 81 Pac. 546.

Error in granting motion. On motion for a new trial, it is irregular for the court, without hearing or notice, to reverse its first judgment and render a contrary one. Mitchell v. Hackett, 14 Cal. 661. The absence of counsel for the opposing party, at the time set for the hearing of the motion, which resulted in a certain order, does not cure or waive error therein. Lybecker v. Murray, 58 Cal. 186.

Grounds of motion and of review. The provision of the statute indicating the general ground or reason upon which the motion may be based, as that an attachment may be discharged upon the ground that the writ was improperly issued, does not obviate the necessity of specifying the points of objection upon which the moving party will rely; and if the point be stated, it may be possible for the opposite party to answer it, and the object of the rule is to give him a fair opportunity to do so. Freeborn v. Glazer, 10 Cal. 337. The particular grounds upon which it will be based should be stated in the motion for a new trial: there may be ample grounds for granting the motion for one reason, and none whatever for another. Williams v. Hawley, 144 Cal. 97; 77 Pac. 762. The only ground upon which a motion for a nonsuit can be reviewed upon appeal is that specifically stated when the motion was made. Bronzan v. Drobaz, 93 Cal. 647; 29 Pac. 254. Where a statement of errors of law occurring at the trial, and of the insufficiency of the evidence to justify the findings, in the bill of exceptions, shows the grounds of the motion for a new trial, a reference thereto is a sufficient statement of the grounds of the motion. Williams v. Hawley, 144 Cal. 97; 77 Pac. 762. An appeal will not be dismissed for want of a sufficient undertaking, where such is not made the ground of the motion, as, had such ground been stated, it might have been made to appear that the undertaking was waived. Clarke v. Mohr, 125 Cal. 540; 58 Pac. 176. Where the granting of a motion is proper on one of the grounds stated, the court may disregard the other grounds. Toy v. Haskell, 128 Cal. 558; 79 Am. St. Rep. 70; 61 Pac. 89. The grounds need not be stated at length in making an oral motion, but the court must, in some way, be informed thereof, and this may be done by reference to some paper on file in the action. Williams v. Hawley, 144 Cal. 97; 77 Pac. 762. A motion in an action for wrongful death, that all proceedings be stayed until some other heir or heirs are brought in as parties, is properly denied, in the absence of a showing of the existence of any other heirs. Salmon v. Rathjens, 152 Cal. 290; 92 Pac. 733.

Mandamus to compel determination of motion. Mandamus will issue from the supreme court to compel a superior judge to hear and determine a motion, made in an action pending in his court, for a change of venue to the place of residence of the defendant. Hennessy v. Nicol, 105 Cal. 138; 38 Pac. 649.

What entry or record is necessary to complete order. See note 28 L. R. A. 621.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. There appears to be no statute of limitations against a motion. It may be made at any time when there is no unreasonable delay. Reynolds v. Harris, 14 Cal. 668; 76 Am. Dec. 459. Objection is made that there was a want of due notice of the motion. Verbal notice, it is true, is not such notice as the statute requires. When the statute speaks of notice, it means written notice, or notice in open court, of which a minute is made by the clerk. Borland v. Thornton, 12 Cal. 448. An application for an order is a motion. Jenkins v. Frink, 27 Cal. 337. If a party, in his notice of motion, asks for a specific relief, or for such further order as may be just, the court may afford any relief compatible with the facts of the case. People v. Turner, 1 Cal. 152. An appeal lies from an order made by a judge at chambers, setting aside an execution, etc. Bond v. Pacheco, 30 Cal. 530. See also § 166, ante, notes 3, 4, 5, 6, 8, commenting on Bond v. Pacheco, 30 Cal. 530, and Larco v. Casaneuava, 30 Cal. 563.

§ 1004. Motions and orders, where made.

Motions must be made in the county, or city and county, in which the action is pending. Orders made out of court may be made by the judge of the court in any part of the state.

Power of judge at chambers. Ante, §§ 165, 166, 176.

Court commissioner's control of ex parte motions. Ante, § 259, subd. 1.

Legislation § 1004. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 516 (New York Code, § 401), which read: "Motions shall be made in the county in which the action is brought, or in an adjoining county in the same district." When enacted in 1872, § 1004 read: "Motions must be made in the county in which the action is pending, or in an adjoining county in the same judicial district. Orders made out of court may be made by the judge of the court in any part of the state."

2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1880, p. 12.

Construction of section. This section only prescribes the venue of such motions as may be made out of court, but it does not say what such motions are. Larco v. Casaneuava, 30 Cal. 560.

What business must be transacted in court. The general rule is, that all judicial business must be transacted in court; the authority to transact such business out of court is exceptional, and does not exist, unless expressly authorized by statute. Carpenter v. Nutter, 127 Cal. 61; 59 Pac. 301. It is absolutely essential to the validity of a judgment, that it be rendered by a court of competent jurisdiction, at the time and place and in the form prescribed by law. Norwood v. Kenfield, 34 Cal. 329. An order for alimony and the custody of children, pendente lite, can only be made by the court in which the action for divorce is pending. Bennett v. Southard, 35 Cal. 688.

Business done in chambers. An order dispensing with an undertaking on appeal by a municipal officer may be made by a judge of the superior court from which the appeal is taken, by a writing signed by him during the progress of another trial, and filed in the case, but not entered in the minutes of the court. Von Schmidt v. Widber, 99 Cal. 511; 34 Pac. 109. An order extending the time for the preparation of a statement or bill of exceptions should be made by the judge who tried the case; such order need not be made in court, and it may be made by the judge in any part of the state. Matthews v. Superior Court, 68 Cal. 638; 10 Pac. 128. A judge's chambers are not confined to the place for the usual transaction of judicial business not required to be done in open court, but chamber business may be done wherever the judge may be found, within the proper jurisdiction of the court. Estate of Lux, 100 Cal. 593; 35 Pac. 341; and see Von Schmidt v. Widber, 99 Cal. 511; 34 Pac. 109.

Acts of judge as acts of court. Under the present constitution, whenever a judge of the superior court is present at the place designated for the transaction of judicial business, and there assumes to transact such business, his acts may be considered as the acts of the court of which he is a judge. Von Schmidt v. Widber, 99 Cal. 511; 34 Pac. 109.

Court, defined. The term "court," as used in this code, means, sometimes, the place where the court is held; sometimes, the tribunal itself; sometimes, the individual presiding over the tribunal; in many cases it is used synonymously, as well as interchangeably, with the term "judge"; and whether the act is to be performed by the judge or the court, is generally to be determined by the character of the act, rather than by the designation. Von Schmidt v. Widber, 99 Cal. 511; 34 Pac. 109.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. Where the judge who tried the cause goes to the county in his district not adjoining the one where the trial was had, to hold court, before the time for filing amendments to the statement on motion for a new trial has expired, the moving party prosecutes the motion with due diligence, if he brings the same to a hearing when the judge returns or first holds court in a county adjoining the one in which the case was tried. Warden v. Mendocino County, 32 Cal. 658. Section 137 of the Civil Code (concerning divorces) provides that the court where the action is pending may make an order for the support of the wife and the maintenance of the children during the progress of the action. Section 1004 of the Code of Civil Procedure provides that: "Motions must be made in the county in which the action is pending, or in an adjoining county in the same judicial district. Orders made out of court may be made by the judge of the court in any part of the state." An order for alimony and for the custody of the children during the pendency of the suit, can only be made by the court in which the action for divorce is pending. It was held that the statute concerning divorces did not authorize the judge at chambers to make the order, and the application must be made to the court. Section 1004 of this code, above quoted, applies only to such motions as the judge is authorized to hear at chambers, and what these motions are has been defined in Bond v. Pacheco, 30 Cal. 532; and in Larco v. Casaneuava, 30 Cal. 564; see Bennett v. Southard, 35 Cal. 691; see notes to § 166, ante.

§ 1005. Notice of motion. When must be given. When a written notice of a motion is necessary, it must be given, if the court is held in the county in which at least one of the attorneys of each party has his office, five days before the time appointed for the hearing; otherwise, ten days. When the notice is served by mail, the number of days before the hearing must be increased one day for every twenty-five miles of distance between the place of deposit and the place of service; such increase, however, not to exceed in all thirty days; but in all cases the court, or a judge thereof, may prescribe a shorter time.

Written, notice must be. Post, § 1010.
Order made without notice. Ante, § 937.
Service of papers, generally. Post, §§ 1010 et seq.

Legislation § 1005. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 517 (New York Code, § 402), which read: "When a written notice of a motion is necessary, it shall be given, if the court be held in the same district with both parties, five days before the time appointed for the hearing; otherwise, ten days; but the court or judge may, by an order to show cause, prescribe a shorter time." When § 1005 was enacted in 1872, (1) "must" was substituted for "shall"; and (2) after the words "ten days," the section was changed to read, beginning a new sentence, "When the notice is served by mail, the number of days before the hearing must be increased one day for every twenty-five miles of distance between the place of deposit and the place of service; such increase, however, not to exceed in all ninety days; but the court, or judge, or county judge, may prescribe a shorter time."

2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1880, p. 13, to read as at present, except for the amendment of 1907.

3. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 177; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

4. Amended by Stats. 1907, p. 601, (1) substituting "is held in the county in which at least one of the attorneys of each party has his office" for "be held in the same county, or city and county with both parties"; the code commissioner saying, "The amendment allows the notice of motion to be for five days whenever the court is held in the county in which one of the attorneys has his office. This is the rule of court already adopted in most jurisdictions of the superior court, and the amendment makes the practice uniform throughout the state."

Application of section. This section has no application in cases where a party receives notice to which he is not entitled; and where the court chooses to give notice, it may be of such length as the court sees fit. Mudd v. Mudd, 98 Cal. 320; 33 Pac. 114.

Necessity of notice. A rule of court establishing regular days for the hearing of motions, does not dispense with the notice required by the code. Bohn v. Bohn, 164 Cal. 532; 129 Pac. 981.

Motions placed on calendar how. A motion to change the place of trial, like a demurrer filed, goes upon the calendar, to be called for hearing in the regular order of business. Bohn v. Bohn, 16 Cal. App. 182; 116 Pac. 568.

Notice, what constitutes. An order to show cause why a commission to take testimony should not issue, when served upon the adverse party, is equivalent to a notice of motion, and no further notice is required. Dambmann v. White, 48 Cal. 439.

Form and contents of notice. A demand for a change of the place of trial is not such a motion as requires written notice, under this section. Bohn v. Bohn, 16 Cal. App. 182; 116 Pac. 568.

Waiver of written notice. Even if written notice were necessary upon an application for a change of the place of trial, it is waived where counsel appears and resists the application. Bohn v. Bohn, 16 Cal. App. 182; 116 Pac. 568.

Notice of motion as affecting order. Where a party, in his notice of motion served on the adverse party, asks for a specific relief, or for such other or further order as may be just, the court may afford any relief compatible with the facts of the case presented. People v. Turner, 1 Cal. 152. A notice of a motion to discharge a writ of attachment should specify the grounds of the motion, and wherein it will be urged that the writ was improperly issued: a notice of motion to dissolve an attachment, "because the said writ was improperly issued," is insufficient. Freeborn v. Glazer, 10 Cal. 337. A notice of motion for judgment upon the pleadings, specifying that it would be made "upon the pleadings, papers, files, and records in said action, and upon the ground that the answer on file herein constitutes no defense to the cause of action, or any portion thereof, stated in complaint," is sufficient, and states a proper ground for the motion. Hearst v. Hart, 128 Cal. 327; 60 Pac. 846.

Time of notice. The non-residence of the plaintiff cannot affect or extend the time required for the service of notice of a motion to dissolve an attachment. Finch v. McVean, 6 Cal. App. 272; 91 Pac. 1019. Where the notice of an application by a plaintiff for an injunction was given for a shorter time than that prescribed, and the defendant does not appear to the motion, the order granting the injunction must be deemed to have been made without notice, and the defendant may, ex parte, apply to the court to dissolve it. Johnson v. Wide West Mining Co., 22 Cal. 479. A filed motion to retax costs need not be served; but notice of the hearing of the motion must be given for five days, unless the court, by order, shortens the time. Furtinata v. Butterfield, 14 Cal. App. 25; 110 Pac. 962.

Notice is not motion. The notice of motion is distinct from the motion itself, and notice alone is not sufficient, on appeal, to show the making of the motion. Herrlich v. McDonald, 80 Cal. 472; 22 Pac. 299. The mere giving of notice is not a proceeding in court; and where the place of trial of an action is changed, it is not necessary to the validity of a motion to dissolve an injunction that the court in which notice was made had jurisdiction at that time: it is sufficient if it had jurisdiction when the motion was made. Younglove v. Steinman, 80 Cal. 375; 22 Pac. 189.

Notice as part of record. A motion may be made orally, though it is better practice to have it made in writing, or entered in the minutes of the court; but in every case where it is desired to review a motion on appeal, it should be made part of the record by a bill of exceptions, showing that the motion was made, and the ground upon which it was made: it is not sufficient to embody the notice of the motion in the record, for such notice is distinct from the motion itself; and error in the granting of a motion must be made affirmatively to appear in the record. Herrlich v. McDonald, 80 Cal. 472; 22 Pac. 299.

Time for making motion. A reasonable time for the making of a motion is, in the absence of a statutory limitation, a question largely within the discretion of the trial court. Frank Co. v. Leopold & Ferron Co., 13 Cal. App. 59; 108 Pac. 878.

Extension of time for filing of papers. The statutes fixing the time for the filing of papers are merely directory, and it is always within the power of the court, in the exercise of a proper discretion, to extend the time fixed by law, whenever the ends of justice demand such extension. Wood v. Forbes, 5 Cal. 62.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. The supreme court has always held, that statutes, fixing the time for filing papers in a cause, are merely directory, and that the court has it always in its power, in the exercise of a proper discretion, to extend the time fixed by law whenever the ends of justice would seem to demand such an extension. Wood v. Forbes, 5 Cal. 62. Notice of an application by plaintiff, for an injunction, must be given for the length of time prescribed in § 1005 of this code. If given for a shorter time, and defendant does not appear, he may regard the injunction thus obtained as granted without notice, and move to dissolve the same under § 532, ante. Johnson v. Wide West Mining Co., 22 Cal. 479. If there is any ambiguity in the terms of the notice, rendering its meaning doubtful, the construction must be most strongly against the plaintiff who gave the notice. Carpentier v. Thurston, 30 Cal. 125. It is regular and proper to suggest the death of a party in any court and at any stage of the proceedings. It has now been suggested, and it is our duty to stop, whether there is any motion to dismiss or not. It is said, however, that we cannot act upon the affidavit, because the appellant was entitled to five days' or more notice of the motion to dismiss, also, to a service of the affidavit of the moving party. This might have been a good objection to hearing the motion at all, at the time it was made, or until notice should be given and service made. But no such objection was made at the time the motion was submitted. The motion was submitted on its merits, on briefs to be filed, and the objection of want of notice is now made in the briefs for the first time. The objection was therefore waived by not taking it in time. The object of the notice is, that the party may not be taken by surprise; that he may come with counter-affidavits, or be otherwise prepared to meet it. There was evidently no surprise in this case, and the motion was submitted on its merits. As in the case of Sanchez v. Roach, 5 Cal. 248, the affidavit of the death of the defendant was not contradicted, and it appears that he died before the service of the notice of appeal, and that all of the proceedings since the verdict, except the entry of judgment in accordance with it, are ineffectual for any purpose as against the defendant. See Judson v. Love, 35 Cal. 464. Motion to dismiss appeal as to party deceased. Id.

§ 1006. Transfer of motions and orders to show cause. When a notice of motion is given, or an order to show cause is made returnable before a judge out of court, and at the time fixed for the motion, or on the return-day of the order, the judge is unable to hear the parties, the matter may be transferred by his order to some other judge, before whom it might originally have been brought.

Notice of motion. Ante, § 1005.

Legislation § 1006. Enacted March 11, 1872; re-enactment of Practice Act, § 518 (New York Code, § 404).

Notice of transfer. The transfer of a case from one department of the superior court, where the same is pending, to another department of the same court, upon the application of a party to the action, should be upon notice to the opposite party; but such is not the rule where the judges, for the more convenient dispatch of business, or for any other reason they may deem necessary, make an order assigning or transferring cases for trial to any one or more of the several departments of such court. Bell v. Peck, 104 Cal. 35; 37 Pac. 766.

§ 1007. Order for payment of money, how enforced. Whenever an order for the payment of a sum of money is made by a court, pursuant to the provisions of this code, it may be enforced by execution in the same manner as if it were a judgment.

Enforced by execution. Ante, §§ 681 et seq.
Contempt. Post, §§ 1209 et seq.

Legislation § 1007. Enacted March 11, 1872.

Construction of section. This section is merely a cumulative remedy for the enforcement of an order to pay money, as for the enforcement of a fine in a proceeding for contempt. Ex parte Karlson, 160 Cal. 378; Ann. Cas. 1912D, 1334; 117 Pac. 447.

Order for alimony or attorneys' fees. An execution may be issued, in a divorce case, upon an order allowing alimony or attorneys' fees. Robinson v. Robinson, 79 Cal. 511; 21 Pac. 1095. An execution may be issued for alimony allowed by a decree or order of the court, without first giving the defendant an opportunity to show cause why he had not obeyed the order. Van Cleave v. Bucher, 79 Cal. 600; 21 Pac. 954. An order allowing alimony and counsel fees, pendente lite, in divorce proceedings, and providing for the enforcement thereof by execution, is appealable. Sharon v. Sharon, 75 Cal. 1; 16 Pac. 345.

Fine for contempt. A fine imposed for contempt of court is a judgment or order for the payment of money, and may be enforced by execution. In re Tyler, 64 Cal. 434; 1 Pac. 884.

Decree of distribution. A decree of distribution is not such a judgment or order for the payment of money against an administrator as may be enforced by execution. Estate of Kennedy, 129 Cal. 384; 62 Pac. 64.

CHAPTER V.

NOTICES, AND FILING AND SERVICE OF PAPERS.

§ 1010. Notices and papers, how served.
§ 1011. When and how served.
§ 1012. Service by mail, when.
§ 1013. Service by mail, how.
§ 1014. Appearance. Notices after appearance.
§ 1015. Service on non-residents.
§ 1016. Preceding provisions not to apply to proceeding to bring party into contempt.
§ 1017. Service by telegraph.
§ 1019. Service of pleadings in action for divorce for adultery.

§ 1010. Notices and papers, how served. Notices must be in writing, and the notice of a motion, other than for a new trial, must state when, and the grounds upon which it will be made, and the papers, if any, upon which it is to be based. If any such paper has not previously been served upon the party to be notified and was not filed by him, a copy of such paper must accompany the notice. Notices and other papers may be served upon the party or attorney in the manner prescribed in this chapter, when not otherwise provided by this code.

Legislation § 1010. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 519, which read: "Written notices and other papers, when required to be served on the party or attorney, shall be served in the manner prescribed in the next three sections, when not otherwise provided; but nothing in this title shall be applicable to original or final process, or any proceedings to bring a party into contempt." When enacted in 1872, § 1010 read: "Notices must be in writing, and notices and other papers may be served upon the party or attorney in the manner prescribed in this chapter, when not otherwise provided by this code."

2. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 177; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

3. Amended by Stats. 1907, p. 601; the code commissioner saying, "Requires the notice to state when, and the grounds and papers upon which, the motion will be made. Codifies what the actual practice is to-day, and what is generally provided for in rules of court."

Necessity of notice. An application, under § 709, ante, by a surety who has paid more than his share of a judgment, for execution against his co-sureties, must be upon notice, under this section and those following. Davis v. Heimbach, 75 Cal. 261; 17 Pac. 199. Where a statute or contract requires the giving of notice, and there is nothing in the context, or in the circumstances of the case, to show that any other form of notice was intended, personal notice will be required. Stockton Automobile Co. v. Confer, 154 Cal. 402; 97 Pac. 881.

Necessity of written notice. Where a statute speaks of notice of a motion, a written notice is meant, or a notice in open court, of which a minute is made by the clerk. Borland v. Thornton, 12 Cal. 440. It is essential that the notice in a legal proceeding shall be in writing, in order that the rights of the party to be affected by it shall be protected, as, otherwise, in many cases, mischievous results would follow: any other practice should therefore be discountenanced. Flateau v. Lubeck, 24 Cal. 364. A substitution of attorneys, by order of the court, involves judicial action, and the requirement of a notice as the basis of such order necessarily implies the exercise of sufficient discretion to determine that the proper notice has been given; such notice must be in writing, and contain a statement of the relief sought, and be given at lease five days before the hearing. Rundberg v. Belcher, 118 Cal. 589; 50 Pac. 670. The settlement of a bill of exceptions in a criminal case must be upon written notice; and § 1171 of the Penal Code, providing for the settlement of a bill upon at least two days' notice, must be construed with this section. Page v. Superior Court, 122 Cal. 209; 54 Pac. 730. Notice of appearance, given for a client by his attorney, need not necessarily be in writing (Salmonson v. Streiffer, 13 Cal. App. 395; 110 Pac. 144); but, in an action in a justice's court, the notice setting the cause for trial is jurisdictional, and must be given in writing (Elder v. Justice's Court, 136 Cal. 364; 68 Pac. 1022); and such notice must form a part of the record; and there must be an entry thereof, and of the mode in which it is given, in the justice's docket, in order to authorize him to proceed upon the trial of the case and render a judgment therein. Jones v. Justice's Court, 97 Cal. 523; 32 Pac. 575.

Object and waiver of written notice. The object of a written notice, and the only purpose it can subserve, is to bring home to the party knowledge of a fact upon which he is called upon to act; but the right to a written notice, like any other civil right, may be waived. Barron v. Deleval, 58 Cal. 95.

Shortening time of notice. An order shortening the time of notice, by the judge, will, in the absence of a showing to the contrary, be deemed, upon appeal, to have been made for sufficient cause. California Mortgage etc. Bank v. Graves, 129 Cal. 649; 62 Pac. 259; and see Dambmann v. White, 48 Cal. 39.

Effect of actual notice. An appeal may be dismissed for the causes mentioned in the statutes, after notice; the court may err as to the kind or length of the notice; but if the appellant had notice in fact, the order of dismissal is not void; the notice is not the means by which jurisdiction was obtained, for that had already been acquired by the appeal. People v. Elkins, 40 Cal. 642. A provision in a judgment for a forfeiture of the plaintiff's rights within twenty days after written notice of the entry of the judgment if no redemption should be made within that period, must be construed as requiring a separate written notice expressly intended for the purpose of starting the period of time mentioned in the judgment; and a mere incidental recital of the rendering of the judgment, in a notice of motion for a new trial, is not a sufficient compliance with the terms of the judgment respecting written notice, nor is the actual knowledge by the plaintiff of the rendition of the judgment material upon the question of such compliance. Byrne v. Hudson, 127 Cal. 254; 59 Pac. 597.

Notice of appearance. The giving of any mere notice, other than express notice of appearance, does not constitute a notice of appearance. Salmonson v. Streiffer, 13 Cal. App. 395; 110 Pac. 144.

Notice of decision or entry of judgment. Where, under the various code provisions, notice of a decision is required to be given, written notice is usually intended; and the principle involved in nearly all the cases, relating to the time within which to perform certain acts, where time is given after notice of the decision, is substantially the same, and the seeming discrepancies between a few of the cases is to be found in the fact of confounding the question as to what is a sufficient service of notice, with the very distinct one of a waiver of notice, and what amounts to such waiver. Forni v. Yoell, 99 Cal. 173; 33 Pac. 887. It was formerly held that a party intending to move for a new trial had a right to wait for a notice in writing of the decision from the adverse party, before giving notice of his intention, and that he was entitled to such notice of the decision before he was called upon to act, although he was present in court when the decision was rendered, waived findings, and asked for a stay of proceedings on the judgment: it was not enough that the party had knowledge of the judgment or order; nor was oral communication, presence in court, or hearing decision announced or order or judgment declared, sufficient (Biagi v. Howes, 66 Cal. 469; 6 Pac. 100); but, by later decisions, under § 659, ante, which provides that a motion for a new trial must be made within ten days after "notice of the decision," where it appears affirmatively that the party moving had actual notice of the decision, no formal service of a written notice by the opposite party is necessary (California Improvement Co. v. Baroteau, 116 Cal. 136; 47 Pac. 1018); and written notice of judgment may be waived (Gardner v. Stare, 135 Cal. 118; 67 Pac. 5; Gray v. Winder, 77 Cal. 525; 20 Pac. 47; Waddingham v. Tubbs, 95 Cal. 249; 30 Pac. 527); but where the record shows no legal waiver, an affidavit of the opposite party cannot be used to show actual notice or knowledge of the fact that the decision has been rendered: the intent of the statute requires written notice, and cannot be thus defeated. Mallory v. See, 129 Cal. 356; 61 Pac. 1123. To set the time in motion within which the appellant must serve and file his notice of intention to move for a new trial, the respondent must serve upon the attorney for the appellant a written notice of the decision. Estate of Richards, 154 Cal. 478; 98 Pac. 528. A notice of intention to move for a new trial, by the party in whose favor judgment has been rendered, served upon the adverse party, which contains the title of the cause, and which states that "a motion will be made to set aside and vacate the decision and judgment heretofore rendered and entered herein," contains a sufficient notice in writing that a decision of the court had theretofore been rendered to require the adverse party to serve and file his notice of intention to move for a new trial within ten days thereafter. Waddingham v. Tubbs, 95 Cal. 249; 30 Pac. 527; Forni v. Yoell, 99 Cal. 173; 33 Pac. 887; and see Mallory v. See, 129 Cal. 356; 61 Pac. 1123. The service of a copy of the findings and judgment upon the attorneys of the defeated party, after the entry of the judgment, is sufficient notice of the entry of the judgment. Kelleher v. Creciat, 89 Cal. 38; 26 Pac. 619.

Waiver of notice. Waiver of notice may be made by the party entitled thereto. Forni v. Yoell, 99 Cal. 173; 33 Pac. 887. Written notice of the overruling of a demurrer is not required; but conceding that such notice is required, it is waived by the attorney for the party appearing in court at the hearing and applying for leave to answer within a certain time. Barron v. Deleval, 58 Cal. 95. Written notice of the overruling of a demurrer is waived by the presence in court of the attorney for the demurring party, at the time of the ruling thereon. Wall v. Heald, 95 Cal. 364; 30 Pac. 551. Where a party appears and argues a motion, he cannot complain that sufficient notice thereof was not given him. Naylor v. Adams, 15 Cal. App. 353; 114 Pac. 997. Where the defendant was present in court when an application was made to file an amended proof of service of summons nunc pro tunc, and raised no objection for want of previous notice of the application, but proceeded to argue the question at length and took an exception to the ruling, his action was, in effect, a waiver of the notice. Herman v. Santee, 103 Cal. 519; 42 Am. St. Rep. 145; 37 Pac. 509.

Waiver of notice of decision and entry of judgment. The object of the law is to give ten days after actual knowledge of the decision in which to give notice of intention to move for a new trial, and that object is fully attained when the record shows that the party entitled to notice has acted in court upon actual knowledge of the decision: such action constitutes a waiver of formal notice; and a notice of motion for a new trial, given fourteen years after such waiver, is too late, though no formal written notice of the decision was ever given, and though some of the parties moving for a new trial were minors at the time of the waiver. Gray v. Winder, 77 Cal. 525; 20 Pac. 47. A defendant, who gave notice of a motion to dismiss an action, upon the ground that the findings and decision of the court upon the final submission of the action have been filed for more than six months without entry of judgment, must be held to have waived notice of the decision as of the time of making such motion. Forni v. Yoell, 99 Cal. 173; 33 Pac. 887. By taking an appeal from a judgment, without waiting for notice of the decision, the losing party waived such notice; and a notice of intention to move for a new trial, given more than ten days thereafter, came too late. People v. Center, 9 Pac. Coast L. J. 776. Mere knowledge that a decision has been given is not the equivalent of notice; but the giving of actual notice may be waived by the party entitled to it. The evidence of such waiver must be clear and uncontradicted, and not dependent upon oral testimony or ex parte affidavits. The rule would seem to be, that written notice of the filing of the decision is in all cases required, unless waived by facts appearing in the records, files, or minutes of the court. A written admission, by the party entitled to notice, of knowledge that the decision had been made, filed with the clerk, or entered upon the minutes of the court, dispenses with the necessity of giving such notice, and a motion to the court, or other proceeding, by a party, which presumes his knowledge that the decision has been made, and by which he seeks to protect his own interest as against the right of the other party under the decision, is a waiver of his right to a notice of the decision. Gardner v. Stare, 135 Cal. 118; 67 Pac. 5; Mallory v. See, 129 Cal. 356; 61 Pac. 1123; Forni v. Yoell, 99 Cal. 173; 33 Pac. 887. A losing party moving for a stay of execution, which is granted, and asking further findings, which are made, all of which appears in the minutes of court, waives a formal notice of the decision, and by such action must be held to have had actual knowledge thereof. Gray v. Winder, 77 Cal. 525; 20 Pac. 47; Gardner v. Stare, 135 Cal. 118; 67 Pac. 5. Notice of the decision must be held to have been waived, where the prevailing party had actual knowledge thereof, and participated in and opposed the motion for a new trial. Mullally v. Irish-American Benevolent Society, 69 Cal. 559; 11 Pac. 215. The statutory provision requiring written notice is subject to the rule, that any one may waive the advantage of a law intended solely for his benefit; and when a party acts as if he had formal notice of a decision, such acts constitute a waiver of such formal notice. Mallory v. See, 129 Cal. 356; 61 Pac. 1123; and see Gray v. Winder, 77 Cal. 525; 20 Pac. 47. Actual notice of the entry of an order, judgment, or decree appealed from, established by the record, dispenses with or waives written notice thereof. Estate of Keating, 158 Cal. 109; 110 Pac. 109.

Service of notice. The service of written notices and other papers, except original and final process, subpoenas, writs, etc., must be made upon the attorney of a party, where he has appeared by attorney. People v. Alameda Turnpike Road Co., 30 Cal. 182. Where notice is required to be given, but the person to be served is not indicated in the statute, the plain inference is, that the party intended is the one who is to be proceeded against. Davis v. Heimbach, 75 Cal. 261; 17 Pac. 199. The statute defining the duties of a sheriff does not give to nor impose upon him exclusively the duty of serving all process and notices, but merely requires that he shall serve all notices and process directed to him or placed in his hands for service. Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc. v. Clarke, 110 Cal. 27; 42 Pac. 425. Where the record of a justice's court shows service of a written notice of the time of trial, it cannot, upon certiorari, be contradicted by evidence dehors the record. Los Angeles v. Young, 118 Cal. 295; 62 Am. St. Rep. 234; 50 Pac. 534.

Affidavit served with notice. An affidavit of one of the defendants, served with notice of a motion to vacate a judgment by default, though not embodied in the notice, is a substantial compliance with this section. Broderick v. Cochran, 18 Cal. App. 202; 122 Pac. 972. An affidavit not referred to in the notice of motion to set aside a default, filed after submission, cannot be considered on appeal, although filed by leave of court. Forrest v. Knox, 21 Cal. App. 363; 131 Pac. 894.

Waiver of objections to service. An acknowledgment of service, indorsed on a notice of appeal, "Due service of a copy of the within notice is hereby accepted to have been made," stating day, month, and year, merely admits that the notice was served at a certain date, and is not a waiver of an objection that service was made too late. Towdy v. Ellis, 22 Cal. 650. The objection of a district attorney, that no notice of the settlement of a bill of exceptions in a criminal case was given, is not overcome by proof that verbal notice thereof was given to his clerk, and cannot be deemed waived, where the proposed bill was not served upon the district attorney, and he did not know of its preparation or existence until after its presentation to the judge. Page v. Superior Court, 122 Cal. 209; 54 Pac. 730. A notice of motion to quash the service of summons must specify the objections made to the service of process; otherwise such objections must be deemed to have been waived. Dickinson v. Zubiate Mining Co., 11 Cal. App. 656; 106 Pac. 123.

Correcting record, with or without notice. During term-time, when terms of court were held, the record could be amended in any manner, so as to be made conformable to the facts; but after the expiration of the term, it could be amended only where the record itself showed error; and in such cases the record could not be amended unless it contained something to amend by. Branger v. Chevalier, 9 Cal. 172. All courts of record have the inherent power to correct their records so that they shall conform to the actual facts and speak the truth of the case, and such correction may be made at any time, either upon the motion of the court itself or at the instance of any party interested in the matter; ordinarily, a court would require notice of the motion to be given to all parties interested, but it has the power to make the correction without such notice. Crim v. Kessing, 89 Cal. 478; 23 Am. St. Rep. 491; 26 Pac. 1074. Clerical misprisions, which are apparent upon the record, may be corrected by the court, on its own motion, with or without notice. Dickey v. Gibson, 113 Cal. 26; 54 Am. St. Rep. 321; 45 Pac. 15. Clerical misprisions in the judgment, the record affording the evidence thereof, may be corrected at any time by the court, upon its own motion, or upon motion of an interested party, with or without notice; but where an inspection of the record does not show error, notice of a motion to amend the judgment will be required to be given the parties to be affected thereby. Seaman v. Bonslett, 118 Cal. 93; 62 Am. St. Rep. 226; 50 Pac. 272.

Appeal. A finding or ruling as to notice, made upon conflicting evidence, will not be disturbed upon appeal. Rauer v. Silva, 128 Cal. 42; 60 Pac. 525.

Definition of motion and order. See note ante, § 1003.

§ 1011. When and how served. The service may be personal, by delivery to the party or attorney on whom the service is required to be made, or it may be as follows:

1. If upon an attorney, it may be made during his absence from his office, by leaving the notice or other papers with his clerk therein, or with a person having charge thereof; or when there is no person in the office, by leaving them between the hours of nine in the morning and five in the afternoon, in a conspicuous place in the office; or, if it is not open so as to admit of such service, then by leaving them at the attorney's residence, with some person of not less than eighteen years of age, if his residence is in the same county with his office; and if his residence is not known, or is not in the same county with his office, or being in the same county it is not open, or there is not found thereat any person of not less than eighteen years of age, then by putting the same, inclosed in a sealed envelope, into the post-office directed to such attorney at his office, if known; otherwise to his residence, if known; and if neither his office nor his residence is known, then by delivering the same to the clerk of the court for the attorney;

2. If upon a party, it may be made by leaving the notice or other paper at his residence, between the hours of eight in the morning and six in the evening, with some person of not less than eighteen years of age; and, if his residence is not known, by delivering the same to the clerk of the court for such party.

Service, on attorney. Post, § 1015.

Sheriff serving, duty of, to exhibit. See Pol. Code, § 4169.

Coroner to serve, when sheriff a party. See Pol. Code, § 4172.

Elisor may be appointed to execute, when. See Pol. Code, § 4173.

Sheriff, justified when. See Pol. Code, § 4168.

Legislation § 1011. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872, in exact language of Practice Act, § 520 (New York Code, § 409), which read: "The service may be personal, by delivery to the party or attorney, on whom the service is required to be made, or it may be as follows: 1st. If upon an attorney, it may be made during his absence from his office, by leaving the notice or other papers with his clerk therein, or with a person having charge thereof; or when there is no person in the office, by leaving them, between the hours of eight in the morning and six in the afternoon, in a conspicuous place in the office; or if it be not open, so as to admit of such service, then by leaving them at the attorney's residence, with some person of suitable age and discretion; and if his residence be not known, then by putting the same, inclosed in an envelope, into the post-office, directed to such attorney: 2d. If upon a party, it may be made by leaving the notice or other paper at his residence between the hours of eight in the morning and six in the evening, with some person of suitable age and discretion; and if his residence be not known, by putting the same, inclosed in an envelope, into the post-office directed to such party."

2. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 178; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

3. Amended by Stats. 1907, p. 602; the code commissioner saying, "Changes the hours during which notice may be served at an attorney's office in his absence, so that the hours shall be from nine to five instead of from eight to six; excuses the leaving of papers at an attorney's residence if in a county other than that of his office; provides means of service when his residence is in another county, or when neither his office nor his residence is known."

Construction of chapter. The notice of appeal may be served personally, or in any of the other modes prescribed by this chapter. Columbet v. Pacheco, 46 Cal. 650.

Service upon adverse party or his attorney. An order to show cause why a judgment should not be set aside must be served upon the adverse party or his attorney: and the setting aside of the judgment upon such order, without service, is void. Vallejo v. Green, 16 Cal. 160.

Personal service. The delivery which constitutes a personal service, under this section, need not be made by the individual who is attempting to make the service, but can be effected through a clerk or messenger, or through any agency by which a delivery can be made, and when the notice is so delivered, the service becomes a personal service; the fact that the person upon whom the service is to be made resides or has his office in a different place from that of the person making the service does not require that the service shall be made by mail, nor preclude a personal service, and the person seeking to make the service can avail himself of any agency, such as an express company or the post-office, with as much effect as if he had employed any other messenger, and notice through such agency renders the service personal, and the proof of such delivery establishes a personal service. Heinlen v. Heilbron, 94 Cal. 636; 30 Pac. 8. The receipt of a notice served by mail, when admitted by the party or proved, amounts, in law, to a personal service. Shearman v. Jorgensen, 106 Cal. 483; 39 Pac. 863.

Admission of personal service. A written statement at the foot of the notice of appeal, "Service admitted," giving the date, and signed by the attorneys of the adverse party, means that personal service was admitted. Brown v. Green, 65 Cal. 221; 3 Pac. 811.

Service upon one having charge of office. Where a notice of appeal was left in a conspicuous place upon the desk in the office of the attorney for the party to be served, during his absence therefrom, and in the presence of the person in charge of the office at the time, and after calling his attention to the paper thus served, the notice was, in contemplation of law, left with a person having charge of the office, as provided in this section, and the service was sufficient. People v. Perris Irrigation Dist., 142 Cal. 601; 76 Pac. 381. The clerk or other person in charge of the office of the attorney of the adverse party, upon whom the statute permits a written notice to be served, has no implied authority to waive the written notice, or to bind his principal by any agreement in reference to the case. Page v. Superior Court, 122 Cal. 209; 54 Pac. 730.

Service at residence or by mail. The service by mail authorized by this section does not contemplate a delivery as a part of the service, as by the provision of § 1013, post, the service is complete at the time of deposit in the post-office; such a service is termed a substituted service, and is intended to take the place of, and to be equivalent in point of law and in effect to, a personal service; but, as such service is contrary to the general rule, it is incumbent upon a party who would avail himself of such substituted service, to have it clearly appear upon the record that the case is one in which such service is permitted, and that the mode pointed out by the statute for making such service has been strictly followed. Heinlen v. Heilbron, 94 Cal. 636; 30 Pac. 8. Absence from the state, of a purchaser at sheriff's sale, does not excuse the service of notice of motion to set aside the sale; personal service is not required: the notice may be served by leaving it at his residence, if known, with some person of suitable age and discretion, or, if his residence is not known, by inclosing it in an envelope and depositing it in the post-office, addressed to him. Eckstein v. Calderwood, 34 Cal. 658. In the case of known residence in the same city, the service must be made at such place, as prescribed in this section: service by mail is improper. Koyer v. Benedict, 4 Cal. App. 48; 87 Pac. 231.

Constructive service. In all cases in which the statute allows a constructive service, or in which jurisdiction may be obtained by a prescribed form of notice, of which the real party in interest had no actual notice, and did not appear or subject himself to the jurisdiction of the court, the mode of service prescribed by the statute must be strictly pursued. Petition of Tracey, 136 Cal. 385; 69 Pac. 20.

Service by posting. Service of notice by posting upon the property affected constitutes an exception to the rule requiring personal notice, and he who would avail himself thereof must establish by proof the facts bringing the case within the exception. Hall v. Capps, 107 Cal. 513; 40 Pac. 809.

Service on Sunday or holiday. The service of a proposed statement is not invalid or void because made on a Sunday or on a legal holiday, although it need not have been made until the following day; nor is such service "judicial business," within the meaning of § 5 of article VI of the constitution. Reclamation District v. Hamilton, 112 Cal. 603; 44 Pac. 1074.

Objections to service. An objection, that an amended complaint was served on the appellant personally, and not on his attorney, must be taken in the lower court by motion, and will not be entertained for the first time on appeal. Campbell v. West, 93 Cal. 653; 29 Pac. 219. Notice of the presentation of a proposed statement or bill of exceptions, and the amendments thereto, to the judge for settlement, pursuant to § 650, ante, is essential; and subsequent notices of the fact of presentation, after it has been made, and of a time for settlement, are too late, and it is error for the judge to settle the statement or bill, against the objection of the adverse party. Witter v. Andrews, 122 Cal. 1; 54 Pac. 276.

Defective service, power of court. The premature service of a notice of intention to move for a new trial, or the failure to serve such notice, cannot deprive the appellate court of jurisdiction to hear an appeal from an order denying the motion, nor constitute ground for dismissing the appeal. Bell v. Staacke, 137 Cal. 307; 70 Pac. 171. Under no circumstances is the discretion of the court in striking out an answer, not served in the mode prescribed by statute, to be exercised arbitrarily, but it must be governed by legal rules, in order to do justice according to law, or to the analogies of law, as near as may be, and it must be exercised, within these limitations, so as to promote substantial justice in the case. Lybecker v. Murray, 58 Cal. 186; and see Ex parte Hoge, 48 Cal. 3; Ex parte Marks, 49 Cal. 680. It is error to strike out an answer filed in time, but not served until two days afterwards. Lybecker v. Murray, 58 Cal. 186.

Service, and not proof of service, gives jurisdiction. The fact of the service, and not the proof of the service, gives the court jurisdiction; and where the service was in fact made, but proof thereof is defective or insufficient, the court may allow the proof of service to be amended and filed nunc pro tunc as of the date of the judgment. Herman v. Santee, 103 Cal. 519; 42 Am. St. Rep. 145; 37 Pac. 509. The fact of the service of notice, rather than the evidence thereof, gives the court jurisdiction, and service of a notice of appeal may be shown in other modes than by being incorporated in the transcript. Sutter County v. Tisdale, 128 Cal. 180; 60 Pac. 757.

Proof of service, sufficiency of. The record must contain evidence of the service of the notice of intention to move for a new trial, or it must clearly appear therefrom that service of the notice was waived. Calderwood v. Brooks, 28 Cal. 151. Proof of service, not personal, must show a strict compliance with the requirements of the statute; and where made by leaving the notice at the attorney's office, it must appear whether it was left with his clerk, or with the person in charge, or in a conspicuous place therein, and that at the time of service the attorney was absent. Doll v. Smith, 32 Cal. 475. In case of constructive service, by leaving the notice in a conspicuous place in the office, the proof must show that the attorney served was at such time absent from his office. Dalzell v. Superior Court, 67 Cal. 453; 7 Pac. 910. A statement on the back of a notice of motion for a new trial, signed by the attorney of the moving party stating that the notice was served at a certain time, is not evidence of service. Calderwood v. Brooks, 28 Cal. 151. Where a decree recites due service of notice by publication or by posting, such recital is sufficient to prove service, as against a collateral attack. Crew v. Pratt, 119 Cal. 139; 51 Pac. 38. The proof of service of a notice of appeal, originally defective, may be cured by an affidavit filed in pursuance of leave granted for that purpose. Schloesser v. Owen, 134 Cal. 546; 66 Pac. 726. The notice of setting a cause for trial in a justice's court is jurisdictional, and must be served as prescribed in this chapter, and proof of such service is as essential as in case of the summons; the notice cannot be verbal, and cannot be waived by conversation over the telephone, in which the attorney for the defendant consented to the setting of the case. Elder v. Justice's Court, 136 Cal. 364; 68 Pac. 1022.

Proof of service by affidavit. The service of a notice, if not shown by an official certificate, or by the admission of the party served, must be proved by the affidavit of some competent person, and the affidavit of a third person is entitled to as much weight as that of the party or his attorney. Moore v. Besse, 35 Cal. 184. An affidavit of service of notice upon an attorney is insufficient to show constructive service, by leaving the notice at his office, if his absence from his office is not deducible from the facts stated. Dalzell v. Superior Court, 67 Cal. 453; 7 Pac. 910. An affidavit stating that the affiant left a true copy of the notice at the office of the attorneys for the defendant, naming them, is insufficient to prove service of the notice. Gallardo v. Atlantic etc. Telegraph Co., 49 Cal. 510. The affidavit of service, in cases other than actual personal service, must show that all the requirements of the law to effect service have been complied with, and also the existence of the conditions authorizing service in the mode adopted. Mohr v. Byrne, 131 Cal. 288; 63 Pac. 341. An affidavit of service, stating that the notice was served on the attorney for the respondent by leaving it on the desk of the attorney, in the front room of his law office, between the hours of eight in the morning and six in the afternoon, and that there was no person in said front room at the time, is insufficient to show constructive service of the notice upon the attorney during his absence from his office. Dalzell v. Superior Court, 67 Cal. 453; 7 Pac. 910. A new affidavit of service, free from objection, may be filed, by leave, in the appellate court, to obviate an objection to the original proof of service. Martin v. Orñelas, 139 Cal. 41; 72 Pac. 440. The fact of service of notice of appeal from a justice's court may be proved by affidavit, pending a motion to dismiss. Dalzell v. Superior Court, 67 Cal. 453; 7 Pac. 910.

What constitutes personal service. See note 16 L. R. A. 200.

First and last days in computing time on motions and orders. See note 49 L. R. A. 222.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. 1. Service on attorney, where attorneys have been changed. If the attorney in an action is changed, but no regular substitution made, in the manner pointed out by § 285 of this code, all notices may be served on the attorney of record. Grant v. White, 6 Cal. 55; Roussin v. Stewart, 33 Cal. 208; see § 285, ante, and notes.

2. Evidence of service of notice. The following indorsement appeared upon the notice of the defendant's motion for a new trial: "Service admitted of the within notice, Nov. 17th, 1863. Served D. C., Nov. 17th, 1863, by sending notice in envelope (paying postage) directed to D. C. San Francisco. W. H. F." The notice was signed by "W. H. F., attorney for the defendant." The indorsement affords no evidence of the service, for it is not an admission by the plaintiff of service, and the service by mail is not verified by the certificate of an officer authorized to make service, nor by the affidavit of any person. Service upon a party may be personal, or by leaving the notice at his residence, or by mail, if his residence is not known. It does not appear that the plaintiff's residence was unknown, and therefore the service by mail did not constitute a legal service. Calderwood v. Brooks, 28 Cal. 154.

3. Waiver of service of notice. If it is not shown by the record that the party opposing an application for new trial proposed any amendments to the statement, or participated in its settlement, it will be presumed that he waived service of notice. Calderwood v. Brooks, 28 Cal. 154.

4. When acknowledgment of service does not waive objection that service was made too late. It is claimed that the appeal from the order refusing a new trial was not taken within sixty days after the order was made, and that therefore the appeal from that order must be dismissed. To this it is replied, that the respondent has waived this objection by the terms of his acceptance of the service of notice of appeal, which is in these words: "Due service of a copy of the within notice is hereby accepted to have been made this twentieth day of February, 1863," and we are referred to the cases of Talman v. Barnes, 12 Wend. 227, and Struver v. Ocean Ins. Co., 9 Abb. Pr. 23. In those cases it was held that an admission of "due service of a notice" is a waiver of the objection that it was not served in time. In this case the acceptance only admits that the notice was duly served at a certain date, and cannot be considered as a waiver of the objection. Towdy v. Ellis, 22 Cal. 657.

5. Affidavit of service of notice of appeal may contain what. The affiant, in his affidavit of service, says he "served the within notice on the plaintiff, by leaving a copy of the same at the office of J. G. D., plaintiff's attorney, in the town of Red Bluff, on the 23rd day of July, 1866." This affidavit fails to show a number of facts essential to constitute a valid service. It does not appear whether the attorney was absent, or whether any clerk was present, or anybody in charge of the office or not. If the attorney is present, the service must be personal; if a clerk, or some one in charge of the office, it is necessary to leave the notice with such clerk, or person in charge. If no one is present, it must be left "in a conspicuous place in the office." In this instance, for aught that appears to the contrary, it may have been put in the stove, or some other place where it was not likely to be found. If there was no person in the office, service could only be effected by leaving the notice "between the hours of eight in the morning and six in the afternoon." The time when the notice was left does not appear. The affidavit fails to show these essential facts, and therefore fails to show a valid service. Doll v. Smith, 32 Cal. 476.

6. Service of notice of appeal supplying proof of service pending appeal. The statute does not expressly provide how proof of service of the notice of appeal must be made. It is not doubted that the certificate of the sheriff, or the admission of the respondent's attorney, is competent proof of service; but it is insisted that service cannot be proved by the affidavit of a third person. The practice of proving service by affidavit has prevailed for many years, and, so far as we are apprised, without objection to the present time. Service of the notice, if not shown by an official certificate, or by the admission of the party served, must be proven by the affidavit of some competent person. No reason is suggested, and none occurs to us, why less value should be assigned to the affidavit of a third person than to that of the appellant or his attorney. The affidavit on which the appellant relies for proof of service is defective. The affiant, acting in behalf of the appellant and his attorneys, mailed a copy of the notice at Santa Cruz, directed to respondent's attorneys at San Francisco; but he does not state that he, or those for whom he acted, resided at Santa Cruz. This code (§ 1012) provides that "service by mail may be made when the person making the service, and the person on whom it is to be made, reside in different places, between which there is a regular communication by mail." The notice of appeal is signed by appellant's attorney, and he, and not his agent, must be regarded as "the person making the service." Schenck v. McKie, 4 How. Pr. 245. No presumption arises that he resided at Santa Cruz from the circumstance that the action was tried at that place. The fact that he resided there should have been shown by the affidavit, under the rule that a party relying upon substituted service must show a strict compliance with the requirements of the statute. People v. Alameda Turnpike Road Co., 30 Cal. 182; Doll v. Smith, 32 Cal. 475. The counsel did not offer to supply the facts omitted from the affidavit. We have heretofore indicated the course to be pursued in this respect. When the notice of appeal has been properly served, whether by personal or substituted service, the appellant, upon the hearing of the respondent's motion to dismiss the appeal on the ground that there is no proof of service, or that the proof is defective, may move for leave to supply the omitted proof. Upon leave being granted, the appellant may file in the court below the requisite affidavit, or official certificate of service, and a certified copy thereof may be annexed to the record in this court. This proof may be made and the certified copy procured before the hearing of the respondent's motion, when there is sufficient time after the defect is discovered. Moore v. Besse, 35 Cal. 186, 187.

§ 1012. Service by mail, when. Service by mail may be made, where the person making the service, and the person on whom it is to be made, reside or have their offices in different places, between which there is a regular communication by mail.

Legislation § 1012. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872, in the exact language of Practice Act, § 521 (New York Code, § 410).

2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1873–74, p. 343, inserting "or have their offices" after "reside."

Sufficiency of affidavit of service. To bring a case within this section, it must be shown by affidavit that the parties "reside or have their offices in different places"; if they have a known residence in the same city, § 1011, ante, is applicable. Koyer v. Benedict, 4 Cal. App. 48; 87 Pac. 231. An affidavit of service by mail is insufficient, if it does not show that the attorneys for the plaintiff and the defendant reside in different places and that there is a regular communication by mail between them. Rubenstine v. Superior Court, 18 Cal. App. 128; 122 Pac. 820; Linforth v. White, 129 Cal. 188; 61 Pac. 910. Service by mail, of notice of default in a justice's court, is insufficient, if it fails to show that the person who made the service and the person served resided or had offices at different places. Townsend v. Parker, 21 Cal. App. 317; 131 Pac. 766.

Service by mail. See note post, § 1013.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. See note 6 to § 1011, ante; Moore v. Besse, 35 Cal. 186. A party relying upon a service by mail or otherwise than by actual service on the proper person, must show a strict compliance with the requirements of the statute. Bross v. Nicholson, 1 How. Pr. 158; Schenck v. McKie, 4 How. Pr. 247; also Anonymous, 1 Hill (N. Y.), 217, 218; Smith v. Acker, 23 Wend. 677; Birdsall v. Taylor, 1 How Pr. 89; Paddock v. Beebee, 2 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 117. It will be observed that by § 1012 of this code, service by mail is good only where the person making the service, and the person on whom it is to be made, reside in different places between which there is no regular communication by mail. The affidavit of P. does not show that there was a regular communication by mail between his place of residence and the place of residence of defendant's attorneys, nor that there was any communication whatever by mail between the two places, and we cannot judicially know or intend there was. The affidavit fails to show that the service attempted to be made was effectual. Where service is sought to be made by mail, it should appear that the conditions on which its validity depends had existence, otherwise the evidence must be held insufficient to establish the fact of service. People v. Alameda Turnpike Road Co., 30 Cal. 184.

Distance. Ante, § 1005.

Legislation § 1013. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 522, as amended by Stats. 1861, p. 497, which read: "In case of service by mail, the notice, or other paper, shall be deposited in the post-office, addressed to the person on whom it is to be served, at his place of residence, and the postage paid. And in such case, the time of service shall be increased one day for every twenty-five miles distance, between the place of deposit and the place of address; provided, that service in any case shall be deemed complete at the end of ninety days from the date of its deposit in the post-office." When § 1013 was enacted in 1872, it read the same as at present, except for the amendments of 1873–74 and 1907.

2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1873–74, p. 343. (1) inserting "office or" after "his"; (2) changing semicolon to comma after "deposit" and after "address."

3. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 173; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

4. Amended by Stats. 1907, p. 602. (1) inserting "in a sealed envelope" after "post-office," and (2) substituting "thirty" for "ninety"; the code commissioner saying, "Directs that notices deposited in the post-office be inclosed in sealed envelopes, and substitutes 'thirty' for 'ninety' in the last line."

Application of section. This section applies, according to its terms, where some act must be done or right exercised within a certain number of days after service, and not to the right to be present at a proceeding, of which a prescribed notice must be given; hence, it does not apply to a notice of the time set for the justification of the sureties on an appeal bond (Brown v. Rouse, 115 Cal. 619; 47 Pac. 601); nor does it apply where notice that a cause has been set for trial has been given by mail; and the party so notified cannot claim the time given by this section after the mailing of such notice, before a legal trial can be had. Eltzroth v. Ryan, 91 Cal. 584; 27 Pac. 932. The time of filing a paper, such as a notice of appeal, where the same is forwarded to the clerk by mail, is not extended by the provisions of this section. McDonald v. Lee, 132 Cal. 252; 64 Pac. 250. This section has been applied to the service of amendments to a proposed bill of exceptions to be used on motion for a new trial. Prefumo v. Russell, 148 Cal. 451; 83 Pac. 810.

Essentials of service by mail. A notice of appeal need not be deposited in the post-office at any particular place: the only essentials are residence or offices in different places, and a regular mail communication between the place of mailing and the place of destination. Luck v. Luck, 83 Cal. 574; 23 Pac. 1035.

Person making service. Where service is made by mail, and the notice of appeal is signed by the appellant's attorney, he, and not his agent who deposits the paper in the post-office, must be regarded as the person making the service. Moore v. Besse, 35 Cal. 184.

Service is complete when. The service of notice of appeal is complete at the time of the deposit in the post-office, where the service is made by mail; and the time to file the undertaking on appeal commences to run from the time of such deposit. Brown v. Green, 65 Cal. 221; 3 Pac. 811.

Sufficiency of affidavit of service. Service by mail is good only where the person making the service, and the person on whom it is to be made, reside in different places, between which there is a regular communication by mail; and a party relying upon such service must show a strict compliance with the requirements of the statute; and if the affidavit of service does not show that there was a regular communication by mail between such places, nor that there was any communication whatever between the two places, the court cannot judicially know or intend that there was, and the proof of service is insufficient. People v. Alameda Turnpike Road Co., 30 Cal. 182. A party relying upon service by mail, or otherwise than by actual service upon the proper person, must show a strict compliance with the requirements of the statute; and the affidavit of service should show that the person making the service and the person served resided or had their offices at different places, between which there was regular communication by mail. People v. Alameda Turnpike Road Co., 30 Cal. 182; Moore v. Besse, 35 Cal. 183; Linforth v. White, 129 Cal. 188; 61 Pac. 910. Where the affidavit of the proof of service by mail fails to show that the person making the service and the person on whom it is made reside or have their offices in different places, between which there is a regular communication by mail, it is insufficient. Hogs Back Consol. Mining Co. v. New Basil Consol. Mining Co., 63 Cal. 121. The affidavit must show where the parties reside; and if both the party making the service and the party served reside or have their offices in the same place, the service should be personal. Cunningham v. Warnekey, 61 Cal. 507.

Effect of insufficient proof of service. A default entered on insufficient proof of service by mail will be vacated and set aside. Hogs Back Consol. Mining Co. v. New Basil Consol. Mining Co., 63 Cal. 121.

Admission of service. The admission of service of notice of appeal as of a certain day is an admission that service was made on that day, although the party making the service and the party served resided or had their offices in different counties. Brown v. Green, 65 Cal. 221; 3 Pac. 811. Proof of service in the record, that a copy of the notice of appeal had been deposited in the post-office, addressed to the attorney of the respondent, at a place confessedly not his office or place of residence, is insufficient, for the reason that the appellant has failed to show that any notice of appeal has been served; jurisdiction, however, does not depend upon the proof of service, but upon the fact that service has been made; and on a motion to dismiss an appeal upon the ground that the record does not show a sufficient service of the notice, the appellant may show by other proof that the notice was properly served, and an affidavit by the attorney for the respondent, that he actually received such notice through the post-office, is sufficient. Heinlen v. Heilbron, 94 Cal. 636; 30 Pac. 8.

Time and distance computed how. Under this section and § 650, ante, where notice of a decision is served by mail upon the attorney of the adverse party, whose office and residence are distant seventy miles from the place of deposit, the latter has twelve days from the date of the deposit within which to serve and file a notice of his intention to move for a new trial. Sullivan v. Wallace, 73 Cal. 307; 14 Pac. 789. The distance between the place of mailing the notice and the place to which it is addressed is a question of fact, to be determined by proper evidence; and the act of the legislature defining the legal distances from each county seat to the state capitol, etc., has no application, being made for the purpose of computing the mileage allowances for certain officers. Neely v. Naglee, 23 Cal. 154.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. See § 1005. If a notice is served by mail, the distance which it is required to travel is a fact to be determined by proper evidence. Neely v. Naglee, 23 Cal. 154.

§ 1014. Appearance. Notices after appearance. A defendant appears in an action when he answers, demurs, or gives the plaintiff written notice of his appearance, or when an attorney gives notice of appearance for him. After appearance, a defendant or his attorney is entitled to notice of all subsequent proceedings of which notice is required to be given. But where a defendant has not appeared, service of notice or papers need not be made upon him unless he is imprisoned for want of bail.

Appearance, waiver of summons. Ante, §§ 406, 416.

Notice of subsequent proceedings, how given. Post, § 1015.

Appearance in forcible entry and detainer, before day fixed. See post, § 1170.

Legislation § 1014. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 523 (New York Code, § 414), substituting (1) "appears" for "shall be deemed to appear," (2) "is" for "shall be," and (3) "is" for "be" before "imprisoned."

Object of section. This section was intended to settle all disputes as to what shall constitute an appearance. Vrooman v. Li Po Tai, 113 Cal. 302; 45 Pac. 470; McDonald v. Agnew, 122 Cal. 448; 55 Pac. 125; Salmonson v. Streiffer, 13 Cal. App. 395; 110 Pac. 144; Western Lumber etc. Co. v. Merchants' Amusement Co., 13 Cal. App. 4; 108 Pac. 891; and see Steinbach v. Leese, 27 Cal. 295.

Construction of section. The words "answers" and "demurs," as used in this section, are obviously words of enumeration, and, on appeal, the court will not, on recognized principles, interpolate into the text, notices of motions for new trials, notices of appeal, or any other paper served incidentally in the conduct of judicial proceedings, the direct and principal purpose of which is to give notice, not of appearance, but of a step taken, or about to be taken, in the cause. Steinbach v. Leese, 27 Cal. 295.

What constitutes appearance. A defendant cannot appear in an action so as to give the court jurisdiction of his person, except by answering, demurring, or giving the plaintiff written notice that he appears. Steinbach v. Leese, 27 Cal. 295. Verbal authority to enter judgment, given by a defendant to a plaintiff, is not an appearance in the action, nor a power of attorney to confess judgment: it cannot take the place of an answer upon the judgment roll, so as to dispense with the summons and return as part thereof. Siskiyou County Bank v. Hoyt, 132 Cal. 81; 64 Pac. 118. The written consent of the defendant to the entry of judgment as prayed, signed by his attorney, constitutes a sufficient appearance. Foote v. Richmond, 42 Cal. 439. An unfiled stipulation that the plaintiff may at any time enter a default of the defendant, and take judgment thereon, and that execution should be stayed while specified payments were made, is in lieu of an answer admitting the allegations of the complaint, and is a consent to the jurisdiction of the court, and to the entry of the appearance of the defendant, and of judgment after the time limited by statute, and estops the defendant from insisting upon a dismissal of the action, on the ground that the plaintiff has not served the summons within three years, or prosecuted the action with diligence. Cooper v. Gordon, 125 Cal. 296; 57 Pac. 1006. A stipulation extending the time to plead, if it could be considered as an appearance, must be made before the expiration of the three years prescribed by § 581, ante, or it cannot be held a bar to a dismissal. Grant v. McArthur, 137 Cal. 270; 70 Pac. 88. The taking and filing of a stipulation extending the time to answer, and accepting and acting upon an agreement contained therein to grant successive extensions in consideration of certain payments made, does not constitute an appearance. Vrooman v. Li Po Tai, 113 Cal. 302; 45 Pac. 470. A notice that the defendant will move to dissolve an attachment issued in a cause is not such an appearance in the case as will authorize a judgment by default. Glidden v. Packard, 28 Cal. 649.

Voluntary appearance confers jurisdiction. Where the court cannot acquire jurisdiction of an action, except by transfer from another court, the voluntary appearance of the defendant cannot confer jurisdiction. Descalso v. Municipal Court, 60 Cal. 296. After the voluntary appearance of a non-resident defendant, the court has jurisdiction to render a personal judgment against him. Hodgkins v. Dunham, 10 Cal. App. 690; 103 Pac. 351. The voluntary appearance of a party gives the court jurisdiction over his person, with the same effect as if he had been brought in by the service of summons; such appearance, within the three years prescribed by § 581, ante, obviates the necessity of any service of summons within that period. Union Savings Bank v. Barrett, 132 Cal. 453; 64 Pac. 713. Where an executor voluntarily appears, such appearance has the same effect as if he had been served with summons. Union Savings Bank v. Barrett, 132 Cal. 453; 64 Pac. 713. The voluntary appearance of an executor, in proceedings relating to the estate, is a waiver of the issuance and service of a citation on him. Estate of Johnson, 45 Cal. 257. Where a person, not a party to an original action, was served with copies of the order and of the papers on which it was based, requiring him to appear for examination, and he did appear and was examined, the court had jurisdiction of his person in the supplementary proceedings. Bronzan v. Drobaz, 93 Cal. 647; 29 Pac. 254.

Appearance by demurrer. A demurrer constitutes an appearance; and where a demurrer is on file, and not acted upon, a default cannot be entered. Hestres v. Clements, 21 Cal. 425; Dudley v. Superior Court, 13 Cal. App. 271; 110 Pac. 146. A defendant, by demurring to a complaint, necessarily appears and submits himself to the jurisdiction of the court, notwithstanding a recital in the demurrer to the contrary, and that his appearance is only for the purpose of demurring; and default and judgment for failure to answer after the overruling of the demurrer may be regularly entered. McDonald v. Agnew, 122 Cal. 448; 55 Pac. 125. In an action against several defendants, one of whom had not been served with summons, where a demurrer was served and filed, beginning with the words, "And now come the defendants," etc., and signed by the attorneys of record, there was an appearance of all the defendants, under this section. Rowland v. Coyne, 55 Cal. 1.

Appearance by answer. The answer of the defendants to a complaint is a voluntary appearance by them, and is equivalent to personal service upon them of the summons and a copy of complaint. Ghiradelli v. Greene, 56 Cal. 629. In probate proceedings, where a party appears and moves to dismiss on the ground of defective service of the citation, and upon the overruling of such objection, answers to the merits, such answer gives the court jurisdiction, and it is immaterial whether a citation ever issued. Abila v. Padilla, 14 Cal. 103. Where an attorney appears for only some of several defendants, and afterwards inadvertently files an answer for all, but, on discovering his mistake, obtains an order allowing him to withdraw his answer and substitute a new one limited to the defendants for whom he intended to answer, the court acquires jurisdiction only of those for whom the attorney finally appears. Forbes v. Hyde, 31 Cal. 342. A voluntary appearance is a waiver of all defects of process, even when objection is taken in the same action; and, under the practice in this state, the plaintiff, by filing his complaint, goes himself into court, and although he should not take out a summons, he cannot object to the defendant coming in and answering, any more than he can object to the defendant's voluntary appearance after he has taken out a summons which he does not serve; and quite as little can the defendant, in a collateral action, object that there is no action pending, after voluntarily putting in an answer to a complaint on file. Hayes v. Shattuck, 21 Cal. 51.

General appearance. An appearance for any purpose, other than to question the jurisdiction of the court, is general. Zobel v. Zobel, 151 Cal. 98; 90 Pac. 191. A general appearance by a defendant waives all question as to the service of process, and is equivalent to personal service. California Pine Box etc. Co. v. Superior Court, 13 Cal. App. 65; 108 Pac. 882; Western Lumber etc. Co. v. Merchants' Amusement Co., 13 Cal. App. 4; 108 Pac. 891; Hodgkins v. Dunham, 10 Cal. App. 690; 103 Pac. 351. A defendant who appears and asks some relief, which can be granted only on the hypothesis that the court has jurisdiction, submits to the jurisdiction of the court as completely as if he had been regularly served with process. Zobel v. Zobel, 151 Cal. 98; 90 Pac. 191. A motion to set aside the service of summons may be made without entering a general appearance in the action. Eldridge v. Kay, 45 Cal. 49. Where a party wishes to insist upon the objection that he is not in court for want of jurisdiction over his person, he must specially appear for that purpose only, and must keep out for all other purposes, if he would refrain from making a general appearance; and if he should raise any other question, or ask for any relief which can only be granted upon the hypothesis that the court has jurisdiction of his person, his appearance in general, though termed special. Security etc. Trust Co. v. Boston etc. Fruit Co., 126 Cal. 418; 58 Pac. 941; 59 Pac. 296. An appearance for the purpose, only, of making a motion to dismiss is not a general appearance which waives the right to make the motion. Linden Gravel Mining Co. v. Sheplar, 53 Cal. 245. Where a motion to set aside a judgment shows that relief is sought upon the ground of the excusable neglect of the defendant in not properly examining a copy of the summons and complaint, the appearance of the attorney for the defendant is general, and, in the absence of a substitution of attorneys, a notice of appeal may be served upon such attorney. Thompson v. Alford, 128 Cal. 227; 60 Pac. 686. An appearance for the purpose of making an application for a continuance or postponement of some matter pending before the court, is a general, voluntary, personal appearance, and is followed by the consequences of personal appearance. Zobel v. Zobel, 151 Cal. 98; 90 Pac. 191.

Special appearance. A defendant has the right to appear for the special purpose of moving to dismiss for a defective summons; and where the court denies the motion, a general appearance afterwards, and an answer, do not operate as a waiver of the right, nor cure the error. Lyman v. Milton, 44 Cal. 630. The provision of § 581, ante, that an action shall be dismissed if the summons is not served and returned within three years, is mandatory; and a defendant served with summons after that time is entitled to such dismissal, even though he has made default, if he has not appeared generally in the action, but only specially to demand the dismissal. Sharpstein v. Eells, 132 Cal. 507; 64 Pac. 1080. A notice that the defendant appears in the action for the sole purpose of making a motion to quash the summons in the action, and to dismiss the action, is a sufficient appearance to entitle the defendant to be heard upon the motion. Lander v. Flemming, 47 Cal. 614. A special appearance for the purpose of quashing the summons or proof of service, is not a general submission to the jurisdiction of the court. McDonald v. Agnew, 122 Cal. 448; 55 Pac. 125. A special appearance to move to dismiss, and to procure an order extending the time to plead one day after the ruling on the motion, does not amount to an appearance authorizing the entry of a default. Kennedy v. Mulligan, 136 Cal. 556; 69 Pac. 291. A special appearance to move to strike out an amended complaint, and, ancillary to such motion, to ask for an extension of the time to move or to plead until such motion shall be disposed of, is not an appearance, within the meaning of this section. Powers v. Braly, 75 Cal. 237; 17 Pac. 197. A party ought not to be allowed the benefit of any proceeding, unless he also assumes the responsibility for it; his appearance for one purpose is a good appearance in the action; and a party should not be allowed to appear only for the purpose of moving to set aside the default, for the purpose of first moving the dismissal of the suit, and if that motion should be unsuccessful, to answer upon the merits. Douglass v. Pacific Mail S. S. Co., 4 Cal. 304. The appearance of a party for the purpose of objecting to a void judgment does not cure the defect in such judgment. Gray v. Hawes, 8 Cal. 562.

Notice of appearance. The written notice of appearance provided for in this section, is a document to be drawn up especially for that purpose, the service of which is to antedate or to be contemporaneous with the service of all other notices and papers. Steinbach v. Leese, 27 Cal. 295. A formal notice in writing, given by the defendants, and addressed to the clerk of the court, declaring that "herewith we do enter our appearance," which appearance is coupled with a consent that judgment may be entered in favor of the plaintiff as prayed for in the complaint, is a strict compliance with this section. Anglo-Californian Bank v. Griswold, 153 Cal. 692; 96 Pac. 353.

Time for filing. Neither this section nor § 581, ante, requires an appearance to be filed within any specified time. Anglo-Californian Bank v. Griswold, 153 Cal. 692; 96 Pac. 353.

Appearance by attorney. An attorney's appearance is presumably lawful, and the burden of proof rests upon the party denying such authority to sustain his denial. People v. Western Meat Co., 13 Cal. App. 539; 110 Pac. 338; Hayes v. Shattuck, 21 Cal. 51. In the absence of a statutory requirement that the authority of an attorney shall be evidenced by writing, it is always presumed that an attorney appearing and acting for a party to a cause has authority so to do; and where an appearance was made by an attorney, without objection from the parties for several years thereafter, they will not be heard to say that such appearance was unauthorized, upon the hearing of a motion to dismiss for failure to return the summons. Pacific Paving Co. v. Vizelich, 141 Cal. 4; 74 Pac. 352. An appearance by an attorney is prima facie evidence that he has been retained in the cause: it would be a dangerous practice to afford litigants an opportunity of availing themselves of the plea of mistake of counsel, in order to escape from the judgments of courts. Suydam v. Pitcher, 4 Cal. 280. Although the authority of an attorney appearing in an action is presumed, yet the court can always require evidence of his authorization, and may correct mistakes and rectify any unauthorized appearance. San Francisco Savings Union v. Long, 123 Cal. 107; 55 Pac 708. An appearance entered by an attorney, whether authorized or not, is a good and sufficient appearance to bind the party, except in those cases where fraud has been used, or it is shown that the attorney is unable to respond in damages. Suydam v. Pitcher, 4 Cal. 280. The unauthorized appearance of an attorney in an action is not a sufficient ground to disturb the judgment, unless fraud or collusion, or the insolvency of the attorney, can be shown; the remedy is against the attorney. Sampson v. Ohleyer, 22 Cal. 200. At common law, and by the express letter of our statute, an appearance by an attorney amounts to an acknowledgment or waiver of service. Suydam v. Pitcher, 4 Cal. 280. Where summons has not been served upon any one of several defendants in an action, an appearance by an attorney at the request of one of the defendants, although purporting to be in behalf of all, is not binding upon those who did not authorize the appearance. Merced County v. Hicks, 67 Cal. 108; 7 Pac. 179. Though an attorney, other than the attorney of record, may appear for an appellant in the trial court, yet such appearance does not authorize him subsequently to sign a notice of motion for a new trial, without a proper substitution in the trial court as attorney of record for the moving party; nor does the recognition of such attorney as the attorney for such party upon a former appeal operate to waive an objection to his want of authority to sign such notice. McMahon v. Thomas, 114 Cal. 588; 46 Pac. 732. A party may appear in his own proper person, or by attorney, but he cannot do both. Boca etc. R. R. Co. v. Superior Court, 150

Cal. 153; 88 Pac. 718. Where a defendant in divorce proceedings was charged with contempt of court in refusing to obey its order respecting alimony, and conceals himself to avoid the service of process, and the court orders service upon his attorney of record, who appears for him in answer to the order, and submits evidence upon the merits, without objection to the want of personal service, the court has jurisdiction over the defendant, and it was not necessary that he should appear personally, nor could he be required to be present. Foley v. Foley, 120 Cal. 33; 65 Am. St. Rep. 147; 52 Pac. 122. A party to an action must be heard in court through his attorney; and the court has not power, nor authority of law, to recognize any other person in the conduct or disposition of the case, than the attorney of record; hence, a stipulation signed by a party, providing for certain steps in the action, will be disregarded. Toy v. Haskell, 128 Cal. 558; 79 Am. St. Rep. 70; 61 Pac. 89.

Waiver of summons by appearance. Voluntary answers or demurrers to a complaint are equivalent to the due service of summons, and are a waiver of the right to take advantage of any defect in the issuance, service, or return of the summons. Adams v. Hopkins, 144 Cal. 19; 77 Pac. 712.

Waiver of service, notice, and rights. Putting in an answer is an appearance, and must be held to be a waiver of the mere formality of issuing a summons, the service of which, in such case, becomes unnecessary. Hayes v. Shattuck, 21 Cal. 51.

Waiver of notice. An appearance at the hearing of a motion, and resisting such motion on the merits, without any objection to the sufficiency of the notice of the motion, is a waiver of the usual notice of the motion. Toy v. Haskell, 128 Cal. 558; 79 Am. St. Rep. 70; 61 Pac. 89. Notice of motion to change the place of trial is not required to be given defendants who have not appeared in the action; and, if such defendants appear and take part on the hearing of such motion, they cannot be heard to complain, and must be deemed to have waived previous service of the moving papers. Wood v. Herman Mining Co., 139 Cal. 713; 73 Pac. 588. The notice of appeal corresponds to the summons, and, like the issuance of the summons, may be waived; and a voluntary appearance is equivalent to personal service of the notice; but a mere waiver of the service is insufficient: there must be given, in addition, a notice of appearance, either in person or by an attorney. Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc. v. Lewis, 111 Cal. 519; 44 Pac. 175. The requirement of § 285, ante, that notice of a change of attorneys shall be served upon the adverse party, is for the benefit of the adverse party, and may be waived by him or his attorney; and where the attorney for a respondent admitted, in writing, the service of a copy of a notice of appeal, without objecting that it was signed by an attorney other than the attorney of record of the appellant, the notice of substitution will be held to have been waived. Livermore v. Webb, 56 Cal. 489.

Waiver of rights. The special appearance of a defendant to move to strike out parts of the complaint, contemporaneously with the filing of the demurrer, whether under a rule of court or otherwise, is not a waiver of his right to move for a change of venue. Wood v. Herman Mining Co., 139 Cal. 713; 73 Pac. 588.

Waiver of irregularities, generally. An appearance by the defendant for the purpose of taking advantage of irregular summons by a motion to dismiss, is not a waiver of his rights so as to cure the defect: had he answered without any objection, he could not afterwards complain. Deidesheimer v. Brown, 8 Cal. 339. Answering after the denial of a motion to set aside the service of summons, is not a waiver of the objection upon which the motion was based. Kent v. West, 50 Cal. 185. An appearance, and a motion to set aside a judgment, upon which it is admitted that the defendant was actually served with summons, is a waiver of any irregularity in the service. Thompson v. Alford, 135 Cal. 52; 66 Pac. 983. A written notice, signed by attorneys, that "We have been retained by, and appear hereby for, the above-named defendant in the above-entitled action," is a sufficient appearance and a waiver of summons. Dyer v. North, 44 Cal. 157.

Appearance not part of judgment roll. It is not required that an appearance be made a part of the judgment roll. Western Lumber etc. Co. v. Merchants' Amusement Co., 13 Cal. App. 4; 108 Pac. 891; Brown v. Caldwell, 13 Cal. App. 29; 108 Pac. 874.

Service of notice of appeal. The notice of appeal need not be served upon a defendant who has not been served with summons nor appeared in the action. Clarke v. Mohr, 125 Cal. 540; 58 Pac. 176.

Waiver of special appearance by pleading to merits. See note 4 Ann. Cas. 290.

Appearance for purpose of moving to set aside attachment for lack of jurisdiction as general or special appearance. See note 18 Ann. Cas. 913.

Taking steps to contest a cause on the merits after a special appearance as waiver of objections to jurisdiction over the person. See note 16 L. R. A. (N. S.) 177.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. 1. Appearance in general. If the appearance of parties is shown in general terms by the record, the appearance will be confined to those parties served with process. Chester v. Miller, 13 Cal. 558. If the defendant appears for the sole purpose of taking advantage of irregular summons by a motion to dismiss, it does not amount to a waiver of his rights so as to cure the defect; and if the motion so made to dismiss is overruled, and defendant answers, it is not such an appearance as waives the irregularity. Deidesheimer v. Brown, 8 Cal. 339; Gray v. Hawes, 8 Cal. 569. A notice given by an attorney to plaintiff's attorney that defendant will move, before a court commissioner, for the dissolution of an attachment, is not an appearance in the action. Glidden v. Packard, 28 Cal. 649. If the court orders plaintiff to appear and show cause why a judgment in his favor should not be set aside, and it is not shown that a copy of the order was served on plaintiff or his attorney, or that any notice was given of the time at which the matter was to be heard, the court must not set aside the judgment. Vallejo v. Green, 16 Cal. 160. Where a case was transferred, and jurisdiction given to a magistrate, by consent of parties, the appearance of defendant, and his consent fixing the time of trial, were a waiver of his right to be brought in by complaint and summons. Cronise v. Carghill, 4 Cal. 120. A defendant cannot appear, except by answering, demurring, or giving the plaintiff written notice that he appears; and the service of notice of appearance must antedate or bear even date with the service of all other papers. Steinback v. Leese, 27 Cal. 297.

2. Appearance by an attorney at law. A party to an action may appear in his own proper person, or by attorney, but he cannot do both. If he appears by attorney, such attorney must control and manage the case. Board of Commissioners v. Younger, 29 Cal. 147; 87 Am. Dec. 164. The right of an attorney of record to manage and control the action cannot be questioned by the adverse party. Board of Commissioners v. Younger, 29 Cal. 147; 87 Am. Dec. 164. It is presumed that an attorney is authorized to appear for parties for whom he enters an appearance in an action, unless something to the contrary appears. Hayes v. Shattuck, 21 Cal. 51; Willson v. Cleaveland, 30 Cal. 192; Holmes v. Rogers, 13 Cal. 191. And such action will not be reviewed on the ground of mistake, unless the mistake be without any fault or negligence of either the party or his attorney. Holmes v. Rogers, 13 Cal. 191. And the opposing party cannot deny the authority of the attorney so appearing to prosecute the action. Turner v. Caruthers, 17 Cal. 431. An appearance entered by an attorney, whether authorized or not, is a good and sufficient appearance to bind the party, except in those cases where fraud has been used, or it is shown that the attorney is unable to respond in damages. Suydam v. Pitcher, 4 Cal. 280. Even if the appearance of the attorney was wholly unauthorized, yet if there was no fraud and no allegation of insolvency, the party would not have a right to attack the judgment on that ground. Holmes v. Rogers, 13 Cal. 191; Carpentier v. Oakland, 30 Cal. 440. An attorney should communicate to his client whatever information he acquires in relation to the suit, and notice to him is constructive notice to his client. Bierce v. Red Bluff Hotel Co., 31 Cal. 160. For power and authority of attorney to bind client, etc., see §§ 283, 284, ante, and notes.

3. Appearance of party by mistake of attorney. Forbes v. Hyde, 31 Cal. 342; see § 406, ante, note 3.

§ 1015. Service on non-residents. When a plaintiff or a defendant, who has appeared, resides out of the state, and has no attorney in the action or proceeding, the service may be made on the clerk for him. But in all cases where a party has an attorney in the action or proceeding, the service of papers, when required, must be upon the attorney instead of the party, except service of subpœnas, of writs, and other process issued in the suit, and of papers to bring him into contempt. If the sole attorney for a party is removed or suspended from practice, then the party has no attorney within the meaning of this section. If his sole attorney has no known office in this state, notices and papers may be served by leaving a copy thereof with the clerk of the court, unless such attorney shall have filed in the cause an address of a place at which notices and papers may be served on him, in which event they may be served at such place.

Attorney.
1. Authority of. Ante, § 283.
2. Duties of. Ante, § 282.
3. Disbarred when. Ante, §§ 287–299.

Service, how made. Ante, § 1011.

Legislation § 1015. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872: based on Practice Act, § 524 (New York Code, § 415), substituting "must" for "shall."

2. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 179; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

3. Amended by Stats. 1907, p. 602, (1) inserting "service" before "of subpœnas," and (2) adding the last two sentences; the code commissioners saying, "The amendment adds the last two sentences and is intended to supply a mode of serving notices and papers when the attorney for a party has been removed or suspended or has no known office within the state."

Service must be on attorney when. The provision of this section is controlling, and requires the service of the notice of appeal to be made upon the attorney of the adverse party, when such party has an attorney. Abrahms v. Stokes, 39 Cal. 150; and see Grant v. White, 6 Cal. 55. The provision of § 940, ante, that the notice of appeal shall be served upon the adverse party or his attorney, must be read in connection with this section; and such notice must be served upon the attorney of the party, and not upon the party himself. Estate of Nelson, 128 Cal. 242; 60 Pac. 772; Mohr v. Byrne, 131 Cal. 288; 63 Pac. 341; Jones v. McGarvey, 6 Cal. Unrep. 277; 56 Pac. 896. Service of a notice to dissolve an attachment must be made upon the attorney for the plaintiff. Finch v. McVean, 6 Cal. App. 272; 91 Pac. 1019. The notice of appeal must be served on the attorneys for the adverse party, who have appeared in the action. Linforth v. White, 129 Cal. 188; 61 Pac. 910.

What attorney must be served. Service of the notice of appeal on the attorney of record for the adverse party is sufficient. Matthews v. Superior Court, 70 Cal. 527; 11 Pac. 665. Service of the notice of appeal on the attorney who signed the original answer of the defendant, although another attorney signed the amended answer, where there was no substitution of attorneys, is good, although the defendant represented by such attorney was dead at the time of service. Lacoste v. Eastland, 117 Cal. 673; 49 Pac. 1046.

Effect of service on attorney. Service of a cross-complaint on the plaintiff's attorneys sets the time running within which they must answer or demur thereto. Ritter v. Braash, 11 Cal. App. 258; 104 Pac. 592.

Service must be on party when. After the appearance of a party by attorney, only such writs and process as affect the party, as distinguished from the litigation, are required to be served upon the party personally. Finch v. McVean, 6 Cal. App. 272; 91 Pac. 1019.

Service on party in contempt proceedings. See note post, § 1016.

Effect of special appearance. The special appearance of an attorney, for the purpose of a motion before demurrer or answer, is not such an appearance as to entitle him, or the parties represented by him, to notice of subsequent motions and proceedings. Wood v. Herman Mining Co., 139 Cal. 713; 73 Pac. 588.

Waiver of notice. There may be a waiver of notice of decision; but no rule of waiver applies when written notice is served by mail or otherwise; in such cases there is nothing to waive. Estate of Richards, 154 Cal. 478; 98 Pac. 528. An application to stay execution, made on the same day on which the notice of decision was mailed by defendant to plaintiff's attorney, cannot operate as a waiver of service of the notice. Estate of Richards, 154 Cal. 478; 98 Pac. 528.

§ 1016. Preceding provisions not to apply to proceeding to bring party into contempt. The foregoing provisions of this chapter do not apply to the service of a summons or other process, or of any paper to bring a party into contempt.

Legislation § 1016. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 519. See ante, Legislation § 1010.

Construction of code. There is no express provision in the code as to the mode of service of the order to show cause upon a corporation in contempt proceedings. Golden Gate Consol. etc. Mining Co. v. Superior Court, 65 Cal. 187; 3 Pac. 628.

Construction of section. An order to show cause why a party should not be punished for contempt is a "paper to bring a party into contempt," within the meaning of this section; and, ordinarily, the service of such paper, like that of summons, must, in the case of a corporation, be upon the president or other head of the corporation, secretary, cashier, or managing agent thereof. Golden Gate Consol. etc. Mining Co. v. Superior Court, 65 Cal. 187; 3 Pac. 628.

Necessity for service. Before a party can be brought into contempt for not complying with an order, such order must be served upon him, and the mere delivery, to a person in another state, of a certified copy of the order is not such a service as the law requires. Johnson v. Superior Court, 63 Cal. 578; Hennessy v. Nicol, 105 Cal. 138; 38 Pac. 649.

Service on attorney when. Where the officers of a corporation, charged with contempt in disobeying a legal order, willfully conceal themselves to avoid service of an order to show cause why they should not be adjudged guilty of a contempt, the court may order that service be made upon its attorney in the action. Golden Gate Consol. etc. Mining Co. v. Superior Court, 65 Cal. 187; 3 Pac. 628.

§ 1017. Service by telegraph. Any summons, writ, or order in any civil suit or proceeding, and all other papers requiring service, may be transmitted by telegraph for service in any place, and the telegraphic copy of such writ, or order, or paper so transmitted, may be served or executed by the officer or person to whom it is sent for that purpose, and returned by him, if any return be requisite, in the same manner, and with the same force and effect in all respects, as the original thereof might be if delivered to him, and the officer or person serving or executing the same has the same authority, and is subject to the same liabilities, as if the copy were the original. The original, when a writ or order, must also be filed in the court from which it was issued, and a certified copy thereof must be preserved in the telegraph-office from which it was sent. In sending it, either the original or the certified copy may be used by the operator for that purpose. Whenever any document to be sent by telegraph bears a seal, either private or official, it is not necessary for the operator, in sending the same, to telegraph a description of the seal, or any words or device thereon, but the same may be expressed in the telegraphic copy by the letters "L. S.," or by the word "seal."

Legislation § 1017. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Stats. 1862, p. 292, § 17.

§ 1018. [No section with this number.]

§ 1019. Service of pleadings in action for divorce for adultery. When in an action for divorce adultery is charged against either party and the person with whom such adultery is alleged to have been committed by such party is named in any of the pleadings, a copy of such pleadings must be personally served on such named person; or, in case such named person cannot be found, such notice of the action and of the connection of such person therewith shall be given as shall be ordered by the court; the said person so served shall have the right to appear and plead and be heard in such action in the same manner and to the same extent as the parties to the action.

CHAPTER VI.

COSTS.

§ 1021. Compensation of attorneys. Costs to parties.
§ 1022. When allowed of course to plaintiff.
§ 1023. Several actions brought on a single cause of action can carry costs in but one.
§ 1024. Defendant's costs must be allowed of course, in certain cases.
§ 1025. Costs, when in the discretion of the court.
§ 1026. When the several defendants are not united in interest, costs may be severed.
§ 1027. Costs on appeal.
§ 1028. Referee's fees.
§ 1029. Continuance, costs may be imposed as condition of.
§ 1030. Costs when a tender is made before suit brought.
§ 1031. Costs in action by or against an administrator, etc.
§ 1032. Costs in a review other than by appeal.
§ 1033. Filing of and affidavit to bill of costs.
§ 1034. Costs on appeal, how claimed and recovered.
§ 1035. Interest and costs must be included by the clerk in the judgment.
§ 1036. When plaintiff is a non-resident or foreign corporation, defendant may require security for costs.
§ 1037. If such security be not given, the action may be dismissed.
§ 1038. Costs when state is a party.
§ 1039. Costs when county is a party.

§ 1021. Compensation of attorneys. Costs to parties. The measure and mode of compensation of attorneys and counselors at law is left to the agreement, express or implied, of the parties; but parties to actions or proceedings are entitled to costs and disbursements, as hereinafter provided.

Counsel fees.
1. Action for contribution by co-owner of irrigation-ditch. See Civ. Code, § 843.

4. Probate matter. Post, § 1718.

Costs and counsel fees.
1. Mechanics' liens. Post, § 1195.
2. Partition. Ante, §§ 796, 798, 801.

Costs in particular actions. See specific title.

Legislation § 1021. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 494 (New York Code, § 203), as amended by Stats. 1855, p. 250, which read: "The measure and mode of compensation of attorneys and counselors shall be left to the agreement, express or implied, of the parties; but there shall be allowed to the prevailing party in any action in the supreme court, district court, superior court of the city of San Francisco, and county courts, his costs and necessary disbursements in the action, or special proceeding in the nature of an action."

2. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 179; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

Application of section. The sections comprising this chapter, providing for costs generally, have no application to proceedings in probate, the costs of which are regulated by § 1720, post, which must prevail, as being a later special enactment in relation to costs in such proceedings. Estate of Olmstead, 120 Cal. 447; 52 Pac. 804.

Attorneys' fees as part of relief granted. Counsel fees are not recoverable by the prevailing party, either in an action at law or in a suit in equity, except where expressly allowed by statute. Estate of Olmstead, 120 Cal. 447; 52 Pac. 804; and see Miller v. Kehoe, 107 Cal. 340; 40 Pac. 485; Bates v. Santa Barbara County, 90 Cal. 543; 27 Pac. 438. The measure and amount of compensation of attorneys and counselors is left to the agreement of the parties.

Engel v. Ehret, 21 Cal. App. 112; 130 Pac. 1197. Counsel fees cannot be allowed as a part of the judgment, unless expressly authorized by law. Bates v. Santa Barbara County, 90 Cal. 543; 27 Pac. 438. Where property was pledged to secure notes which provided for reasonable attorneys' fees in an action thereon, the pledgee, in a subsequent action to foreclose the pledge, is entitled to the attorneys' fees allowed in a former action upon the notes, as against the assignee of the pledgor; but where there was no further express stipulation for attorneys' fees in case of foreclosure or sale of the pledged property, no further fees can be recovered in the action to foreclose the lien and to have the interest of the assignee of the pledgor declared subject thereto. Commercial Savings Bank v. Hornberger, 140 Cal. 16; 73 Pac. 625. Where a judgment has been rendered in an action, without a provision for attorneys' fees, and the judgment has become final by affirmance upon appeal, the trial court cannot, upon motion therefor, order the amount expended by the plaintiff for attorneys' fees to be paid to him out of the money for which judgment was rendered, and which has been paid in to court in satisfaction of the judgment. Wickersham v. Crittenden, 103 Cal. 582; 37 Pac. 513. Counsel fees not paid can in no case be recovered as damages; but the prevailing party in an action of replevin cannot recover counsel fees, even though paid, as damages for the taking and withholding or detention of the property, or for its conversion, where no other expense than counsel fees appears to have been incurred in the pursuit of the property. Hays v. Windsor, 130 Cal. 230; 62 Pac. 395. Attorneys' fees are not recoverable in an action for conversion, as damages incurred in the pursuit of the property, under § 3336 of the Civil Code, nor as costs in the action. Nicholls v. Mapes, 1 Cal. App. 349; 82 Pac. 265. Where there is no agreement to pay counsel fees, or that property upon which a lien is sought to be foreclosed shall be security therefor, the court cannot allow counsel fees as a part of its judgment. Commercial Savings Bank v. Hornberger, 140 Cal. 16; 73 Pac. 625. Courts of equity will, in proper cases, and where justice requires it, allow attorneys' fees as part of the relief granted. Estate of Olmstead, 120 Cal. 447; 52 Pac. 804; and see Alemany v. Wensinger, 40 Cal. 288; Wickersham v. Crittenden, 103 Cal. 582; 37 Pac. 513; Miller v. Kehoe, 107 Cal. 340; 40 Pac. 485. Counsel fees may be awarded, in some suits in equity, in the discretion of the court; but where the parties in such suits are hostile litigants, and each employs his own attorney and contests the main issues of the case, the refusal of the court to allow the successful party his attorney's fees is not an abuse of discretion. Salmina v. Juri, 96 Cal. 418; 31 Pac. 365. The costs of litigation, including reasonable fees to counsel, in a proceeding for the sale of property held in trust, are a proper charge on the trust fund, and should be allowed by the court. Alemany v. Wensinger, 40 Cal. 288. Counsel fees cannot be allowed the losing party in an action by the assignee of an insolvent to recover property on the theory that the defendant held such property in trust, where the defendant contested in good faith for the purpose of having the ownership of the property judicially determined. Sanger v. Ryan, 122 Cal. 52; 54 Pac. 522. The provision for attorneys' fees in § 1195 post, as it read before the amendment of 1911, was unconstitutional. Builders' Supply Depot v. O'Connor, 150 Cal. 265; 119 Am. St. Rep. 193; 11 Ann. Cas. 712; 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 909; 88 Pac. 982; Mannix v. Tryon, 152 Cal. 31; 91 Pac. 983. The statute concerning libel, allowing the same counsel fees to the prevailing party, plaintiff or defendant, is not subject to any constitutional objection. Skrocki v. Stahl, 14 Cal. App. 1; 110 Pac. 957. Counsel fees cannot be allowed an executor for services rendered in probating the will, except as an incident to some judgment or order of the court; the probate judge is clothed with discretion to order costs to be paid "by any party to the proceedings, or out of the assets of the estate, as justice may require," and this discretion cannot be exercised until there is something upon which it may be based; hence, until a will has been admitted to or denied probate, the court has no power to appropriate the funds of the estate to aid either the proponent or the contestant. Henry v. Superior Court, 93 Cal. 569; 29 Pac. 230; Estate of Olmstead, 120 Cal. 447; 52 Pac. 804; and see Estate of Marrey, 65 Cal. 287; 3 Pac. 896; Estate of Parsons, 65 Cal. 240; 3 Pac. 817; Estate of Jessup, 80 Cal. 625; 22 Pac. 260; Henry v. Superior Court, 93 Cal. 569; 29 Pac. 230. Attorneys' fees are no part of the costs that may be allowed or taxed against a party on the contest of a will. Estate of Olmstead, 120 Cal. 447; 52 Pac. 804. The general rule is, that counsel fees are not recoverable as costs, by the prevailing party, either in actions at law or in suits in equity; in equity, the ordinary costs are awarded or withheld, in the discretion of the court; and where counsel fees are allowed, it generally proceeds on the ground of the contumacy of the party, or that the relief granted would be ineffectual without such allowance. Williams v. MacDougall, 39 Cal. 80. Counsel fees are not recoverable as costs; and a special prayer for costs does not include counsel fees; nor does a stipulation in a mortgage, making counsel fees a charge secured by the mortgage, make such charge part of the costs of the action. Brooks v. Forrington, 117 Cal. 219; 48 Pac. 1073.

Determination of amount of attorneys' fees. Where there is conflicting evidence as to the value of the services rendered by the attorney, and the amount allowed by the court finds support in the evidence, such amount will not be disturbed on appeal. Estate of Levinson, 108 Cal. 450; 41 Pac. 483. The amount of an attorney's fee, where the allowance of such is proper, must be determined by the court, and no evidence of the value of the services rendered is necessary. Woodward v. Brown, 119 Cal. 283; 63 Am. St. Rep. 108; 51 Pac. 2. The court, without hearing any testimony, may determine what amount will be reasonable as counsel fees, in cases where such are recoverable. McNamara v. Oakland Building etc. Ass'n, 131 Cal. 336; 63 Pac. 670. In partition proceedings, in fixing the amount of the attorney's fees and the referee's fees, the trial court is allowed a wide discretion, and the order will not be disturbed on appeal, unless a clear abuse of discretion is shown. Treadwell v. Treadwell, 134 Cal. 158; 66 Pac. 197.

Retaining-fee of attorney. An attorney is always entitled to his retaining-fee in advance, unless he stipulates to the contrary; and in an action against an attorney for negligence, it is only necessary to aver generally that he was retained; but if it is alleged that he was retained in consideration of a certain sum, it must also be averred that he was paid the same. Cavillaud v. Yale, 3 Cal. 108; 58 Am. Dec. 388.

Lien of attorney for his fee. An attorney has, by law, no lien for his services, upon a judgment recovered in favor of his client: he must recover therefor in the ordinary mode, by an action. Gage v. Atwater, 136 Cal. 170; 68 Pac. 581. An attorney has no lien upon a judgment recovered by him in favor of his client, for a quantum meruit compensation for his services. Ex parte Kyle, 1 Cal. 331; Mansfield v. Dorland, 2 Cal. 507; Russell v. Conway, 11 Cal. 93. Where a mortgage provides for the payment of a promissory note, but does not purport to secure the payment of attorneys' fees, a stipulation in the mortgage for counsel fees does not authorize the making of such fees a lien upon the property, nor the inclusion of them in the decree of sale. Irvine v. Perry, 119 Cal. 352; 51 Pac. 544.

For his costs. An attorney has no lien for costs in an action, by which he can disturb the satisfaction of the judgment entered by his client. Hogan v. Black, 66 Cal. 41; 4 Pac. 943.

Action by attorney for his fee. An attorney may have an action to recover the amount agreed upon, or the value of his services, where he is employed by a person capable of making a contract which shall bind him or those whom he may represent; and the fact of the existence of the contract, and the amount agreed upon or value, may be submitted to a jury. Cole v. Superior Court, 63 Cal. 86; 49 Am. Rep. 78.

Right to and liability for costs. Where a transferee, pending a suit, permits it to be prosecuted in the name of the original parties, there is no rule of law that prevents them from recovering the costs of suit. Crittenden v. San Francisco Savings Union, 157 Cal. 201; 107 Pac. 103. Where four parties, having each brought an action against certain defendants, made separate and distinct agreements to submit the matters in controversy to arbitration, and at the hearing a common trial of the several causes was agreed upon, and damages were awarded to the plaintiffs severally for different amounts, and an award was made to them jointly for the amount of the costs, and the defendants paid the damages as awarded, but refused to pay the costs, the defendants are not estopped from disputing the validity of the award as to costs jointly awarded against them, either by consenting to a common trial or by paying the separate sums awarded as damages. Springer v. Schultz, 64 Cal. 454; 2 Pac. 32. Where a mortgagee is made a defendant with the owners of the fee, and unites with them in contesting an action, he is, with them, liable for the costs, should they fail in their defense. Pinheiro v. Bettencourt, 17 Cal. App. 111; 118 Pac. 941. A married woman is liable for costs in an action brought by her as sole plaintiff, concerning her separate property. Leonard v. Townsend, 26 Cal. 435. The acceptance of a continuance, granted upon condition that the party asking it pay designated items of costs, is tantamount to an agreement to pay the sums imposed. Bashore v. Superior Court, 152 Cal. 3; 91 Pac. 801.

Statutory right to costs. The right to recover costs is purely statutory, and their recovery is governed by the statute in force at the time the right to have them taxed occurs. Begbie v. Begbie, 128 Cal. 154; 49 L. R. A. 141; 60 Pac. 667; Meyer v. Perkins, 20 Cal. App. 661; 130 Pac. 206. The right of the prevailing party to costs is statutory; and all the costs in the action may be recovered by the plaintiff if he recovers judgment for more than three hundred dollars upon any one cause of action, and the costs of a second trial are recoverable by the plaintiff in such case notwithstanding the withdrawal upon appeal of the cause of action then tried. Fox v. Hale etc. Mining Co., 122 Cal. 219; 54 Pac. 731. In the absence of a statute allowing costs, none can be recovered by either party. Williams v. Atchison etc. Ry. Co., 156 Cal. 140; 134 Am. St. Rep. 117; 19 Ann. Cas. 1260; 103 Pac. 885; Meyer v. Perkins, 20 Cal. App. 661; 130 Pac. 206; Duley v. Peacock, 17 Cal. App. 418; 119 Pac. 1086; Murphy v. Casey, 13 Cal. App. 781; 110 Pac. 956; Linforth v. San Francisco Gas etc. Co., 9 Cal. App. 434; 99 Pac. 716. The "percentage act" of February 9, 1866, allowing the prevailing party five per cent on the amount recovered in certain actions tried in San Francisco, was not repealed on the adoption of the codes (Whitaker v. Haynes, 49 Cal. 596); and was constitutional. Corwin v. Ward, 35 Cal. 195; 95 Am. Dec. 93. The party ultimately prevailing in the action is entitled to recover from the losing party the costs of previous trials, where legitimate and properly taxed. Senior v. Anderson, 130 Cal. 290; 62 Pac. 563. The statute does not specify what shall constitute costs. Bond v. United Railroads, 20 Cal. App. 124; 128 Pac. 786.

Costs as incident to judgment. Costs are an incident to the judgment, to be taxed by the clerk or the court, and cannot be given by the jury by way of damages. Shay v. Tuolumne Water Co., 6 Cal. 286. Costs are but a part of and incident to the judgment; and if the court, by abatement of the action, loses power to render any judgment in the case, it is powerless to render any judgment for the costs incurred therein; and upon the abatement of an action or appeal by the death of a party, there can be no judgment for costs in favor of the survivor. Begbie v. Begbie, 128 Cal. 154; 49 L. R. A. 141; 60 Pac. 667.

Interest on costs. The costs incurred by a plaintiff upon a former trial, which form part of the final decree, do not carry interest. Huellmantel v. Huellmantel, 124 Cal. 583; 57 Pac. 582.

Stay of execution, and retaxing costs. Where items are included in the cost-bill, which are not properly taxable, it affords no just ground for refusing to issue an execution or to recall one: the remedy is by motion to retax. Meeker v. Harris, 23 Cal. 285. Where a judgment for costs has been executed by the sheriff, the court is authorized to stay the execution in the hands of the sheriff, until an application can be made to the court to retax and adjust the costs. Ex parte Burrill, 24 Cal. 350. Where the court, in the exercise of its discretion, divided the costs so as to award to each party the costs incurred in the trial of issues found in favor of each, if one of the issues was erroneously found in favor of the defendant, the cost of the trial of that issue should be retaxed in favor of the plaintiff. Bathgate v. Irvine, 126 Cal. 135; 77 Am. St. Rep. 158; 58 Pac. 442.

Waiver of costs. Where the fees and expenses of a sheriff for the keeping of property held under a writ of attachment are not claimed by the plaintiff in the memorandum of costs, and are not included in the judgment, the failure so to claim and include them in the manner required by the statute is a waiver of such costs, and precludes a recovery thereof from the defendant. Hotchkiss v. Smith, 108 Cal. 285; 41 Pac. 304.

Costs in case of appeal. Where the judgment in the first trial is reversed upon appeal, and a new trial had, the costs of the first trial are part of the final bill of costs. Visher v. Webster, 13 Cal. 58; Stoddard v. Treadwell, 29 Cal. 281. An applicant for a writ of review from the appellate court to the superior court and a judge thereof, to compel the certification of a transcript of the record, must pay to the clerk of the latter court the fees fixed by law for making and certifying the return of the writ; and the clerk cannot be required to perform that service without prepayment of the fees therefor. I. X. L. Lime Co. v. Superior Court, 143 Cal. 170; 76 Pac. 973.

Appeal as to costs. An error of the court, in refusing to allow a party costs, cannot be reviewed on an appeal from an order denying a new trial: such error can be reviewed or corrected only on appeal from the judgment. Stevenson v. Smith, 28 Cal. 102; 87 Am. Dec. 107. A question as to costs, not made in the trial court, nor embraced in the grounds of the appeal, will not be considered by the appellate court. Stoddard v. Treadwell, 29 Cal. 281. A mistake in the computation of interest, or taxation of costs, cannot be attacked for the first time on appeal: the party complaining must first move in the trial court to correct the computation, or to retax the costs, and thus obtain, distinctly, the judgment of that court upon the disputed items, before resort can be had to a higher tribunal. Guy v. Franklin, 5 Cal. 416. The allowance of costs in a suit in equity is within the discretion of the court, and, without a statement or bill of exceptions, that discretion will not be reviewed upon appeal. Faulkner v. Hendy, 103 Cal. 15; 36 Pac. 1021. Though costs were ascertained and adjudged after the entry of the judgment by the clerk, yet the law considers such action of the court as having preceded the final judgment, and such action may therefore be reviewed on appeal from the judgment. Lasky v. Davis, 33 Cal. 677. A judgment for costs only, for or against any one of the parties, plaintiff or defendant, is not a final judgment, and an appeal from such a judgment must be dismissed upon motion. Nolan v. Smith, 137 Cal. 360; 70 Pac. 166. Where a judgment allows costs, but does not fix the amount thereof, and this was done afterwards, upon a motion to retax costs, and after the court had stricken out the cost-bill, the subsequent orders are proceedings relating to the judgment, and become a part of it, and the error in allowing costs may be corrected upon appeal from the judgment, by striking out the costs allowed. Quitzow v. Perrin, 120 Cal. 255; 52 Pac. 632. An appellant cannot raise the question as to the proper adjustment of costs, where the appeal is upon the judgment roll alone. Madera County v. Raymond Granite Co., 139 Cal. 128; 72 Pac. 915. An order striking out a cost-bill, made after the rendition and entry of final judgment, is appealable, and can be reviewed without an appeal from the judgment. Yorba v. Dobner, 90 Cal. 337; 27 Pac. 185. A special order, made after entry of judgment, reducing such judgment by striking out the costs, is appealable. Elledge v. Superior Court, 131 Cal. 279; 63 Pac. 360. A special order after judgment, refusing to strike out a cost-bill in the superior court, in a case appealed from a justice's court, is not appealable to the supreme court, although the cost-bill amounts to over three hundred dollars. Henigan v. Ervin, 110 Cal. 37; 42 Pac. 457. An order denying defendant's motion to strike out plaintiff's cost-bill is not an order directing the payment of money, within the purview of §942, ante; and a bond executed in double the amount of the cost-bill, upon appeal from such order by the defendant, has no statutory authority, and cannot operate to stay execution; and the plaintiff is not entitled to judgment against the sureties thereon, upon motion, that being a summary remedy created by the statute, and applicable only to undertakings allowed by it. Reay v. Butler, 118 Cal. 113; 50 Pac. 375. The memorandum of costs forms no part of the judgment roll; and the court, having only the judgment roll before it, cannot review an order to retax costs. Kelly v. McKibben, 54 Cal. 192.

Amount as test of appellate jurisdiction. Where an action is dismissed upon the motion of the plaintiff, and judgment is entered in favor of the defendant for costs, the plaintiff can appeal only as to the portion of the judgment awarding costs; and where the amount of the costs is less than three hundred dollars, the supreme court has no jurisdiction. Oullahan v. Morrissey, 73 Cal. 297; 14 Pac. 864. In all cases, legal or equitable, where the appellate court has jurisdiction of the matter brought in controversy in the lower court, the appealability of an order made before or after final judgment is not controlled or affected by the amount involved; hence, where the trial court has jurisdiction of an action to quiet title, the supreme court has jurisdiction of an appeal from an order striking out a cost-bill in an amount less than three hundred dollars. Sierra Union Water etc. Co. v. Wolff, 144 Cal. 430; 77 Pac. 1038; and see Harron v. Harron, 123 Cal. 508; 56 Pac. 334; 128 Cal. 303; 60 Pac. 932; Southern California Ry. Co. v. Superior Court, 127 Cal. 417; 59 Pac. 789; Elledge v. Superior Court, 131 Cal. 279; 63 Pac. 360.

Allowance of costs in equity and at law. See note 16 Am. Dec. 405.

What recoverable as costs. See note 88 Am. Dec. 181.

Allowance of costs in mandamus. See note 30 Am. St. Rep. 561.

Constitutionality of statutes requiring prepayment or taxation as costs of jury fees. See notes 5 Ann. Cas. 930; 12 Ann. Cas. 378.

Taxation as costs of fees, mileage, etc., of witness subpœnaed, but not called on to testify. See note 6 Ann. Cas. 1017.

Expense of procuring bond in action as item of taxable costs. See notes 19 Ann. Cas. 1261; 48 L. R. A. 591.

Constitutionality of statutes allowing attorney's fees to successful party. See note 79 Am. St. Rep. 178.

Validity of statute allowing taxation as costs of attorney's fees in action for personal service. See note 17 Ann. Cas. 282.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. An attorney has a lien for his costs upon a judgment recovered by him, which may be enforced upon giving notice to the adverse party not to pay the judgment until the amount of costs be paid; and in some cases where there has been collusion between the parties to cheat the attorney, the court has required the client to satisfy them. But this practice is confined to some certain and fixed amount allowed to an attorney by statute, and is not extended to cases where an attorney or counselor claims a quantum meruit compensation for his services. In this state we have no statute giving costs to attorneys, and they must consequently recover for their services in the ordinary mode. Ex parte Kyle, 1 Cal. 331; see also Mansfield v. Dorland, 2 Cal. 507; Russell v. Conway, 11 Cal. 103. Plaintiffs, before the action was commenced, agreed to give their attorneys, as compensation, one third of the judgment, with costs. After judgment was obtained and execution issued, the plaintiffs compromised with defendant for less than the amount of the judgment, and entered satisfaction upon the record. And it was decided that the attorneys had no lien upon the judgment, and could not disturb the satisfaction entered by the plaintiffs. Mansfield v. Dorland, 2 Cal. 507. An attorney is entitled to his retaining fee in advance, unless he stipulates to the contrary. Cavilland v. Yale, 3 Cal. 108; 58 Am. Dec. 388. In a suit for compensation as attorney in a certain proceeding, it is not competent to prove the value of the attorney's services in another proceeding. A person who is not a lawyer cannot be a competent witness to prove the value of legal services. Hart v. Vidal, 6 Cal. 56. As to how receivers, authorized to employ counsel (and to stipulate that the compensation of such counsel shall be left to the court), should provide for the payment of such compensation to counsel, see Adams v. Woods, 8 Cal. 306. In suits by attorneys to recover compensation for legal services, unskillful or negligent conduct, or the skill employed in the case, is an important inquiry. A suit may be won, and yet the attorney be guilty of great negligence. Bridges v. Paige, 13 Cal. 642. The allowance of costs rests in the discretion of the court of original jurisdiction. And where, on sustaining a demurrer to a complaint, on the ground that the complaint did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, the court gave judgment for the defendant for full costs, including a jury fee. It was not such an abuse of discretion as to warrant interference by the supreme court. Harvey v. Chilton, 11 Cal. 119. A mortgage contained a stipulation for all the costs of foreclosure, including counsel fees, not exceeding five per cent of the amount due. The limitation of five per cent was held to apply to counsel fees alone, and the complainant could recover the whole of his costs by operation of the statute, and independently of any stipulation. Gronfier v. Minturn, 5 Cal. 492. A person having an interest in mortgaged premises, subsequent to the mortgage, is a proper party to the foreclosure suit, but cannot be made liable for the costs of foreclosure beyond those occasioned by his own separate defense. Luning v. Brady, 10 Cal. 267. If the plaintiff in ejectment recovers judgment, he is entitled to the costs, although his recovery is for only a portion of the demanded premises. Havens v. Dale, 30 Cal. 547. If a judgment for plaintiff is not given by the appellate court, and a new trial is awarded, if plaintiff recovers judgment on the second trial, he is entitled to his costs in the court below, incurred on the first trial. Stoddard v. Treadwell, 29 Cal. 281. If the entry of several judgments increases the costs, it might be ground for retaxing or apportioning them. Lick v. Stockdale, 18 Cal. 219. Where a judgment is against two, but only one appeals, and the appeal is dismissed with twenty per cent damages, the damages with the costs do not become part of the original judgment, and the redemptioner is not bound to pay them when he redeems from a sale under the judgment. The clerk below can issue execution for these damages and costs. McMillan v. Vischer, 14 Cal. 241. Where costs are imposed as condition for reopening a case after the adjournment of the term, the acceptance of the costs of the opposite party is not a consent to have the cause reinstated. Carpentier v. Hart, 5 Cal. 406. Costs, by way of indemnity, should not be taxed in case of a nonsuit. Rice v. Leonard, 5 Cal. 61. A mandamus is not the proper remedy when an inferior court refuses to enter a judgment for costs. The party should appeal, or sue for his costs. Peralta v. Adams, 2 Cal. 595. An error in computing interest or taxing costs cannot be attacked for the first time in an appellate court. The party complaining must move in a court below to retax the costs, etc., and thus obtain distinctly the judgment of the court of original jurisdiction upon the disputed items, before resort can be had to a higher tribunal. Guy v. Franklin, 5 Cal. 417. The judgment of the supreme court, on appeal, and costs consequent thereon, is final, and the court below cannot prevent immediate execution of the judgment of this court so remitted. The clerk of the supreme court, in entering up the judgment, adds the words "with costs," and annexes to the remittitur a copy of the bill of costs filed; these words are a sufficient awarding of costs for the clerk below to issue an execution. Marysville v. Buchannan, 3 Cal. 212. In an action to compel execution of conveyance, a demand before the commencement of the action is only material as affecting costs. Unless plaintiff demanded the execution of the deed, he would not be entitled to costs. Jones v. Petaluma, 36 Cal. 230. Before granting an order to release a party from a judgment against him, the court should, as a condition precedent, require him to pay all costs accruing to the adverse party up to the time of service and filing of notice of motion therefor. Leet v. Grants, 36 Cal. 288.

§ 1022. When allowed of course to plaintiff. Costs are allowed of course to the plaintiff, upon a judgment in his favor, in the following cases:

1. In an action for the recovery of real property;

2. In an action to recover the possession of personal property, where the value of the property amounts to three hundred dollars or over; such value shall be determined by the jury, court, or referee by whom the action is tried;

3. In an action for the recovery of money or damages, when plaintiff recovers three hundred dollars or over;

4. In a special proceeding;

5. In an action which involves the title or possession of real estate, or the legality of any tax, impost, assessment, toll, or municipal fine.

Costs.

1. Discretionary when. Post, §§ 1025, 1027.
2. In action for usurpation of franchise. See ante, §§ 809, 810.
3. In partition. See ante, §§ 768, 769, 771, 796, 799.

Subd. 2. Personal property. Value. Post, § 1025.

Subd. 3. Money or damages. Post, § 1025.

Subd. 4. Special proceeding, generally. Post, §§ 1063–1821.

Legislation § 1022. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 495 (New York Code, § 304), as amended by Stats. 1869–70, p. 65, (1) in introductory paragraph, substituting "are" for "shall be" before "allowed"; (2) in subd. 3, changing "where" to "when"; and (3) in subd. 4, omitting at end, after "proceeding," the words "in the nature of an action."

Construction of section. The words "of course," as used in this section, mean "as a matter of right"; and in the cases herein provided for, the question of costs is not left to the discretion of the court: they follow the judgment. Schmidt v. Klotz, 130 Cal. 223; 62 Pac. 470.

Actions for recovery of real property. Under the first and fifth subdivisions of this section, the plaintiff in an equitable suit, the purpose of which is to recover real property, is, upon a judgment in his favor, entitled to his costs as a matter of right: such action involves the title to real estate. Coffman v. Bushard, 164 Cal. 663; 130 Pac. 425. An action to quiet title to a right of way being an action involving the title to or the possession of real estate, the prevailing party therein is entitled to costs: a direction that each party pay his own costs is erroneous. Schmidt v. Klotz, 130 Cal. 223; 62 Pac. 470. An action involving the protection of an easement over defendant's land, in which issue is joined upon the easement, is within the fifth subdivision of this section, and the plaintiff, though he recovers only a portion of the title or possession involved, is to be allowed his costs as of course; the form of the action, and the fact that equitable relief is sought, are immaterial. Hoyt v. Hart, 149 Cal. 722; 87 Pac. 569. The allowance of costs does not depend upon the form or nature of the action, but upon the fact whether the case comes within the terms of the statute relating to costs; therefore, in an action to quiet title, where the plaintiff recovers as to any part of the property involved, although judgment is in favor of the defendant for part, the plaintiff is entitled to recover his costs as of course. Sierra Union Water etc. Co. v. Wolff, 144 Cal.

430; 77 Pac. 1038. Where the defendant took issue with the plaintiff and appellant as to the latter's ownership in fee, and the latter was decreed to be the owner in fee, he is entitled to his costs as a matter of right. Petitpierre v. Maguire, 155 Cal. 242; 100 Pac. 690. An action involving the protection of an easement over the defendant's land, in which issue is joined upon the easement, is an action involving the title to or the possession of real estate, within the fifth subdivision of this section. Hoyt v. Hart, 149 Cal. 722; 87 Pac. 569. An action to annul a deed made by a testator, in his lifetime, to the defendant, brought by the heirs at law, who were devisees under the will, is an action involving the title to the land, and in which the prevailing party is entitled to costs as a matter of right. Gibson v. Hammang, 145 Cal. 454; 78 Pac. 953. In an action to determine the priority of water rights, the amount of damages recovered is immaterial, as affecting the costs. Marius v. Bicknell, 10 Cal. 217; Esmond v. Chew, 17 Cal. 336. In an action to foreclose mechanics' liens in San Francisco, the prevailing parties formerly were entitled to recover, as costs, the percentage on the amount recovered, as fixed by the act of February 9, 1866. Golden Gate Lumber Co. v. Sahrbacher, 105 Cal. 114; 38 Pac. 635.

Right to costs in other actions. Where the grantee, who is a necessary party to an action for the foreclosure of a mortgage, contests his personal liability for a deficiency, he is liable for costs in the action, when failing in that defense. Tulare County Bank v. Madden, 109 Cal. 312; 41 Pac. 1092. Upon mandamus against a county treasurer, the costs of the proceeding are properly chargeable against the defendant personally. Power v. May, 123 Cal. 147; 55 Pac. 796. The fact that an undertaking is dispensed with, upon an appeal by a county auditor, who is contesting a claim against a county as illegal, does not necessarily imply that a personal judgment for costs or damages may not be rendered against him on the merits of the case for refusal to issue the warrant improperly, without just cause to doubt the validity of the claim. Lamberson v. Jefferds, 116 Cal. 492; 48 Pac. 485; Power v. May, 123 Cal. 147; 55 Pac. 796. Where the owner of a building, in an action to foreclose a mechanic's lien, pays into court, before the trial of the action, the residue of the fund properly remaining in his hands as due to the contractor, to be applied toward payment of the claimants of liens, he is not liable for interest or costs. Hooper v. Fletcher, 145 Cal. 375; 79 Pac. 418.

Amount of recovery as controlling costs. The only limitation upon the right of the prevailing party to recover costs incurred by him, whether the recovery is for the whole or a portion of his claim, or whether his claim is made up of one or of several causes of action, is, that he shall have recovered three hundred dollars or over. Fox v. Hale etc. Mining Co., 122 Cal. 219; 54 Pac. 731. The ad damnum clause in a complaint constitutes the test of jurisdiction; and while it may be that the true amount may sometimes be increased for the purpose of bringing the case within the jurisdiction of the superior court, yet the inevitable consequence of not being able to recover the jurisdictional sum, so as to carry costs, will probably be sufficient to prevent such practice from becoming common, and the saving of costs will compensate the defendants in the rare instances in which they may be first brought into the superior court instead of the justice's court. Greenbaum v. Martinez, 86 Cal. 459; 25 Pac. 12. Computation of the amount of recovery as controlling costs means the damages assessed by the jury eo nomine, exclusive of the costs which they may arbitrarily find. Shay v. Tuolumne Water Co., 6 Cal. 286. The amount recovered or demanded does not control the question of costs in cases where superior and justices' courts have concurrent jurisdiction. Clark v. Brown, 141 Cal. 93; 74 Pac. 548. Ordinarily, the only penalty for the recovery of less than the jurisdictional amount is the loss of the costs. Pratt v. Welcome, 6 Cal. App. 475; 92 Pac. 500. Costs cannot be awarded to a plaintiff, where his recovery is reduced to less than three hundred dollars by a counterclaim. Poswa v. Jones, 21 Cal. App. 664; 132 Pac. 629. In an action to recover several judgments for proportionate amounts of a debt of a corporation, there is no authority for a joint judgment for costs against all the defendants; and if the plaintiff does not recover a judgment, either joint or several, for three hundred dollars or over, he is not entitled to recover costs. Derby v. Stevens, 64 Cal. 287; 30 Pac. 820. Where no question is made of the good faith of the plaintiff in bringing a suit in a superior court for a sum exceeding three hundred dollars, the only penalty for a recovery of less than the jurisdictional amount is the loss of the costs. Pratt v. Welcome, 6 Cal. App. 475; 92 Pac. 500.

Costs after dismissal. The plaintiff, where the answer seeks no affirmative relief, has an unqualified right to dismiss his action upon tender of the clerk's fee for entering the dismissal; the court has no jurisdiction to order the clerk not to enter the dismissal until the plaintiff shall have paid the costs of the defendant, and to order the case reset for trial upon the refusal of the plaintiff to comply with such condition; the costs which follow the dismissal cannot be made a prerequisite con-

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. 1. Costs in action for recovery of real property. In ejectment, if plaintiff recovers judgment, he is entitled to costs, even if he recovers a part only of the demanded premises. Havens v. Dale, 30 Cal. 547. If, in an action concerning water privileges and damages for diversion of water, judgment is rendered for less than two hundred dollars, it will carry costs. Marius v. Bicknell, 10 Cal. 217.

2. Costs in action to recover personal property. If the plaintiff in a suit for recovery of possession of personal property takes the property at the commencement of the action, and the defendant asks a return of it, and the defendant was entitled to the property at the commencement of the action, but his right to possession of the property ceased and rested in the plaintiff before trial, the judgment should leave the property in plaintiff's possession, but award costs to defendant. O'Connor v. Blake, 29 Cal. 312. A defendant in replevin who recovers judgment, the jury failing to find the value of the property to exceed two (now three) hundred dollars, is nevertheless entitled to his costs, where the plaintiff's complaint states its value at a sum exceeding that amount. Edgar v. Gray, 5 Cal. 267.

3. Costs in action for recovery of money or damages. The party obtaining judgment in an action for the recovery of money or damages, is entitled to his costs, and the court has no discretion in awarding them. Stoddard v. Treadwell, 29 Cal. 281. Costs of a suit form no part of the matter in dispute, and the supreme court has no jurisdiction of an appeal, if the amount involved is less than three hundred dollars, although the costs added thereto may increase it beyond that sum. Dumphy v. Guindon, 13 Cal. 30; overruling Gordon v. Ross, 2 Cal. 157; see Zabriskie v. Torrey, 20 Cal. 174; Meeker v. Harris, 23 Cal. 286; see also § 44, ante, note 6. Costs will not be given plaintiff, unless he recovers judgment for the sum of three hundred dollars in an action for money or damages. Costs are incident to the judgment, and cannot be given by the jury by way of damages. Shay v. Tuolumne Water Co., 6 Cal. 286. The position of the appellant is, that the jury, having found that the ditch was not a nuisance, the case is to be regarded, so far as the costs are concerned, as a simple action for damages for injuries to the property of the plaintiff. If this position be correct, no costs were taxable to either party under the statute, the damages recovered being less than two hundred dollars. Votan v. Reese, 20 Cal. 90.

4. Generally. Formerly the value of the property mentioned in subdivision 2, and the amount to be recovered by plaintiff under subdivision 3, was fixed at two hundred dollars, instead of three hundred dollars, and the decisions quoted above were rendered when the law stood thus.

§ 1023. Several actions brought on a single cause of action can carry costs in but one. When several actions are brought on one bond, undertaking, promissory note, bill of exchange, or other instrument in writing, or in any other case for the same cause of action, against several parties who might have been joined as defendants in the same action, no costs can be allowed to the plaintiff in more than one of such actions, which may be at his election, if the party proceeded against in the other actions were, at the commencement of the previous action, openly within this state; but the disbursements of the plaintiff must be allowed to him in each action.

Several parties, who might have been joined as defendants. Ante, § 383.

2. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 180; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

Construction of section. Where several acts of tort-feasors contribute to the same injury, there can be but one satisfaction in damages therefor; yet if the acts are not joint, the case is not within this section, which prevents the recovery of costs in more than one action, where the defendants, sued separately, might have been joined as defendants; and in such case, where the judgment and costs against one of the wrong-doers had been paid and satisfied, though the judgment for damages against the other wrong-doers is also satisfied and extinguished thereby, yet the plaintiff is entitled to recover the costs of a separate action against the other wrong-doers. Butler v. Ashworth, 110 Cal. 614; 43 Pac. 4, 386.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. If an action was commenced against several defendants, and there was a judgment in their favor, they cannot all be allowed separate costs, but can only recover jointly, as though there had been but one defendant. Rice v. Leonard, 5 Cal. 61. In ejectment, if the entry of such several judgments increases the costs, it might be ground for retaxing or apportioning them. Lick v. Stockdale, 18 Cal. 219.

§ 1024. Defendant's costs must be allowed of course, in certain cases. Costs must be allowed of course to the defendant upon a judgment in his favor in the actions mentioned in section ten hundred and twenty-two, and in special proceedings.

Special proceedings, generally. Post, §§ 1063–1821.

Legislation § 1024. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872: based on Practice Act, § 497 (New York Code, § 305), substituting (1) "must" for "shall," (2) "ten hundred and twenty-two" for "four hundred and ninety-five," and (3) "in special proceedings" for "in a special proceeding in the nature of an action."

2. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 180; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

Costs for defendant upon judgment in his favor. The defendant can recover costs only "upon a judgment in his favor." Fox v. Hale etc. Mining Co., 122 Cal. 219; 51 Pac. 731.

Where plaintiff nonsuited. Where the plaintiff is nonsuited upon a jury trial, the jury fees may properly be made payable by the plaintiff. Fairchild v. King, 102 Cal. 320; 36 Pac. 649.

Against cross-complainant. Where persons, by their cross-complaint filed in an action to quiet title, make it necessary for another party to such action to continue his appearance in court, he may recover whatever costs he is thus compelled to incur, from the parties who unjustly bring or keep him in court. Summerville v. March, 142 Cal. 554; 100 Am. St. Rep. 145; 76 Pac. 388.

Against intervener. An intervener, by filing his complaint in intervention, makes the relator a defendant thereto, and upon judgment in favor of the relator against the intervener, the relator is entitled to recover costs against him. People v. Campbell, 138 Cal. 11; 70 Pac. 918.

Where defendant recovers less than three hundred dollars. Upon the failure of the plaintiff to recover in an action, costs are to be allowed as of course to the defendant, notwithstanding the recovery, by the defendant, of less than three hundred dollars upon his counterclaim. Davis v. Hurgren, 125 Cal. 48; 57 Pac. 684.

In suit for injunction. In a suit for an injunction, where all the issues made by the pleadings are found for the defendant, he is entitled to judgment for his costs. Van Horn v. Decrow, 136 Cal. 117; 68 Pac. 473. In an action to determine the title to land, and to enjoin the defendant from trespassing upon the same and from asserting any title thereto, and the court decides that the plaintiff has no cause of action, the defendant is entitled to his costs. Lawrence v. Getchell, 2 Cal. Unrep. 267; 2 Pac. 746.

In replevin. A defendant in replevin, who recovers judgment, the jury failing to find the value of the property to be greater than the amount necessary to carry costs, is nevertheless entitled to costs, where the plaintiff's complaint states its value at a sum exceeding that amount. Edgar v. Gray, 5 Cal. 267.

In action to determine title. Where the court, in an action to determine title, decides that the plaintiff has no cause of action, the defendant is entitled, as of course, to his costs and disbursements. Lawrence v. Getchell, 2 Cal. Unrep. 267; 2 Pac. 746.

In suits for specific performance. A suit for the specific performance of contract to convey land involves the title to real estate, and therefore the defendant is entitled to costs against the plaintiff as a matter of right, upon a judgment in his favor; and where specific performance is refused because of the fraudulent misrepresentations of the plaintiff, and the defendant is free from blame, costs to the defendant follow as of course. Kelly v. Central Pacific R. R. Co., 74 Cal. 565; 16 Pac. 390.

Joint judgment for costs. Costs, by way of indemnity, should not be taxed in case of a nonsuit; the statute looks to an actual determination of the cause upon its merits; so, where an action has been commenced against several defendants, and there has been a judgment in their favor, they are not all entitled to recover costs, but can recover only jointly, as though there had been but one defendant. Rice v. Leonard, 5 Cal. 61. Defendants, who were sued jointly, but who answered separately, may be awarded a joint judgment for costs. Leadbetter v. Lake, 118 Cal. 515; 50 Pac. 686.

§ 1025. Costs, when in the discretion of the court. In other actions than those mentioned in section ten hundred and twenty-two, costs may be allowed or not, and, if allowed, may be apportioned between the parties, on the same or adverse sides, in the discretion of the court; but no costs can be allowed in an action for the recovery of money or damages, when the plaintiff recovers less than three hundred dollars, nor in an action to recover the possession of personal property, when the value of the property is less than three hundred dollars.

Proceedings by execution creditor to appraise homestead, costs of. See Civ. Code, § 1259.

Legislation § 1025. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 498 (New York Code, § 306), as amended by Stats. 1865–66, p. 847, substituting (1) "ten hundred and twenty-two" for "four hundred and ninety-five," and (2) "can" for "shall" before "be allowed."

2. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 180; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

Costs in discretion of court when. Where costs are allowed to the prevailing party as a matter of course, their allowance does not rest in the discretion of the court, but they follow the judgment: the allowance of costs rests in the discretion of the court, only in such cases as are provided for by statute. Stoddard v. Treadwell, 29 Cal. 281. Where there has been no tender of indemnity before suit on a lost promissory note, the plaintiff is not entitled to costs, unless the defendant has waived a tender, in which case the costs are in the discretion of the court. Randolph v. Harris, 28 Cal. 561; 87 Am. Dec. 139. The discretion conferred upon the court by this section does not justify the allowance of costs not properly chargeable as such, such as for the making of maps, surveys, etc. Bathgate v. Irvine, 126 Cal. 135; 77 Am. St. Rep. 158; 58 Pac. 442. A plaintiff who fails to recover against a defendant is not entitled to any costs, notwithstanding the fact that they were largely incurred in defending against a counterclaim of such defendant, upon which the defendant also failed to recover; in such case the court is allowed no discretion as to costs. Benson v. Braun, 134 Cal. 41; 66 Pac. 1. In an action to abate a nuisance, whether considered as a suit in equity, or as a special proceeding by virtue of constitutional provisions and the statute, the allowance of costs lies in the discretion of the court. McCarthy v. Gaston Ridge Mill etc. Co., 144 Cal. 542; 78 Pac. 7. In an action to quiet title to the waters of a stream, the part of the decree therein, that neither party recover costs, is within the equitable discretion of the court. Gutierrez v. Wege, 145 Cal. 730; 79 Pac. 449. The trial court has power to disallow the costs of taking depositions, where it appears that such taking was unnecessary. Lomita Land etc. Co. v. Robinson, 154 Cal. 36; 18 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1106; 97 Pac. 10. The allowance of costs lies in the discretion of the court in actions of foreclosure (Irvine v. Perry, 119 Cal. 352; 51 Pac. 544), and also in actions for divorce. Brenot v. Brenot, 102 Cal. 294; 36 Pac. 672.

Costs in equity cases. The general rule, that in suits in equity the costs may be apportioned according to the discretion of the court, has been modified in this state by statutory provisions regulating the allowance of costs. Hoyt v. Hart, 149 Cal. 722; 87 Pac. 569; Beal v. Stevens, 72 Cal. 451; 14 Pac. 186. In suits in equity, costs are discretionary, both in the trial court and in the appellate court. Forsyth v. Butler, 152 Cal. 396; 93 Pac. 90; Beal v. Stevens, 72 Cal. 451; 14 Pac. 186. Costs, in suits in equity, are always in the discretion of the court, and, whether they are granted or withheld, they are but as incident to and no part of the relief sought: a party getting the relief sought may be compelled to pay costs. Abram v. Stuart, 96 Cal. 235; 31 Pac. 44. In suits in equity, in which the right to divert and use certain waters is involved, costs are allowed, apportioned, or withheld in the discretion of the court. Gallatin v. Corning Irrigation Co., 163 Cal. 405; Ann. Cas. 1914A, 74; 126 Pac. 864; Beal v. Stevens, 72 Cal. 451; 14 Pac. 186. In an action for an injunction, where the issues for the determination of which the costs were chiefly incurred were decided against the plaintiff, the action of the trial court in granting a judgment in favor of the defendants for their costs is not an abuse of discretion, although the injunction is granted in favor of the plaintiff. Abram v. Stuart, 96 Cal. 235; 31 Pac. 44. In an action for an injunction, costs lie in the discretion of the court. Esmond v. Chew, 17 Cal. 336.

Costs against co-defendants. Where both husband and wife, as defendants, answer in an action to set aside a deed to the wife, and judgment is rendered for the plaintiff, costs are properly charged against both defendants. Collins v. O'Laverty, 136 Cal. 31; 68 Pac. 327.

Against trust fund. A trust fund may be charged with the costs of an action to preserve the fund. Alemany v. Wensinger, 40 Cal. 288.

Judgment for less than three hundred dollars. Costs are not allowable, in the superior court, in any case in which the judgment is for less than three hundred dollars, regardless of whether such judgment is awarded after the issues are actually tried, or is entered without trial by the agreement of the parties. Murphy v. Casey, 13 Cal. App. 781; 110 Pac. 956; Bemmerly v. Smith, 136 Cal. 5; 68 Pac. 97; Quitzow v. Perrin, 120 Cal. 255; 52 Pac. 632; Edwards v. Crepin, 68 Cal. 37; 8 Pac. 616. Costs cannot be awarded to a plaintiff, when his money is reduced to less than three hundred dollars by a counterclaim. Poswa v. Jones, 21 Cal. App. 664; 132 Pac. 629. The act of March 23, 1872, concerning actions for libel and slander, did not give a plaintiff recovering judgment any costs beyond the amount allowed by the general law; therefore, a plaintiff in such an action, who recovered less than three hundred dollars, was not entitled to costs. Jacobi v. Baur, 55 Cal. 554. In an action for damages and for an injunction, where the injunction is denied, a judgment for less than three hundred dollars does not carry costs. Himes v. Johnson, 61 Cal. 259; Brown v. Delavau, 63 Cal. 303. The provision of this section, that costs cannot be allowed in an action for the recovery of money or damages, where the plaintiff recovers less than three hundred dollars, evidently applies to both parties to the action, and forbids the recovery of costs by either party. Anthony v. Grand, 101 Cal. 235; 35 Pac. 859; Frese v. Mutual Life Ins. Co., 11 Cal. App. 387; 105 Pac. 265. An action to foreclose a lien is an action in equity, and costs are properly allowed therein, against the necessary parties to the action, who appear and make affirmative defenses against the claim of the plaintiff, notwithstanding judgment is for less than three hundred dollars, and in such case the superior court has concurrent jurisdiction with that of justices of the peace, and the plaintiff is entitled to costs, whether he seeks relief in one jurisdiction or the other. Clark v. Brown, 141 Cal. 93; 74 Pac. 548. The recovery of a judgment for less than three hundred dollars affects only the question of costs, and not the jurisdiction of the court, where the ad damnum clause of the complaint is for a greater amount. Sullivan v. California Realty Co., 142 Cal. 201; 75 Pac. 767. Where the plaintiff, in an action for money, recovers less than three hundred dollars, he is not entitled to costs, and the allowance of costs in such case is erroneous; but where no costs are in fact entered in the judgment, and a blank space after the provision therefor is left unfilled, the error is harmless. Boland v. Ashurst Oil etc. Co., 145 Cal. 405; 78 Pac. 871.

Costs as controlled by damages. In an action for damages for trespass on real property, and for an injunction to restrain threatened waste, the equitable awarding of costs is not controlled by the amount of damages recovered. Bemmerly v. Smith, 136 Cal. 5; 68 Pac. 97.

Cost of transcript. Where no application appears to have been made to the superior judge, directing the official court reporter to transcribe the evidence, a party who has paid cash to such reporter to procure a transcript of the evidence, is not entitled to recover the same as costs. Blair v. Brownstone Oil etc. Co., 20 Cal. App. 316; 128 Pac. 1022.

Payment of costs as prerequisite to relief. A condition that the defendant shall pay the plaintiff's costs, in an order granting a new trial, is sufficiently complied with, where the defendant tendered the real amount of costs within the time limited by the order, although less than the amount stated in the judgment, and thereafter moved to retax the costs. Higuerra v. Bernal, 46 Cal. 580. A condition that plaintiff shall pay a certain amount of costs, in an order granting him a new trial, cannot be complained of by the defendant, nor does it indicate that the act of the court in granting the new trial was erroneous. Anglo-Nevada Assurance Corp. v. Ross, 123 Cal. 520; 56 Pac. 335; and see Brooks v. San Francisco etc. Ry. Co., 110 Cal. 173; 42 Pac. 570. Where an order was made, setting aside a judgment for want of jurisdiction, by reason of a false return of service of summons, costs cannot be imposed. Waller v. Weston, 125 Cal. 201; 57 Pac. 892. In condemnation proceedings, the only requirement of the statute is the payment of the sum of money assessed, within thirty days after final judgment, which excludes the idea that the payment of interest on such amount, or the payment of costs, is included. San Francisco etc. Ry. Co. v. Leviston, 134 Cal. 412; 66 Pac. 473. In an action to enforce a resulting trust in land, where the proof showed the plaintiff entitled to a conveyance only upon the payment of the defendant's lien, which payment he had not tendered, he is not entitled to such relief, except upon payment of costs. Bell v. Solomons, 142 Cal. 59; 75 Pac. 649.

Costs of appeal. The appellate courts have a discretion to determine what are the necessary costs incurred upon the appeal, notwithstanding the memorandum of costs claimed upon the appeal is filed in the lower court. Blair v. Brownstone Oil etc. Co., 20 Cal. App. 316; 128 Pac. 1022. The allowance or disallowance of items for expense and disbursements incurred upon the trial of an action must be left, in nearly every instance, to the discretion of the judge before whom the cause was tried, subject to review upon appeal; and the same principle applies to its taxation of expenses in the appellate court. Bond v. United Railroads, 20 Cal. App. 124; 128 Pac. 786; Blair v. Brownstone Oil etc. Co., 20 Cal. App. 316; 128 Pac. 1022. Where, upon appeal from the judgment, and an order denying a new trial, the order is affirmed, but the cause is remanded, with directions to modify the judgment, and no directions concerning the costs of appeal, the clerk's power is limited, under the rules of the supreme court, to the entry of judgment for costs, only on the appeal from the judgment. Crittenden v. San Francisco Savings Union, 157 Cal. 201; 107 Pac. 103.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. See note to § 1022, ante. Costs in equity are always in the discretion of the court, and, whether granted or not, are but incidents to, and no part of, the relief sought. Gray v. Dougherty, 25 Cal. 282. In an action for damages to a mining claim, and for an injunction, plaintiffs obtained judgment for one hundred dollars, and costs taxed at $——, a perpetual injunction being granted also. All costs of trial were denied, except as to costs accrued by reason of the injunction granted, and it was held that this is a case where the allowance of costs is in the discretion of the court below. Esmond v. Chew, 17 Cal. 336. In an action upon a lost note, if indemnity was not tendered by plaintiff before suit brought, he cannot recover costs, unless the defendant has waived the tender, and then costs rest in the discretion of the court. Randolph v. Harris, 28 Cal. 562; 87 Am. Dec. 139. When surety by mortgage, without personal liability, not to be taxed with costs, in an action to foreclose the mortgage and subject the securities in his hands to the payment of the notes. See facts of the case. Van Orden v. Durham, 35 Cal. 148. The county court may render judgment against appellant for costs, on dismissal of an attempted appeal from a judgment of a justice's court, by reason of the failure of appellant to perfect his appeal, or for want of jurisdiction of the subject-matter of the appeal. Blair v. Cummings, 39 Cal. 669; People v. County Court of Placer County, Sup. Ct. Cal., October term, 1869 (not reported). In a proceeding for the sale of property held in trust for religious or charitable purposes, the costs of litigation and reasonable counsel fees are a proper charge upon the trust fund, and should be allowed out of it by the court. Alemany v. Wensinger, 40 Cal. 289; see Von Schmidt v. Huntington, 1 Cal. 55.

§ 1026. When the several defendants are not united in interest, costs may be severed. When there are several defendants in the actions mentioned in section ten hundred and twenty-two, not united in interest, and making separate defenses by separate answers, and plaintiff fails to recover judgment against all, the court must award costs to such of the defendants as have judgment in their favor.

Judgment, for some defendants. Ante, § 578.
Costs, where several defendants. Ante, § 1023.

Legislation § 1026. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 499 (New York Code, § 306), substituting (1) "ten hundred and twenty-two" for "four hundred and ninety-five," and (2) "must" for "shall."

2. Repealed by Stats 1901, p. 180; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

§ 1027. Costs on appeal. The prevailing party on appeal shall be entitled to his costs excepting when judgment is modified, and in that event the matter of costs is within the discretion of the appellate court. The party entitled to costs, or to whom costs are awarded, may recover all amounts actually paid out by him in connection with said appeal and the preparation of the record for the appeal, including the costs of printing briefs; provided, however, that no amount shall be allowed as costs of printing briefs in excess of fifty dollars to any one party. The appellate court may reduce costs in case of the insertion of unnecessary matter in the record.

Legislation § 1027. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 500 (New York Code, § 306), and then read: "§ 1027. In the following cases the costs of appeal is [sic] in the discretion of the court: 1. When a new trial is ordered; 2. When a judgment is modified."

2. Amended by Stats. 1913, p. 1033.

Costs included what. The costs upon appeal are properly the costs in the appellate court, and the costs of making up the appeal in the court below, including the cost of making out the transcript; and where a case is remanded for further proceedings, and the costs are awarded in the appellate court in general items, costs upon appeal, only, are meant, with the costs of the former trial left to abide the event of the suit. Gray v. Gray, 11 Cal. 341. A transcript of the reporter's notes, used for the purpose of preparing the statement on motion for a new trial, cannot be taxed as costs upon appeal. Bank of Woodland v. Hiatt, 59 Cal. 580.

Costs, where judgment is modified. Where the judgment is modified because of an apparent error, which the appellant might have had corrected in the trial court on motion, the respondent will not be taxed with costs. Cassin v. Marshall, 18 Cal. 689; Noonan v. Hood, 49 Cal. 293.

Costs of frivolous appeal. The costs of appeal, and damages for delay as part of the costs of appeal, will be allowed, where the only error upon the record is a trivial clerical error in the computation of interest; such an appeal is essentially frivolous, as the error would have been corrected by the trial court, upon its attention being called to it. Rountree v. I. X. L. Lime Co., 106 Cal. 62; 39 Pac. 16.

Of former appeal. In awarding judgment to a plaintiff after a second trial, it is error to include the costs of a former appeal, upon which costs were awarded to the defendant. Huellmantel v. Huellmantel, 124 Cal. 583; 57 Pac. 582.

Certificate to transcript. The supreme court has not the power to compel the respondent's counsel to agree to the certification of the transcript upon appeal, regardless of the merits or outcome of the appeal, under absolute penalty for refusal; and its rule does not relieve the appellant from the duty of advancing the cost of the clerk's certification of the transcript, nor relieve him from the burden of paying such cost if his appeal is not successful, but allows the respondent the privilege of saving possible expense if the appeal is successful, and precludes the appellant from recovering such cost if the transcript is not presented to the respondent for approval. Loftus v. Fischer, 113 Cal. 286; 45 Pac. 328; 114 Cal. 131; 45 Pac. 1058.

Power of appellate court to award costs on dismissal of appeal for want of jurisdiction. See note 13 Ann. Cas. 1048.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. In an action for ejectment, the court below rendered judgment for possession and damages, the finding not authorizing a judgment for damages, yet the whole judgment for both possession and damages was affirmed in the supreme court, upon respondent's remitting the damages, and paying the costs of appeal. Doll v. Feller, 16 Cal. 433. If judgment of the court below is reversed, and a new trial had, the costs of the first trial are part of the final bill of costs. Visher v. Webster, 13 Cal. 58. A judgment for too much interest will be modified by the supreme court in that particular, and then be permitted to stand at appellant's cost. Where the supreme court modifies the judgment below for an apparent error, which appellant might have had corrected below, by specific motion, respondent will not be taxed with costs. Cassin v. Marshall, 18 Cal. 689; Tyron v. Sutton, 13 Cal. 491. Judgment being affirmed in part and reversed in part, the respondent was allowed his costs in the court below, but made to pay the costs of the appeal. Cole v. Swanston, 1 Cal. 51; 52 Am. Dec. 288. The costs upon appeal are, properly, the costs in this court, and the cost of making up the appeal in the court below, including the cost of making out the transcript. The costs of the former trial are not included, but abide the event of the suit. Gray v. Gray, 11 Cal. 341. Where a judgment of the court was incorrect in part, and its judgment accordingly modified, the appellants recover the costs of their appeal. Welch v. Sullivan, 8 Cal. 512. The person who is responsible for the erroneous proceedings, after the remittitur was sent down from the supreme court, must pay the costs of those proceedings, and the costs consequent on a second appeal caused by them. Argenti v. San Francisco, 30 Cal. 458. When the case is remanded by the supreme court for further proceedings, and costs are awarded in general terms, the costs awarded include only the costs made on the appeal to the supreme court. The costs of the former trial are not included, but abide the event of the suit. Ex parte Burrill, 24 Cal. 350; Gray v. Gray, 11 Cal. 341. If the printed transcript in the supreme court is unnecessarily long, the party who is to blame for this will be adjudged to pay the costs of printing thus unnecessarily incurred, or a share thereof. People v. Holden, 28 Cal. 129. Action in which each party made to pay his own costs on appeal. See Bradbury v. Barnes, 19 Cal. 120. In which costs of motion in supreme court not allowed. Swain v. Naglee, 19 Cal. 127. In which appellant paid costs in supreme court. Jungerman v. Bovee, 19 Cal. 354. In which appellant made to pay costs, although the judgment is reversed. Reniff v. The Cynthia, 18 Cal. 669. Judgment affirmed as to a mandamus, but reversed as to costs. McDougal v. Roman, 2 Cal. 80. Costs on partial success. See Brooks v. Calderwood, 34 Cal. 563.

§ 1028. Referee's fees. The fees of referees are five dollars to each for every day spent in the business of the reference; but the parties may agree, in writing, upon any other rate of compensation, and thereupon such rates shall be allowed.

Reference, generally. Ante, §§ 638–645.
Referees.
1. In partition, compensation of. Ante, §§ 768, 796.
2. In probate. Post, § 1508.

Legislation § 1028. Enacted March 11, 1872 (based on Practice Act, § 504), substituting "are" for "shall be" before "five."

Discretion of court. The court has a wide discretion in fixing the compensation of a referee, and is not restricted to the allowance of five dollars per day. Mesnager v. De Leonis, 140 Cal. 402; 73 Pac. 1052.

§ 1029. Continuance, costs may be imposed as condition of. When an application is made to a court or referee to postpone a trial, the payment of costs occasioned by the postponement may be imposed, in the discretion of the court or referee, as a condition of granting the same.

Postponement, generally. Ante, §§ 595, 596.

Legislation § 1029. Enacted March 11, 1872, in the exact language of Practice Act, § 505, as amended by Stats. 1855, p. 251.

Discretion of court. The imposition of costs upon granting a continuance on account of the sudden illness of the attorney of the party making the request, is not an abuse of discretion. Eltzroth v. Ryan, 91 Cal. 584; 27 Pac. 932.

What costs may be imposed. The court has a right to impose costs, other than those properly taxable, as a condition for postponing the trial, and to proceed therewith upon the refusal of the party applying for the postponement to comply therewith. Pomeroy v. Bell, 118 Cal. 636; 50 Pac. 683.

Imposition of terms on granting continuance. See note Ann. Cas. 1913A, 308.

§ 1030. Costs when a tender is made before suit brought. When, in an action for the recovery of money only, the defendant alleges in his answer that before the commencement of the action he tendered to the plaintiff the full amount to which he was entitled, and thereupon deposits in court, for plaintiff, the amount so tendered, and the allegation be found to be true, the plaintiff cannot recover costs, but must pay costs to the defendant.

Tender. Post, § 2076.
Offer to compromise. Ante, § 997.

Legislation § 1030. Enacted March 11, 1872 (based on Practice Act, § 506), (1) omitting "the" before "plaintiff," in first instance, and (2) substituting (a) "cannot" for "shall not" before "recover," and (b) "must" for "shall" before "pay."

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. If tender was made of the amount due before action and kept good during action, the judgment should be for plaintiff, but the defendant is entitled to costs. Curiac v. Abadie, 25 Cal. 502. Defendant must not only plead tender before the suit brought, but that he has always been and now is ready and willing to pay the same, and the money should be brought into court. Bryan v. Maume, 28 Cal. 239. The tender can be made only by a party in interest. See Mahler v. Newbaur, 32 Cal. 168; 91 Am. Dec. 571. On the subject of tender generally, see Civ. Code, §§ 1485–1505, and notes. The rules heretofore existing, as to the effect of offer of performance, are somewhat modified, and in many respects altogether changed.

§ 1031. Costs in action by or against an administrator, etc. In an action prosecuted or defended by an executor, administrator, trustee of express trust, or a person expressly authorized by statute, costs may be recovered as in action by and against a person prosecuting or defending in his own right; but such costs must, by the judgment, be made chargeable only upon the estate, fund, or party represented, unless the court directs the same to be paid by the plaintiff or defendant, personally, for mismanagement or bad faith in the action or defense.

Costs against executor, etc. Post, § 1509.

2. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 180; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

Construction of section. This section does not forbid the taxation of a memorandum of costs against an executor, in an action prosecuted or defended by him, but merely provides that such costs must, by the judgment, be made chargeable only upon the estate, unless the court directs the same to be paid by the executor. Reay v. Butler, 99 Cal. 477; 33 Pac. 1134. When a judgment for costs should be against an administrator, and when it should be "made chargeable only upon the estate," are questions about which this section and § 1509, post, are somewhat conflicting. Leonis v. Leffingwell, 126 Cal. 369; 58 Pac. 940.

No conflict between this section and § 1509, post. See note post, § 1509.

Costs against trust property. Where an action was brought by the plaintiff as trustee of an express trust, and there was no charge of bad faith or mismanagement on his part, costs are chargeable only against the trust property. Sterling v. Gregory, 149 Cal. 117; 85 Pac. 305.

Against executor. In the absence of a special statute as to costs against an executor, they should be imposed upon him individually, leaving him to seek an allowance for payment thereof from the probate court. Meyer v. O'Rourke, 150 Cal. 177; 88 Pac. 706. When a judgment is rendered against an executor for costs, but such costs are not made chargeable against the estate, it amounts to a personal judgment against the executor, which may be enforced by execution. Stevens v. San Francisco etc. R. R. Co., 103 Cal. 252; 37 Pac. 146. Where an action to quiet title against an executor is contested by him, and judgment is for the plaintiff, the court has a discretion to award costs against the executor personally, though there was no finding of mismanagement or bad faith; and he cannot, upon appeal, have them removed from his individual shoulders and cast upon the estate he represents. Meyer v. O'Rourke, 150 Cal. 177; 88 Pac. 706.

Effect of waiver as against executor. The fact that the plaintiffs, at the hearing of the motion for a change of venue, waived their claim for costs against the executors personally, and agreed to look to the estate alone for them, does not affect the right of the executors to a change of venue to the county of their residence. Thompson v. Wood, 115 Cal. 301; 47 Pac. 50.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. Executors and administrators are individually responsible for costs recovered against them; but they must not be reimbursed for such costs in their administration accounts, unless it appears that the action has been prosecuted or resisted without just cause. Hicox v. Graham, 6 Cal. 169.

§ 1032. Costs in a review other than by appeal. When the decision of a court of inferior jurisdiction in a special proceeding is brought before a court of higher jurisdiction for a review, in any other way than by appeal, the same costs must be allowed as in cases on appeal, and may be collected by execution, or in such manner as the court may direct, according to the nature of the case.

Special proceedings, generally. Post, §§ 1063–1821.
Costs on appeal. Ante, § 1027; post, § 1034.

Legislation § 1032. Enacted March 11, 1872 (based on Practice Act, § 508), substituting "must" for "shall."

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. It will be observed that § 509 of the old Practice Act has been omitted. This was intentional, and the tax heretofore known as the court tax is no longer a cost charge.

§ 1033. Filing of and affidavit to bill of costs. The party in whose favor the judgment is rendered, and who claims his costs, must deliver to the clerk, and serve upon the adverse party, within five days after the verdict, or notice of the decision of the court or referee, or, if the entry of the judgment on the verdict or decision be stayed, then, before such entry is made, a memorandum of the items of his costs and necessary disbursements in the action or proceeding, which memorandum must be verified by the oath of the party, or his attorney or agent, or by the clerk of his attorney, stating that to the best of his knowledge and belief the items are correct, and that the disbursements have been necessarily incurred in the action or proceeding. A party dissatisfied with the costs claimed may, within five days after notice of filing of the bill of costs, file a motion to have the same taxed by the court in which the judgment was rendered, or by the judge thereof at chambers. By the decision of the court, or referee, herein referred to, is meant the signing and filing of the findings of fact and conclusions of law.

Legislation § 1033. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 510, as amended by Stats. 1855, p. 251, which read: "The party in whose favor judgment is rendered, and who claims his costs, shall deliver to the clerk of the court, within two days after the verdict or decision of the court, a memorandum of the items of his costs and necessary disbursements in the action or proceeding; which memorandum shall be verified by the oath of the party, or his attorney, stating that the items are correct, and that the disbursements have been necessarily incurred in the action or proceeding." When § 1033 was enacted in 1872, "must" was substituted for "shall," in both instances.

2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1873–74, p. 343, to read as at present, except for the amendment of 1899.

3. Amended by Stats. 1899, p. 22, adding the last sentence.

4. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 181; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

Construction of section. The provisions of this section are not intended to be directory; no right is created, apart from the remedy provided for its enforcement, and in respect to this remedy, there is no room for construction; and failure to comply with the provisions of the section not only extinguishes the remedy, but forfeits the right itself. Chapin v. Broder, 16 Cal. 403. The object of this section is to give the prevailing party, who claims costs, five days after he has knowledge of the verdict or decision in which to serve and file his memorandum; should he have knowledge of such decision, it would be an idle act to require the service of notice of that fact; and where such party gives notice of the decision to the opposite party for the purpose of starting the time within which the motion for a new trial can be made, he must be held to have had notice of the decision, and to have waived any formal notice thereof. O'Neil v. Donahue, 57 Cal. 226. This section is not to be construed literally, so as to subvert the settled practice of serving and filing a written notice of the motion to tax the costs, specifying the objections to the cost-bill, and the time when the application to the court or judge will be made to correct or strike it out: such practice is a substantial compliance with the statute. Carpy v. Dowdell, 129 Cal. 244; 61 Pac. 1126. This section must be invoked in aid of § 1034, post, to prevent the latter section from being unconstitutional, as allowing property to be taken without notice or an opportunity to be heard. Bell v. Superior Court, 150 Cal. 31; 87 Pac. 1031.

Repeal of statute. The act of 1871–72, providing that the party demanding a jury shall pay the fees thereof, in case they shall be discharged without finding a verdict, but that such fees may be recovered as costs on his obtaining a judgment afterwards, and that no further proceedings shall be allowed until the fees are paid, was not repealed on the adoption of the codes. Carpenter v. Jones, 121 Cal. 362; 53 Pac. 842.

Time of filing cost-bill. In an action at law, a cost-bill should be filed within five days after the verdict, unless the entry of judgment thereon was stayed, or the case was reserved for argument upon briefs, in which case, if filed prior to the entry of the judgment, it would be in time. Bedolla v. Williams, 15 Cal. App. 738; 115 Pac. 747. A ruling of the trial court, granting a motion for a nonsuit on the contest of a will, is not the judgment of the court, and the proponents' cost-bill is filed in time if filed within five days after the judge signed the draft of the form of the judgment, which was afterwards entered in the minute-book. Estate of Purcell, 164 Cal. 300; 128 Pac. 932. Where a cost-bill and the judgment are filed on the same day, it must be presumed that the filing of the cost-bill preceded the entry of the judgment. Bedolla v. Williams, 15 Cal. App. 738; 115 Pac. 747. Where the entry of judgment is stayed, a memorandum of costs may be filed at any time before such entry is made. Taylor v. McConigle, 120 Cal. 123; 52 Pac. 159.

Extension of time. An extension of time to file a cost-bill may be granted by the trial judge. Beilby v. Superior Court, 138 Cal. 51; 70 Pac. 1024.

Failure to file. The recovery of costs is a matter regulated exclusively by statute, and the mode pointed out for that purpose must be strictly pursued. Chapin v. Broder, 16 Cal. 403. The omission from this section of that clause of the original § 510 of the Practice Act, which provided that a failure by the prevailing party to file his memorandum of costs within the time limited should be deemed a waiver of his costs, is not a material defect; the code contemplates that such shall be the result, since the only costs the clerk is authorized to insert in the judgment are those claimed, and "taxed or ascertained," in the manner provided. Riddell v. Harrell, 71 Cal. 254; 12 Pac. 67; and see Chapin v. Broder, 16 Cal. 403. Conceding, without deciding, that relief can be granted for inadvertence or excusable neglect in failing to file a cost-bill in time, under § 473, ante, such relief will not be granted upon an affidavit showing mere forgetfulness to file it in time, owing to press of other business. Dow v. Ross, 90 Cal. 562; 27 Pac. 409; Galindo v. Roach, 130 Cal. 389; 62 Pac. 597. A judgment for costs, entered by the clerk, in the absence of the filing or service of a memorandum of costs, is without jurisdiction, and void; and a party failing to file his memorandum waives all claim for costs. Riddell v. Harrell, 71 Cal. 254; 12 Pac. 67; and see Chapin v. Broder, 16 Cal. 403.

Waiver of notice. The right to written notice of the actual time of the filing of a cost-bill may be waived. Bell v. Thompson, 8 Cal. App. 483; 97 Pac. 158.

Who may verify. An attorney who verifies the memorandum need not be the attorney of record, but it is sufficient if he was employed to assist in the case: any one who has knowledge of the facts may verify the memorandum. Yorba v. Dobner, 90 Cal. 337; 27 Pac. 185; and see Burnham v. Hayes, 3 Cal. 115; 58 Am. Dec. 389.

Striking out cost-bill. Where a party, entitled to costs, neglects to serve and file his memorandum thereof until more than five days have elapsed after he has knowledge of the decision of the court, though no written notice of it has been served upon him, the filing is too late, and the costs will be stricken out on motion. Dow v. Ross, 90 Cal. 562; 27 Pac. 409; and see Mallory v. See, 129 Cal. 356; 61 Pac. 1123. Although the allowance or disallowance of items of costs incurred upon the trial of an action must be left, in nearly every case, to the discretion of the trial court, and the memorandum of costs, when properly verified, should, unless controverted, control the decision of the court, where the charges appear on their face to be for proper and necessary disbursements, yet, where any charges do not so appear, the burden of proof is on the party claiming the costs, and, in the absence of evidence justifying and sustaining the charges, they should be stricken out on motion. Miller v. Highland Ditch Co., 91 Cal. 103; 27 Pac. 536; Barnhart v. Kron, 88 Cal. 447; 26 Pac. 210. A cost-bill filed before the filing of the findings and the entry of judgment is premature, and will be stricken out on motion. Sellick v. De Carlow, 95 Cal. 644; 30 Pac. 795. A motion to strike out a cost-bill will be denied, where it was filed in time, and there is no tenable objection to it. Bedolla v. Williams, 15 Cal. App. 738; 115 Pac. 747.

Amendment. After the expiration of the time limited by this section for serving and filing a memorandum of costs, an amendment of such memorandum cannot be had so as to insert additional items of disbursement; nor can a judgment for such additional items be rendered, in the absence of a showing that the omission was excusable on some of the grounds mentioned in § 473, ante. Galindo v. Roach, 130 Cal. 389; 62 Pac. 597. An order allowing an amendment to a cost-bill, made after the time had passed for filing a cost-bill but in furtherance of justice, and where notice of such order was had and no objection made, is effective. Legg & Shaw Co. v. Worthington, 157 Cal. 488; 108 Pac. 284.

Motion to tax costs. The time of notice of the hearing of a motion to retax costs may, under § 1005, ante, be shortened by the court. Furtinata v. Butterfield, 14 Cal. App. 25; 110 Pac. 962. The universal practice has been to serve and file written notice of the motion to tax the cost-bill as the equivalent of filing a motion within five days, and on the day designated in the notice, or on the day to which the hearing should have been postponed, to call up the notice and make the motion viva voce, a note of the motion being made by the clerk in his minutes: this practice is a sufficient compliance with the statute. Kishlar v. Southern Pacific R. R. Co., 134 Cal. 636; 66 Pac. 848. A filed motion to retax costs need not be served. Furtinata v. Butterfield, 14 Cal. App. 25; 110 Pac. 962.

Motion to tax or retax costs. It is sufficient, in the notice of a motion to have the costs taxed by the court, to specify certain items of costs in the cost-bill as objected to, and to state that they are not legally chargeable as costs, and were not necessary disbursements in the action; it is not necessary that any affidavit shall accompany the notice, this section does not specify what the motion must contain, nor upon what kind of evidence it shall be heard, but, upon the hearing of the motion, any competent evidence, oral or written, may be presented to the court. Senior v. Anderson, 130 Cal. 290; 62 Pac. 563; Lomita Land etc. Co. v. Robinson, 154 Cal. 36; 18 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1106; 97 Pac. 10.

Necessity of including items in cost-bill. The fees of the officers of the court must be claimed in the memorandum of costs; and, in the absence of such memorandum, the clerk has no authority to insert such fees in the judgment. Chapin v. Broder, 16 Cal. 403. Counsel fees allowed in an action of slander, in addition to the other costs, must be included in the cost-bill as filed, or they are waived. McKinney v. Roberts, 2 Cal. Unrep. 532; 8 Pac. 3.

Costs allowed by referee, but not by court. Costs allowed by a referee against a garnishee, but not allowed in the order of court confirming the report, cannot be collected in an action on the judgment.

Bronzan v. Drobaz, 93 Cal. 647; 29 Pac. 254.

Costs relating to common fund. Costs may be allowed in a suit in equity, for the preservation or distribution of a fund, where all the parties have a common interest. Hays v. Windsor, 130 Cal. 230; 62 Pac. 395.

Witness fees. The payment of a fee to a witness, who attends by request, though not served with a subpœna, is a necessary disbursement, as much so as when paid to a witness who has been subpœnaed. Linforth v. San Francisco Gas etc. Co., 9 Cal. App. 434; 99 Pac. 716. Fees of witnesses subpœnaed in good faith, but not sworn on the trial, may be allowed as costs: it may have been that their testimony became unnecessary by reason of a modification of the pleadings, or the exclusion by the court of the testimony offered. Randall v. Falkner, 41 Cal. 242. A party in whose favor judgment is rendered, who voluntarily attends the trial without being subpœnaed by the opposite party, and while there is called as a witness by the latter, is not entitled to witness fees or mileage. Beal v. Stevens, 72 Cal. 451; 14 Pac. 186. The fees of witnesses who refused to receive the same cannot be allowed as costs; nor can any charge be made in the cost-bill for filing the same. Linforth v. San Francisco Gas etc. Co., 9 Cal. App. 434; 99 Pac. 716. The right to witness fees is statutory, and a party is required to pay only those fees which are authorized. Naylor v. Adams, 15 Cal. App. 353; 114 Pac. 997. The statute fixes the fees of witnesses; and the allowance of a further sum to a physician, who testified as an expert, cannot be allowed to an administrator. Estate of Levinson, 108 Cal. 450; 41 Pac. 483. An expert witness, not called by the court nor by agreement of the parties, may be allowed the usual fees for attendance, where he is in attendance, but not for his services as an expert. Linforth v. San Francisco Gas etc. Co., 9 Cal. App. 434; 99 Pac. 716. Expert witnesses should be allowed only the usual fees for daily attendance and mileage as witnesses, and the costs allowed cannot properly include their pay as experts, nor the expenses incurred by them in making surveys or preparing maps, not ordered by the court. Bathgate v. Irvine, 126 Cal. 135; 77 Am. St. Rep. 158; 58 Pac. 442. The power of the judge to order payment of witness fees must be given by a statute uniform throughout the state. Turner v. Siskiyou County, 109 Cal. 332; 42 Pac. 434.

Depositions. Where depositions are necessary, the costs of taking them may be allowed (Lomita Land etc. Co. v. Robinson, 154 Cal. 36; 18 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1106; 97 Pac. 10), and are properly included in the cost-bill of the party taking them. California etc. Co. v. Schiappa-Pietra, 151 Cal. 732; 91 Pac. 593. The cost of taking depositions forms no part of the damages in an action for conversion, and should be determined in the cost-bill. Nicholls v. Mapes, 1 Cal. App. 349; 82 Pac. 265.

Transcript of testimony, and copies of papers. Items of costs paid without consent of the parties or by order of the court, for a transcript of the reporter's notes and for copies of excluded papers withdrawn, are improper, and should be rejected upon taxation of costs. Senior v. Anderson, 130 Cal. 290; 62 Pac. 563. Where the transcript of the testimony was written up under a previous order of the court, directing that the expense be borne equally by both sides, the prevailing party is entitled to include the amount paid by him for such expense as part of the costs in the case. Bell v. Pleasant, 145 Cal. 410; 104 Am. St. Rep. 61; 78 Pac. 957. An item of costs, paid for copies of numerous papers, which were not offered in evidence, and the need of which was not explained, nor shown to have been reasonably apprehended, should be stricken out. Senior v. Anderson, 130 Cal. 290; 62 Pac. 563.

Printing of briefs. The printing of briefs to be used upon appeal cannot be taxed either as costs or as disbursements. Bond v. United Railroads, 20 Cal. App. 124; 128 Pac. 786; Blair v. Brownstone Oil etc. Co., 20 Cal. App. 316; 128 Pac. 1022. An item of costs charged for "printing points" does not represent an obligation of the defendant, and the plaintiff is not authorized to include it in the bill for the amount due. Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc. v. Behnke, 121 Cal. 339; 53 Pac. 812.

Expense of filing mechanic's lien. The expense of filing mechanics' liens is properly included as part of the costs and disbursements, upon foreclosure thereof. Builders' Supply Depot v. O'Connor, 150 Cal. 265; 119 Am. St. Rep. 193; 11 Ann. Cas. 712; 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 909; 88 Pac. 982.

Premium on bond. The charge of a surety company for a replevin bond is not a proper item in a cost-bill. Williams v. Atchison etc. Ry. Co., 156 Cal. 140; 134 Am. St. Rep. 117; 19 Ann. Cas. 1260; 103 Pac. 885.

Insurance-money. Insurance-money, paid by a sheriff on attached property, is not a proper item of costs. Galindo v. Roach, 130 Cal. 389; 62 Pac. 597.

Including costs in judgment. No distinction is made between the fees of officers of the court and other expenses, and disbursements of every character are placed upon the same footing; a party entitled to costs is required to claim them in a particular manner, and when properly claimed, it is the duty of the clerk to include them in the judgment, but, until they are so claimed, he is not vested with any authority for that purpose. Chapin v. Broder, 16 Cal. 403. Where the statute provides that the clerk shall include the costs in the judgment, he has no authority to insert the amount of the costs in the judgment at some subsequent time, as his authority terminates with the entry of the judgment, and if, by mistake or otherwise, the costs are omitted, the remedy is by motion to amend the judgment; no title passes to the purchaser of land sold upon execution under such a judgment. Emeric v. Alvarado, 64 Cal. 529; 2 Pac. 418; and see Chapin v. Broder, 16 Cal. 403. The insertion of costs in the judgment is a mere ministerial act of the clerk, which can be performed only in the cases where the statute allows it. Riddell v. Harrell, 71 Cal. 254; 12 Pac. 67; Chapin v. Broder, 16 Cal. 403.

Payment of costs as condition. The payment of reporter's fees, where a jury has been discharged, cannot be required as a condition of setting the cause for a second trial. Carpenter v. Jones, 121 Cal. 362; 53 Pac. 842. The refusal of the clerk to indorse any filing upon the decision and judgment until after the filing of the cost-bill, upon the alleged ground that the calendar fee had not been paid, cannot prejudice the rights of the party filing the cost-bill. Beck v. Pasadena Lake Vineyard etc. Co., 130 Cal. 50; 62 Pac. 219.

Deposit of jury fees. The court may require the party demanding a jury to deposit the fees. Bank of Lassen County v. Sherer, 108 Cal. 513; 41 Pac. 415.

Decision, defined. In cases where a nonsuit is granted, the "decision" referred to in this section must be understood to mean a judgment entered upon a motion. Estate of Purcell, 164 Cal. 300; 128 Pac. 932.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. This section has been held not to apply to costs on appeal to the supreme court. Gray v. Gray, 11 Cal. 341. If the opposing party fail to file his cost-bill, or to give notice within the proper time, the vacation of the judgment is not on that account absolute. Gregory v. Haynes, 21 Cal. 443. If items are included in the bill of costs which are not properly taxable, the party should move to amend or retax the costs, and no just grounds are afforded for refusing to issue an execution or recalling one. Meeker v. Harris, 23 Cal. 285. If the original bill of costs is filed within the time prescribed, an amendment allowed after the time relates back to the time of filing, and forms a part of the original. An affidavit by the attorney of the party accompanying the bill of costs is good. Burnham v. Hays, 3 Cal. 115; 58 Am. Dec. 389. A memorandum of the costs should be filed in the office of the clerk of the court below at the time of filing the remittitur there, or within the time specified by the statute thereafter. Ex parte Burrill, 24 Cal. 350; see also Eaton v. Palmer, 11 Cal. 341. The court cannot add to the judgment the costs of the prevailing party after the time for filing the same has expired, and after an appeal has been perfected. If it does so, the proper and only remedy is by an appeal from the order. Jones v. Frost, 28 Cal. 245. If the costs on appeal are not entered on the judgment-docket in the court below, they are not a lien on property until the levy of an execution. Or if the clerk's and sheriff's fees were inserted in the judgment, when not so claimed, the judgment is so far void, and may be attacked collaterally. Chapin v. Broder, 16 Cal. 403.

§ 1034. Costs on appeal, how claimed and recovered.

Whenever costs are awarded to a party by an appellate court, if he claims such costs, he must, within thirty days after the remittitur is filed with the clerk below, deliver to such clerk a memorandum of his costs, verified as prescribed by the preceding section, and thereafter he may have an execution therefor as upon a judgment.

Remittitur. Ante, § 958.

Legislation § 1034. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 665, as amended by Stats. 1854, Redding ed. p. 73, Kerr ed. p. 103, which read: "Whenever costs are awarded to a party by an appellant [sic] court, such party may have an execution for the same on filing remittitur with the clerk of the court below; and it shall be the duty of such clerk, whenever the remittitur is filed, to issue the execution upon application therefor, and whenever costs are awarded to a party by an order of any court, such party may have an execution therefor in like manner as upon a judgment."

2. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 181; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

Construction of section. This section, standing alone, would be unconstitutional, because of its failure to provide for notice and an opportunity for the adverse party to be heard, but this is avoided by construing it with § 1033, ante, so as to require service of the memorandum of costs upon the opposite party, and an opportunity for retaxation before execution can properly be issued thereupon. Bell v. Superior Court, 150 Cal. 31; 87 Pac. 1031.

Cost-bill filed in trial court. A memorandum of the costs upon appeal is not necessary to be filed in the supreme court, upon a judgment awarding costs: such costs should be claimed in the trial court. Gray v. Gray, 11 Cal. 341. The memorandum of costs indorsed on the remittitur by the clerk of the supreme court should not be regarded as a sufficient memorandum of costs; and if the prevailing party intends to collect the fees for filing the notice of appeal and the expenses of preparing the transcript of the record, these should be embodied in a memorandum of costs and filed with the clerk of the trial court, at the time of filing the remittitur there, or within the time thereafter prescribed by the statute in other cases. Ex parte Burrill, 24 Cal. 350.

Costs, where land involved is sold. Where land involved in actions is sold pending appeal, and the transferee permits the prosecution of the action to be continued in the name of the original parties, those parties may recover costs of suit. Crittenden v. San Francisco Savings Union, 157 Cal. 201; 107 Pac. 103.

Transcript of evidence as costs. The allowance of costs on appeal includes, in addition to the costs and disbursements paid and incurred up to the entry of judgment, only such costs and disbursements as the appellant was put to by reason of the taking of the appeal; therefore the reporter's transcript of the evidence, when not ordered by the court, although used in preparing the record on appeal, is not a proper item to be recovered upon the reversal of the judgment. Bank of Woodland v. Hiatt, 59 Cal. 580.

Transcript on appeal. The appellant may be limited in his recovery of costs for the transcript on appeal, where a much briefer record would have been sufficient. Estate of Pease, 149 Cal. 167; 85 Pac. 149. Where an appellant includes in the transcript irrelevant matter, he cannot recover costs for procuring or printing the same. Sichel v. Carrillo, 42 Cal. 493. The cost of printing a transcript will not be taxed against the respondent, by reason of having proposed amendments to the statement, by incorporating therein the greater part of the evidence in the case, for the purpose of showing that the exclusion of the testimony sought to be stricken out would not change the result. Duffy v. Duffy, 104 Cal. 602; 38 Pac. 443. Where a judgment is reversed, additional costs will not be imposed on the respondent on account of his inserting in the transcript a large amount of unnecessary matter, as by the reversal he will be required to pay the expense of printing the same. Estate of Robinson, 106 Cal. 493; 39 Pac. 862.

Costs of printing briefs. See note ante, § 1033.

Execution for costs. Where costs are awarded by the judgment of the appellate court, the clerk of the trial court, upon the going down of the remittitur, must attach it to the judgment roll, and enter a minute of the judgment on the docket, against the original entry; the judgment thereafter stands as the judgment of the trial court, and, on the application of the party in whose favor it is given, the clerk must issue execution, and in doing so, he acts, not by authority of the trial court, but of the appellate court. McMann v. Superior Court, 74 Cal. 106; 15 Pac. 448.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations, as to costs awarded by the appellate court, commences to run from the entry thereof in the docket. McMann v. Superior Court, 74 Cal. 106; 15 Pac. 448.

Application for modification of judgment as to costs. Where a party desires a modification of the judgment as to costs, the proper application therefor should be made within the time allowed for filing a petition for a rehearing. Gray v. Gray, 11 Cal. 341. A judgment may be modified as to costs. Petitpierre v. Maguire, 155 Cal. 242; 100 Pac. 690.

Costs upon reversal or modification. Upon the reversal or modification of a judgment or order appealed from, without any direction as to the costs of appeal, the clerk of the trial court should enter upon the record, and insert in the remittitur, a judgment that the appellant recover the costs of appeal. Crittenden v. San Francisco Savings Union, 157 Cal. 201; 107 Pac. 103.

Power of trial court after case is remanded. Where, upon appeal from the judgment and from an order denying a new trial, the order is affirmed, but the cause is remanded, with directions to modify the judgment, and no directions concerning the costs of appeal, the clerk has no authority to enter upon the record, or to insert in the remittitur on the appeal from the order, a judgment that the appellant recover the costs of such appeal; under the rules of the supreme court, his power is limited to the entry of judgment for costs only on the appeal from the judgment. Crittenden v. San Francisco Savings Union, 157 Cal. 201; 107 Pac. 103. The trial court cannot vacate or set aside a judgment for costs on appeal, docketed in conformity with the rules of the supreme court and § 958, ante; but it may set aside such judgment, so as to make it conform to the judgment upon appeal. Chapman v. Hughes, 3 Cal. App. 622; 86 Pac. 908. Though the clerk of the supreme court enters upon the record, and inserts in the remittitur on each of two appeals, one from the judgment and the other from an order denying a motion for a new trial, a direction that the appellant recover the costs thereof, the trial court errs in striking out the memorandum of costs filed in connection with the appeal from the judgment, where the order denying a new trial was affirmed, but the cause was remanded with directions to modify the judgment. Crittenden v. San Francisco Savings Union, 157 Cal. 201; 107 Pac. 103.

Taxation by superior court of expenses in appellate court. See note ante, § 1025.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. On the request of the successful party, the clerk of the court below must issue an execution for the costs included in the memorandum, and the costs of the clerk of the supreme court as certified by him on the remittitur. Ex parte Burrill, 24 Cal. 350; Mayor etc. of Marysville v. Buchanan, 3 Cal. 212; People v. Jones, 20 Cal. 50. Where a judgment is against two, one only of whom appeals, and the appeal is dismissed, with twenty per cent damages, the damages with the costs are not a part of the original judgment, and the redemptioner is not bound to pay them on redemption from a sale under the judgment. The court below can issue execution for the damages and costs. McMillan v. Vischer, 14 Cal. 241.

§ 1035. Interest and costs must be included by the clerk in the judgment. The clerk must include in the judgment entered up by him, any interest on the verdict or decision of the court, from the time it was rendered or made, and the costs, if the same have been taxed or ascertained; and he must, within two days after the same are taxed or ascertained, if not included in the judgment, insert the same in a blank left in the judgment for that purpose, and must make a similar insertion of the costs in the copies and docket of the judgment.

Interest on judgments. See Civ. Code, §§ 1917, 1918, 1920.

Legislation § 1035. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 511 (New York Code, § 310), as amended by Stats. 1861, p. 494, substituting (1) "must" for "shall" in the three instances, and (2) "are" for "shall be" before "taxed."

Construction of section. Cases where the judgment is not rendered immediately on the rendition of the verdict, or on the filing of the findings of facts found by the court or referee, are provided for by this section. Gray v. Palmer, 28 Cal. 416.

Interest. The provisions of this section create a right to interest from the rendition of the judgment, in the party in whose favor the decision is made, and he cannot be deprived of such right because the court formulates the judgment to be entered, instead of leaving it to the action of the clerk alone. Barnhart v. Edwards, 128 Cal. 572; 61 Pac. 176. Interest on a note sued on should be computed, at the rate fixed in the note, from its maturity to the date of the decision, and the amount thereof added to the principal; the resulting sum thereafter bears interest at the legal rate. United States Nat. Bank v. Waddingham, 7 Cal. App. 172; 93 Pac. 1046; Guy v. Franklin, 5 Cal. 416. Where the settlement of an account by the court involves the amount due upon a note, it should embrace the whole amount due for principal and interest at that date, and that amount should bear interest thereafter, as a whole, at the legal rate, and not according to the rate stipulated in the note. Murdock v. Clarke, 88 Cal. 384; 26 Pac. 601. Where the clerk delays to enter judgment for nearly two years after the rendition thereof, he should then enter the judgment as of the time of its rendition for the amount due at the commencement of the action, with interest to the date of entry. Cutting Fruit Packing Co. v. Canty, 141 Cal. 692; 75 Pac. 564. A judgment entered on a verdict should be for the amount of the verdict, with interest, at the legal rate, from the day on which it was returned by the jury; and the clerk has no authority to include in the amount of the judgment the interest which has accrued on the verdict from the time of its rendition until the time of the entry of judgment, and provide that such gross amount shall thereafter bear legal interest. Alpers v. Schammel, 75 Cal. 590; 17 Pac. 708. Where judgment was not entered until one year after the rendition of the verdict, the clerk should include therein interest on the amount of the verdict from the time of its rendition. Golden Gate Mill etc. Co. v. Joshua Hendy Machine Works, 82 Cal. 184; 23 Pac. 45. In a final decree, interest at seven per cent per annum, without compounding, upon unpaid alimony allowed in a former decree, may be allowed from the date of maturity of each installment. Huellmantel v. Huellmantel, 124 Cal. 583; 57 Pac. 582. In an action to enforce a mechanic's lien, the contractor is entitled to interest on the respective payments to be made under the contract, from the dates when they became due, and not upon the gross amount, from the commencement of the action. Knowles v. Baldwin, 125 Cal. 224; 57 Pac. 988. In an action of quantum meruit, interest is not allowed until judgment is rendered: interest cannot be allowed upon unliquidated demands before judgment. American-Hawaiian Engineering etc. Co. v. Butler, 17 Cal. App. 764; 121 Pac. 709; Burnett v. Glas, 154 Cal. 249; 97 Pac. 423. Where a judgment is modified upon appeal, reducing the amount thereof, interest is properly computed from the time of the original rendition of the judgment (Clark v. Dunnam, 46 Cal. 204): the correction by the superior court, in such case, is not a new decision upon the issues. Barnhart v. Edwards, 128 Cal. 572; 61 Pac. 176.

Insertion of costs in judgment. The insertion of costs in the judgment is a mere ministerial act of the clerk, depending entirely upon the filing of a memorandum for its authority; and where no memorandum is served on the opposite party, and none filed, a judgment for costs is void. Riddell v. Harrell, 71 Cal. 254; 12 Pac. 67; and see Chapin v. Broder, 16 Cal. 403. The insertion, in the decree, of the amount of costs as claimed by the plaintiff, before they are taxed or properly ascertained, is a mere clerical misprision, not affecting the validity of the decree, nor the order of sale issued thereon; and the subsequent taxing of the costs by the court is an amendment and a curing of the error (Janes v. Bullard, 107 Cal. 130; 40 Pac. 108); and an order reducing the amount of the costs erroneously entered by the clerk, without awaiting the determination of a motion to retax the costs, also operates to cure such error. Foley v. California Horseshoe Co., 115 Cal. 184; 56 Am. St. Rep. 87; 47 Pac. 42.

Interest on judgment. See note 17 L. R. A. 612.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. A judgment can properly bear interest only from the time it is pronounced. If there be interest due on the demand on which the action is brought, it should be included in the judgment when entered. Bibend v. Liverpool Fire etc. Ins. Co., 30 Cal. 78. Where the judgment of the court below is reversed, and the case remanded for further proceedings, and costs are awarded in general terms, the costs awarded include only the costs made on the appeal to the supreme court. The costs of the former trial abide the event of the suit. The clerk of the court below can issue an execution for the costs included in the memorandum and the costs as certified by the clerk of the supreme court on the remittitur. Ex parte Burrill, 24 Cal. 350. Costs constitute a part of the judgment, and though ascertained and adjudged by the court after an entry of the judgment by the clerk may have been made, yet the law considers such action of the court as having preceded the final judgment. Lasky v. Davis, 33 Cal. 677. After a judgment is entered and the record completed, the clerk has no power to fill up the blank left for costs. The court alone is competent to relieve, by amendment, where costs are omitted. Chapin v. Broder, 16 Cal. 403. Without any express contract in writing, made by the testator, providing for a higher rate of interest then ten per cent per annum, the executors have no authority to consent to the entry of a judgment bearing a greater rate of interest than ten per cent per annum; and must be charged with the excess of interest in their final account. Estate of Isaacs, 30 Cal. 105. In ejectment, if the plaintiff recovers judgment, he is entitled to full costs, notwithstanding he recovers a less interest than he sued for. Havens v. Dale, 30 Cal. 547. And although the answer admitted his right to the interest recovered, but raised an issue on the question of the ouster from the part recovered. Lawton v. Gordon, 37 Cal. 203.

§ 1036. When plaintiff is a non-resident or foreign corporation, defendant may require security for costs. When the plaintiff in an action or special proceeding resides out of the state, or is a foreign corporation, security for the costs and charges, which may be awarded against such plaintiff, may be required by the defendant. When required, all proceedings in the action or special proceeding must be stayed until an undertaking, executed by two or more persons, is filed with the clerk, to the effect that they will pay such costs and charges as may be awarded against the plaintiff by judgment, or in the progress of the action or special proceeding, not exceeding the sum of three hundred dollars. A new or an additional undertaking may be ordered by the court or judge, upon proof that the original undertaking is insufficient security, and proceedings in the action or special proceeding stayed until such new or additional undertaking is executed and filed.

Qualification of sureties. Post, § 1057.

Legislation § 1036. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 512 (New York Code, § 303), (1) substituting "must" for "shall" before "be stayed," and (2) "is" for "be" before "filed" and before "executed."

2. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 181; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

3. Amended by Stats. 1903, p. 187, adding "or special proceeding" after "action," in each instance.

Construction of code sections. This section vests the defendant with the right to security for costs, and the court cannot, against his will, deprive him of it; nor, by application of the principle, Expressio unius est exclusio alterius, does this section prevent the court from requiring security for costs as a condition for allowing an amendment to the complaint, under § 473, ante. Clune v. Sullivan, 56 Cal. 249. An order requiring security for costs to be filed within ten days is ineffectual for any purpose, because, under this section and § 1037, post, the parties have thirty days in which to file the undertaking to secure costs. Estate of Dean, 149 Cal. 487; 87 Pac. 13. The amount of the bond, as well as the conditions thereof, are prescribed by the code, and the court has no power to change either; nor has it power to deprive the defendant of his right to the bond, against his will, such right being vested in him by the statute; and when the demand for security for costs is made, the law itself enjoins further proceedings on the part of the plaintiff until the demand is complied with according to the provisions of the code; and after the undertaking or bond, in the sum and in the form specified, is given, a new or additional undertaking may be ordered by the court, when the first is deemed insufficient; but the court has no power to dispense with the giving of the first bond or undertaking. Meade v. Bailey, 137 Cal. 447; 70 Pac. 297.

Insufficient bond on appeal. An undertaking on attachment, given months prior to the appeal, by a foreign corporation, to secure damages and costs on appeal, is not a sufficient bond on appeal. Stimpson Computing Scale Co. v. Superior Court, 12 Cal. App. 536; 107 Pac. 1013.

Sufficiency of cost bond with respect to form and contents. See note Ann. Cas. 1913D, 575.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. Defendant served on plaintiff, a non-resident, notice to give security for costs, the notice not being accompanied with an order staying proceedings, and on the next day judgment was rendered for defendant, and plaintiff appealed to the supreme court. Motion to dismiss the appeal was denied, because, after judgment, it came too late. The undertaking on appeal was sufficient security for costs subsequently incurred. Comstock v. Clemens, 19 Cal. 77.

§ 1037. If such security be not given, the action may be dismissed. After the lapse of thirty days from the service of notice that security is required, or of an order for new or additional security, upon proof thereof, and that no undertaking as required has been filed, the court or judge may order the action or special proceeding to be dismissed.

Legislation § 1037. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872, in exact language of Practice Act, § 514.
2. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 181; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.
3. Amended by Stats. 1903, p. 188, inserting "or special proceeding" after "action."

Construction of section. A contest to revoke the probate of a will is not an action provided for in this section; and, in such a proceeding, a non-resident contestant is not required to give the security for costs. Estate of Joseph, 118 Cal. 660; 50 Pac. 768.

Time for giving security. An order requiring additional security to be given within ten days is ineffectual, where the statute allows thirty days to comply with such an order. Estate of Dean, 149 Cal. 487; 87 Pac. 13.

Dismissal of action. Where the notice to give security for costs is not accompanied with an order staying proceedings, and, on the day after service thereof, judgment is rendered, a motion for dismissal, made after the appeal is taken, will not be granted; the motion comes too late, and the undertaking on appeal is sufficient security for costs subsequently incurred. Comstock v. Clemens, 19 Cal. 77. A judgment of dismissal for failure to file the undertaking is not upon the merits, and only concludes the matter then directly adjudged, and is not a bar to a subsequent action, founded upon the same cause of action, by the same plaintiff, after becoming a resident of the state. Rosenthal v. McMann, 93 Cal. 505; 29 Pac. 121.

§ 1038. Costs when state is a party. When the state is a party, and costs are awarded against it, they must be paid out of the state treasury.

No security required of state. Post, § 1058.
Legislation § 1038. Enacted March 11, 1872.

Construction of section. This section deals merely with costs, as such: it does not include counsel fees for services rendered in an action to which the state is a party. Sullivan v. Gage, 145 Cal. 759; 79 Pac. 537.

Costs payable by state when. Where an execution issued on a judgment against a defaulting purchaser of state lands was returned unsatisfied, the cost of publication of summons, taxed properly as costs against the defendant, must be paid by the state out of the general fund. Lawrence v. Booth, 46 Cal. 187.

Liability of state for costs. See notes 8 Ann. Cas. 398; 42 L. R. A. 41.

Legislation § 1039. Enacted March 11, 1872.

Personal judgment against county auditor. The fact that an undertaking is dispensed with upon an appeal by a county auditor, who is contesting, as illegal, a claim against a county, does not necessarily imply that a personal judgment for costs or damages may not be rendered against him on the merits of the case for refusal to issue the warrant improperly, without just cause to doubt the validity of the claim. Lamberson v. Jefferds, 116 Cal. 492; 48 Pac. 485.

§ 1058. People of state not required to give bonds when state is a party.
§ 1059. Surety on appeal substituted to rights of judgment creditor.

§ 1045. Lost papers, how supplied. If an original pleading or paper be lost, the court may authorize a copy thereof to be filed and used instead of the original.

Legislation § 1045. Enacted March 11, 1872.

Construction of section. The fact that the summons in an action was lost for a time cannot make any difference, on a motion to dismiss under § 581, ante: the remedy for such loss is provided for in this section. Grant v. McArthur, 137 Cal. 270; 70 Pac. 88.

Appellate court cannot substitute copy. The appellate court has no control over the records of the trial court, and in case of the loss of the judgment roll, an order substituting copies thereof is within the province of the trial court. Buckman v. Whitney, 28 Cal. 555.

Presumption of substitution. Where the judgment roll contains a copy of a paper, instead of the original, it will be inferred that the original had been lost, and that a copy was substituted therefor by order of the court upon a proper showing. Sichler v. Look, 93 Cal. 600; 29 Pac. 220.

Effect of substitution. An order authorizing copies of papers to be filed is a determination that they are correct copies of the originals, and the copies thus substituted are entitled to the same weight as original papers. Hibernia Sav. & L. Soc. v. Matthai, 116 Cal. 424; 48 Pac. 370; and see Knowlton v. Mackenzie, 110 Cal. 183; 42 Pac. 580.

Discretion of court, and practice. The substitution of papers, or of pleadings, is always within the discretion of the court, and no notice of the motion to apply therefor need be given, when the notice can be of no use. Benedict v. Cozzens, 4 Cal. 381. Where a pleading in a pending action is lost, its place can only be supplied by motion based upon affidavits showing what the lost pleading contained, and the service of personal notice, upon the opposite party, of the intention to move, which notice must be sufficiently explicit to advise him of what is intended, as well as to enable him to controvert the affidavits submitted. People v. Cazalis, 27 Cal. 522.

Evidence where judgment roll is lost. The judgment-book should be admitted as competent evidence of the matters considered and passed upon by the court in case the judgment roll in the action is lost. Simmons v. Threshour, 118 Cal. 100; 50 Pac. 312.

Review on appeal. Where the judgment roll, or any part of the record in the trial court, has been lost, the trial court, upon proper proof, may supply its place by copies, and direct that the proved copies be substituted for the lost papers, and that they shall constitute the record, or portion of it lost; here the functions of the trial court end; and if either party is dissatisfied with an order of the trial court in supplying a lost record, it may be reviewed by an appeal from the order. Buckman v. Whitney, 28 Cal. 555.

Disposition of appeal, where without fraud of appellant, the record is lost. See note 25 L. R. A. (N. S.) 860.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. Buckman v. Whitney, 24 Cal. 267; Buckman v. Whitney, 28 Cal. 555.

§ 1046. Papers without the title of the action, or with defective title, may be valid. An affidavit, notice, or other paper, without the title of the action or proceeding in which it is made, or with a defective title, is as valid and effectual for any purpose as if duly entitled, if it intelligibly refer to such action or proceeding.

Legislation § 1046. Enacted March 11, 1872: based on Practice Act, § 531 (New York Code, § 406), substituting "is" for "shall be."

Title of notice. A notice of the taking of a deposition is not invalid by reason of an error in the title of the cause, where no other suit was pending between the parties named, and no one was misled by the defective title. Mills v. Dunlap, 3 Cal. 94. A notice of intention to move for a new trial, directed to and served on the attorneys who were attorneys for all of the plaintiffs, is not rendered insufficient because the name of one of the plaintiffs was inadvertently omitted in the caption of the notice. Cook v. Sudden, 94 Cal. 443; 29 Pac. 949. A notice of appeal, which is duly entitled as to the court and the department thereof in which the action was tried, and which intelligibly refers to the number of the case and to the judgment and order denying the defendant's motion for a new trial, is not invalidated because of a mistake in the christian name of the plaintiff in the title of the cause in such notice. Butler v. Ashworth, 100 Cal. 334; 34 Pac. 780.

Of affidavit. It is not necessary that the affidavit upon which a writ of mandate is issued shall contain the title of the action or proceeding in which it is made: such affidavit, not duly entitled, is as valid as if it were. McCrary v. Beaudry, 67 Cal. 120; 7 Pac. 264. An affidavit on motion for a change of venue, attached to both the notice and the demand, not fully stating the title of the action, but referring to the "above-entitled action," must be held to refer to the action entitled in the notice and the demand, and is sufficient, under this section. Watt v. Bradley, 95 Cal. 415; 30 Pac. 557.

New undertaking, where first one defective. Where an appeal is bona fide, and not taken for delay, appellate courts will always permit a new undertaking to be filed, where the original is defective. Coulter v. Stark, 7 Cal. 244.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. Mills v. Dunlap, 3 Cal. 94.

§ 1046a. Filing of papers nunc pro tunc. In all cases brought under the provisions of any act providing for the establishment and quieting of title to real property in cases where the public records in the office of the county recorder have been, or shall hereafter be, lost or destroyed, in whole or in any material part by flood, fire or earthquake, all papers filed under order of court nunc pro tunc as of the date when they should have been filed, shall have the same force and effect as if filed on the date when they should have been filed.

Nunc pro tunc entry of judgment. See note 4 Am. St. Rep. 828.

§ 1047. Successive actions on the same contract, etc. Successive actions may be maintained upon the same contract or transaction, whenever, after the former action, a new cause of action arises therefrom.

Action, defined. Ante, § 22.

Legislation § 1047. Enacted March 11, 1872, in the exact language of Practice Act, § 525.

Application of section. The rule stated in this section has no application to actions for additional damages on account of some particular breach involved in a former action. Abbott v. 76 Land and Water Co., 161 Cal. 42; 118 Pac. 425.

Breach of contract. The absolute repudiation, by the vendor, of a contract for the sale of land is a single breach, complete at the time of such repudiation, and a single and entire cause of action at once arises: it is not a continuous breach, giving rise to new causes of action as long as it continues. Abbott v. 76 Land & Water Co., 161 Cal. 42; 118 Pac. 425.

Splitting entire demand into several causes of action. See note 24 Am. Dec. 61.

Right of buyer to maintain separate action for non-delivery of each installment under entire contract. See note 3 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1042.

Right to sue on separate items of account for goods sold on stated periods of credit. See note 13 L. R. A. (N. S.) 529.

§ 1048. Consolidation of several actions into one. Whenever two or more actions are pending at one time between the same parties and in the same court, upon causes of action which might have been joined, the court may order the actions to be consolidated.

Legislation § 1048. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 526 (New York Code, § 167), omitting "into one" after "consolidated."

Actions that might have been joined. Where the causes of action sued on in several actions might have been united in one action, the court may order a consolidation. Smith v. Smith, 80 Cal. 323; 21 Pac. 4; Wolters v. Rossi, 126 Cal. 644; 59 Pac. 143. A party cannot be deprived of the right to attorneys' fees under the Vrooman Act by a consolidation of the actions. Realty Construction etc. Co. v. Superior Court, 165 Cal. 543; 132 Pac. 1048.

Suits upon distinct causes. The appellate court will not consolidate suits brought upon distinct causes of action. Wallace v. Eldredge, 27 Cal. 498.

Jurisdiction after consolidation. A justice's court has jurisdiction of three separate actions to recover the same property, the value of which is within the jurisdictional amount, after the same are consolidated. Cariaga v. Dryden, 29 Cal. 307.

Evidence after consolidation. Depositions taken in any one of the actions consolidated are admissible on the trial after consolidation. Wolters v. Rossi, 126 Cal. 644; 59 Pac. 143.

Mechanic's lien cases. Upon the consolidation of actions to foreclose mechanics' liens, the plaintiffs become actors against each other, as well as against the owners, and each is entitled to reduce or to avoid the lien of the others by any evidence that would have that effect; and the nonsuit of one plaintiff as to certain defendants, merely determines that he is entitled to nothing as against those defendants, and he still remains a party to the consolidated action as against the owners or the other lien claimants. Kennedy & Shaw Lumber Co. v. Dusenbery, 116 Cal. 124; 47 Pac. 1008.

Appeal. An irregular order, consolidating actions, will not be reviewed on appeal, unless an exception was taken in the lower court. Bangs v. Dunn, 66 Cal. 72; 4 Pac. 963.

Consolidation of actions. See note 58 Am. Dec. 508.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. But the supreme court will not consolidate actions brought upon distinct causes of action. Wallace v. Eldredge, 27 Cal. 498.

§ 1049. Actions, when deemed pending. An action is deemed to be pending from the time of its commencement until its final determination upon appeal, or until the time for appeal has passed, unless the judgment is sooner satisfied.

Legislation § 1049. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872.
2. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 182; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

Construction of code sections. This section does not purport to prescribe a rule of evidence, but merely to determine the condition of an action after judgment has been rendered, and, inferentially, the effect of the judgment. Cook v. Ceas, 143 Cal. 221; 77 Pac. 65. It has no bearing upon the construction to be given § 336, ante. Feeney v. Hinckley, 6 Cal. Unrep. 666; 64 Pac. 408.

What actions included. An action for divorce is included in this section, and, under the authority to grant alimony pendente lite, the court may make an allowance after judgment has been entered. Grannis v. Superior Court, 143 Cal. 630; 77 Pac. 647. The settlement of a guardian's account is a proceeding, within the meaning of this section, and is pending until the time allowed for appeal therefrom has expired. Cook v. Ceas, 143 Cal. 221; 77 Pac. 65.

Pendency continues how long. An action is deemed to be pending from the time that a complaint is filed. Ex parte Joutsen, 154 Cal. 540; 98 Pac. 391. An action is pending after the entry of default, and until the entry of final judgment (Abadie v. Lobero, 36 Cal. 390), and while an appeal from the judgment is pending, or until the time for such an appeal has expired. People v. Bank of San Luis Obispo, 159 Cal. 65; Ann. Cas. 1912B, 1148; 112 Pac. 866. Until the time for an appeal has expired, if the judgment has not been sooner satisfied, the action is, under this section, to be deemed as pending, and the proceedings therein are admissible, under proper pleadings, in abatement of a subsequent action for the same cause. Harris v. Barnhart, 97 Cal. 546; 32 Pac. 589. The sustaining of a demurrer to a complaint does not render the action one no longer pending. Ex parte Joutsen, 154 Cal. 540; 98 Pac. 391. An action is not pending after the judgment has been satisfied. Delger v. Jacobs, 19 Cal. App. 197; 125 Pac. 258. A motion to be substituted as a party defendant is a recognition of the action as a pending one. Anderson v. Schloesser, 153 Cal. 219; 95 Pac. 885.

Effect on later action. The judgment in an action pending, the time for appeal from which not having expired, cannot constitute a bar to recovery in another action between the same parties, relating to the same subject matter. Naftzger v. Gregg, 99 Cal. 83; 37 Am. St. Rep. 23; 33 Pac. 757. While an action is pending as provided by this section, the judgment rendered therein cannot be a bar to the prosecution of a subsequent action. Story v. Story & Isham Commercial Co., 100 Cal. 41; 34 Pac. 675. Though a former judgment cannot be pleaded in bar to another action or cross-complaint for the same cause while the former action is pending, yet the pendency of the action is good ground for a continuance of the later action until the former action is finally determined, and would be good ground for dismissal of the later action, in which a cross-complaint is filed upon the same cause of action. Brown v. Campbell, 100 Cal. 635; 38 Am. St. Rep. 314; 35 Pac. 433.

Satisfaction of judgment. The satisfaction of a judgment makes it final, though the time for appeal has not expired; and, where necessary to sustain the judgment against the sureties on an injunction bond, it will be presumed, in the absence of allegation or showing to the contrary, that the judgment was satisfied. Alaska Improvement Co. v. Hirsch, 119 Cal. 249; 47 Pac. 124. A forced payment by execution sale against a non-consenting judgment debtor cannot be held such satisfaction of the judgment as will abridge any of his rights upon or under appeal. Warner Bros. Co. v. Freud, 131 Cal. 639; 82 Am. St. Rep. 400; 63 Pac. 1017; Kenney v. Parks, 120 Cal. 22; 52 Pac. 40; Vermont Marble Co. v. Black, 123 Cal. 21; 55 Pac. 599; Yndart v. Den, 125 Cal. 85; 57 Pac. 761.

Sale of mortgaged property pending appeal. Where an appeal was taken from a judgment foreclosing a mortgage, without a stay of execution, and the mortgagee made a sale, pending the appeal, at which time he became the purchaser, and afterwards conveyed the title, pending the appeal, to the respondent, the effect of the reversal of the judgment is to nullify the title in the hands of the respondent, who was bound to take notice of all the proceedings in the cause and of the defeasible title of his grantor. Di Nola v. Allison, 143 Cal. 106; 101 Am. St. Rep. 84; 65 L. R. A. 419; 76 Pac. 976.

Evidence on plea of abatement. Where an answer contains a plea of abatement by reason of the pendency of another action, and also a defense on the merits, the better practice is, to require the defendant to present his evidence on the plea of abatement at the opening of his defense. Leonard v. Flynn, 89 Cal. 535; 23 Am. St. Rep. 500; 26 Pac. 1097.

Jurisdiction after entry of judgment. The jurisdiction of the court over the subject-matter of the suit and the parties is exhausted by the entry of final judgment, unless preserved in some mode authorized by statute; such judgment is conclusive not only as to the relief granted, but also as to the relief withheld or denied, and thereafter any further judgment or other proceeding materially involving the judgment is a mere nullity. White v. White, 130 Cal. 597; 80 Am. St. Rep. 150; 22 Pac. 1062. The court loses jurisdiction over the cause when the judgment becomes final, and it cannot thereafter set aside or modify the judgment, unless by the express authority of some statute; the reason for the rule being, that there must be some finality in legal proceedings, and a period beyond which they cannot extend, and the safety and tranquillity of the parties requiring that their interests shall not be constantly suspended, nor their repose liable to be disturbed at any moment, at the discretion of the court. Brackett v. Banegas, 99 Cal. 623; 34 Pac. 344. The pendency of an action, by virtue of this section, until the time for appeal has passed, has not the effect to authorize the trial court to amend or alter its judgment after it has been finally entered in that court. O'Brien v. O'Brien, 124 Cal. 422; 57 Pac. 225. The modification of a judgment or supplemental decree, changing the property rights of the parties in a divorce suit, cannot be made after the decree has become final and the time for appeal has passed, where no reservation of right to make the same was made in the decree, if such reservation could be made. O'Brien v. O'Brien, 130 Cal. 409; 62 Pac. 598; and see Howell v. Howell, 104 Cal. 45; 43 Am. St. Rep. 70; 37 Pac. 770. The rendition of judgment in a suit for divorce does not exhaust the jurisdiction of the court: it may grant allowances to the wife during the pendency of an appeal, and until the judgment becomes final. Bruce v. Bruce, 160 Cal. 28; 116 Pac. 66; Dunphy v. Dunphy, 161 Cal. 87; 118 Pac. 445. The power of the trial court to make an allowance to a wife for her support, as alimony, or for the purpose of defending or prosecuting an action for divorce, is not exhausted upon the rendition of the judgment, but may be exercised at any time during the pendency of an appeal. Bohnert v. Bohnert, 91 Cal. 428; 27 Pac. 732.

Finality of judgment. Although a judgment may be final with reference to the court which pronounced it, and, as such, be the subject of an appeal, yet it is not necessarily final with reference to the property or rights affected, so long as it is subject to appeal and liable to be reversed; and a judgment, in order to be admissible in evidence for the purpose of proving facts therein recited, must be a final judgment in the cause, and if the action in which the judgment is rendered is still pending, necessarily the judgment is not final. Hills v. Sherwood, 33 Cal. 474; Estate of Blythe, 99 Cal. 472; 34 Pac. 108. Until litigation on the merits is ended, there is no finality to the judgment, in the sense of a final determination of the rights of the parties, although it may have become final for the purpose of an appeal. Gillmore v. American Central Ins. Co., 65 Cal. 63; 2 Pac. 882; Feeney v. Hinckley, 134 Cal. 467; 86 Am. St. Rep. 290; 66 Pac. 580. A final adjudication of the subject-matter is not made by a judgment for costs only, for or against one of the parties, plaintiff or defendant. Nolan v. Smith, 137 Cal. 360; 70 Pac. 166.

Judgment as evidence. The effect of a judgment as evidence of the matters determined by it is suspended by an appeal, even though its execution is not stayed. Di Nola v. Allison, 143 Cal. 106; 101 Am. St. Rep. 84; 65 L. R. A. 419; 76 Pac. 976. The operation of a final judgment is suspended by an appeal therefrom, and, pending such appeal, the judgment is not admissible in another case as evidence, even between the same parties. Harris v. Barnhart, 97 Cal. 546; 32 Pac. 589. Only a final judgment upon the merits prevents a further contest upon the same issue, and becomes evidence in another issue, between the same parties or their privies; and until a final judgment is reached, the proceedings are subject to change and modification, are imperfect and inchoate, and can avail nothing, as a bar or as evidence, until the judgment, with its verity as a record, settles finally and conclusively the question at issue; whenever the judgment fails to fix and determine the ultimate rights of the parties, whenever it leaves room for a final decision yet to be made, it is not admissible in another action, for the plain reason that it has finally decided and settled nothing: until the judgment comes, no man can know what the ultimate decision will be. Estate of Blythe, 99 Cal. 472; 34 Pac. 108. A judgment of divorce is not available in any civil action involving the status of the parties as unmarried persons, until the expiration of the time limited for appeal. Estate of Wood, 137 Cal. 129; 69 Pac. 900. Upon an application for a writ of assistance, the judgment is admissible in evidence, although an appeal therefrom is pending. California Mortgage etc. Bank v. Graves, 129 Cal. 649; 62 Pac. 259.

Attack on judgment. The fact that the case is no longer "pending" interferes in no way with any attack on the judgment, based upon any reason for which the judgment should be held absolutely void. Fox v. Townsend, 2 Cal. App. 193; 83 Pac. 272.

Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations does not begin to run against an action upon the judgment from the date of its entry, but only after the lapse of the period within which an appeal might be taken from the judgment, if none is taken therefrom, or after the final determination following an appeal so taken. Feeney v. Hinckley, 134 Cal. 467; 86 Am. St. Rep. 290; 66 Pac. 580.

Accrual of cause of action upon judgment. A cause of action upon a judgment does not accrue until the judgment becomes final. Hills v. Sherwood, 33 Cal. 474; Feeney v. Hinckley, 134 Cal. 467; 86 Am. St. Rep. 290; 66 Pac. 580.

Motion for new trial as stay. A motion for a new trial does not stay or suspend the operation of a final judgment in the cause, in the absence of an order of the court to that effect. Harris v. Barnhart, 97 Cal. 546; 32 Pac. 589.

When action is pending. See note Ann. Cas. 1912A, 843.

§ 1050. Actions to determine adverse claims, and by sureties. An action may be brought by one person against another for the purpose of determining an adverse claim, which the latter makes against the former for money or property, upon an alleged obligation; and also against two or more persons, for the purpose of compelling one to satisfy a debt due to the other, for which plaintiff is bound as a surety.

Quieting title to realty. Ante, §§ 738 et seq.
Surety may compel principal to perform obligation. See Civ. Code, § 2846.

Legislation § 1050. Enacted March 11, 1872 (based on Practice Act, § 527), (1) omitting "the" before "plaintiff," and (2) susbtituting "a surety" for "security."

Construction of section. The action contemplated by this section was intended as a substitute for the proceeding in chancery to compel the creditor to sue, and it may be doubted whether any other action by the surety against the creditor is allowed. Dane v. Corduan, 24 Cal. 157; 85 Am. Dec. 53. Where the claim, though adverse, is not upon an obligation between the parties, but is an obligation or duty of a third party to one of them, this section does not apply. Gagossian v. Arakelian, 9 Cal. App. 571; 99 Pac. 1113.

Action to determine adverse claim. A plaintiff, by bringing an action to test a claim made against him, cannot deprive the defendant of his right of action: were he permitted to do so, the defendant would be deprived of the remedies of arrest and attachment, either of which, in a proper case, may be resorted to; and the fact that the plaintiff gave an injunction bond does not matter. King v. Hall, 5 Cal. 83. Where, in an action to determine an adverse claim made by the defendant, he sets up a promissory note and demanded payment thereon, and the plaintiff replied, alleging fraud in procuring the note, the action is one purely statutory and equitable, in which a jury trial cannot be demanded as a matter of right, although legal issues, incidental to the equitable issue, must be determined in arriving at a decision. Taylor v. Ford, 3 Cal. Unrep. 297; 24 Pac. 942. In an action to determine an adverse claim which the defendant asserted against the plaintiff upon a promissory note, where the defendant filed an answer and cross-complaint which was, in form and substance, a complaint upon the note, with a prayer for judgment against the plaintiff for the amount due thereon, a jury trial should be allowed, unless waived. Taylor v. Ford, 92 Cal. 419; 29 Pac. 441. In order that a court may try and conclusively settle all adverse claims to property sought to be applied to the satisfaction of a judgment, all known adverse claimants should have an opportunity to be heard; otherwise they will not be bound by any order made. Deering v. Richardson-Kimball Co., 109 Cal. 73; 41 Pac. 801.

Action of quia timet. A bank, which has paid checks claimed by the depositor to be forgeries, may maintain an action to determine its liability therefor. German Sav. & L. Soc. v. Collins, 145 Cal. 192; 78 Pac. 637.

Action against county or state. One county may maintain an action against another county, under the County Government Act, as for money had and received, in a proper case, after the presentation of its claim to the board of supervisors of the latter. Colusa County v. Glenn County, 117 Cal. 434; 49 Pac. 457. A complaint, alleging that an ordinance under which a tax was imposed is void, and that a claim under such ordinance is made upon the plaintiff for the payment of the tax, and praying that such ordinance be declared void, cannot be sustained, under this section, as the state and its political subdivisions cannot be sued, except as specially authorized by statute, and general language creating new remedies or prescribing procedure does not authorize such actions. Whittaker v. Tuolumne County, 96 Cal. 100; 30 Pac. 1016.

Determining amount due on mortgage. Where the consideration for a part of the property conveyed, a portion of the purchase price of which was secured by mortgage, fails, the mortgagor may, under this section, maintain an action to determine the amount due on the mortgage, and in such case the court may determine the amount to which the plaintiff is entitled, and reduce the note and mortgage accordingly. Hoffman v. Kirby, 136 Cal. 26; 68 Pac. 321.

Burden to maintain claim. The ordinary rule is, that the plaintiff is the party charged with the duty of diligence in prosecuting the action as the issues are presented, and whenever an issue of law or of fact is presented, the duty is upon the plaintiff diligently to pursue the action; but in an action brought under this section, by one person against another, for the purpose of determining an adverse claim made by the latter, the rule is modified, and the burden is cast upon the defendant to set forth and maintain his claim, and it might be said that he would not come within the reason of the rule. Mowry v. Weisenborn, 137 Cal. 110; 69 Pac. 971.

Action by and subrogation of surety. A decree of equity, obtained at the suit of a surety, and requiring the creditor to sue the principal debtor, is not a bar to an action against the surety, though the creditor fails to sue the principal debtor, unless the surety specifically performs the conditions imposed by the decree. Dane v. Corduan, 24 Cal. 157; 85 Am. Dec. 53. Where a complaint alleges that the plaintiff became surety for the payment of rent under a lease, and prays that the amount due be ascertained, and that the principal be compelled to pay the same, a judgment exonerating the plaintiff from all liability and awarding him costs cannot be sustained. McDougald v. Argonaut Land etc. Co., 117 Cal. 87; 48 Pac. 1021. Where the property of the maker of a note is attached in an action against him and his indorser, and an undertaking for the release of such property is conditioned that the sureties will pay any judgment that may be recovered against the maker of the note, such sureties cannot, on paying the judgment, be subrogated to any right not possessed by their principal, and they cannot take an assignment of the judgment and enforce it against the indorser. March v. Barnet, 121 Cal. 419; 66 Am. St. Rep. 44; 53 Pac. 933. In an action by a surety to have the amount due the creditor ascertained, and to compel the principal to pay the same, the creditor may set up the obligation and obtain judgment for the amount due him; and the plaintiff having brought the suit, asking relief in equity, the court, having obtained jurisdiction, will decide the whole case, and not permit litigation by piecemeal. McDougald v. Hulet, 132 Cal. 154; 64 Pac. 278. Where a void judgment is entered against a surety upon an undertaking on appeal, which the surety voluntarily pays, the principal to the undertaking, who had indemnified the surety against loss, cannot maintain a suit in equity to charge the custodians of the money, as trustees for the surety, and for its repayment to the surety. More v. Churchill, 155 Cal. 368; 101 Pac. 9.

General principles of interpleader and when maintainable. See note 35 Am. Dec. 695.

Right of interpleader. See note 91 Am. St. Rep. 593.

Necessity that bill or complaint in interpleader show that alleged claim has reasonable basis on which to rest. See note Ann. Cas. 1913C, 1196.

Interpleader by one having contract with one of parties defining his rights or obligations as to subject-matter. See note 10 L. R. A. (N. S.) 748.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. Smith v. Sparrow, 13 Cal. 596; King v. Hall, 5 Cal. 82; Dane v. Corduan, 24 Cal. 157; 85 Am. Dec. 53.

§ 1051. Testimony, when to be taken by the clerk.

On the trial of an action in a court of record, if there is no shorthand reporter of the court in attendance, either party may require the clerk to take down the testimony in writing.

Legislation § 1051. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 663. The code commissioners say this section was based on Practice Act, § 633, but that section related to an entirely different matter; namely, requiring justices of the peace to receive moneys collected by the constable or sheriff. The section, however, was undoubtedly based on Practice Act, § 663, as amended by Stats. 1854, Redding ed. p. 73, Kerr ed. p. 102, § 75, which read: "On the trial of any action in a court of record, either party may require the clerk to take down the testimony in writing."

Testimony taken down by clerk. Testimony taken down by the clerk, and his statement in respect to the decision of court, cannot take the place of a bill of exceptions, nor be used as a record on appeal. Gunter v. Geary, 1 Cal. 462; Pierce v. Minturn, 1 Cal. 470; Castro v. Armesti, 14 Cal. 38. A reference, in a statement on appeal, to the evidence as taken down by the clerk, with the consent of the parties, is sufficient, the evidence being in the transcript: the statement need not contain the evidence. Darst v. Rust, 14 Cal. 81.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. The evidence taken down by the clerk is no part of the record, unless made so by a bill of exceptions. Wilson v. Middleton, 2 Cal. 54; Pierce v. Minturn, 1 Cal. 470; Gunter v. Geary, 1 Cal. 462; Castro v. Armesti, 14 Cal. 38.

§ 1052. The clerk must keep a register of actions. The clerk must keep among the records of the court a register of actions. He must enter therein the title of the action, with brief notes under it, from time to time, of all papers filed and proceedings had therein.

Legislation § 1052. Enacted March 11, 1872 (based on Practice Act, § 528), substituting "must" for "shall," in both instances.

What must be set out in register of actions. The matters required to be set out in the register are those which form a proper connection between the pleadings and the judgment, and such that the legislature has deemed proper to be evidenced by a permanent memorandum thereof. Von Schmidt v. Widber, 99 Cal. 511; 34 Pac. 109.

§ 1053. Two of three referees, etc., may do any act. When there are three referees, or three arbitrators, all must meet, but two of them may do any act which might be done by all.

Arbitrations, generally. Post, §§ 1281–1290.

Legislation § 1053. Enacted March 11, 1872 (based on Practice Act, § 529), substituting "must" for "shall."

§ 1054. Time within which an act is to be done may be extended. When an act to be done, as provided in this code, relates to the pleadings in the action, or the undertakings to be filed, or the justifications of sureties, or the preparation of bills of exceptions, or of amendments thereto, or to the service of notices other than of appeal, the time allowed by this code, unless otherwise expressly provided, may be extended, upon good cause shown, by the judge of the superior court in and for the county in which the action is pending, or by the judge who presided at the trial of said action; but such extension shall not exceed thirty days, without the consent of the adverse party; except that when it appears to the judge to whom said application is made, that the attorney of record for the party applying for said extension is actually engaged in attendance upon a session of the legislature of this state, as a member thereof; in which case it shall be the duty of said judge to extend said time until said session of the legislature adjourns, and thirty days thereafter.

Time.

1. Computation of time. See ante, § 12.
2. Extension of. Ante, § 473.

Continuance during attendance upon legislature. See ante, § 595.

Legislation § 1054. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 530 (New York Code, § 407), as amended by Stats. 1861, p. 591, which read: "The time within which an act is to be done, as provided in this act, shall be computed by excluding the first day, and including the last; if the last day be Sunday, it shall be excluded. When the act to be done relates to the pleadings in the action, or the undertakings to be filed, or the justification of sureties, or the service of notices, other than of appeal, or the preparation of statements, or of bills of exceptions, or of amendments thereto, the time allowed by this act may be extended, upon good cause shown, by the court in which the action is pending, or the judge thereof, or in the absence of such judge from the county in which the action is pending, by the county judge; but such extension shall not exceed thirty days, beyond the time prescribed by this act, without the consent of the adverse party." When enacted in 1872, § 1054 read as follows: "When the act to be done relates to the pleadings in the action, or the undertakings to be filed, or the justification of sureties, or the service of notices, other than of appeal, the time allowed by this code may, before the time expires, be extended, upon good cause shown, by the court in which the action is pending, or the judge thereof, but such extension cannot exceed twenty days."

2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1873–74, p. 344, (1) changing "the" to "an" before "act," (2) inserting (a) "the" before "sureties," (b) "as provided in this code" after "to be done," and (c) "the preparation of statements, or of bills of exceptions, or of amendments thereto, or to," after "sureties," (3) omitting "before the time expires" before "be extended," (4) inserting "or, in the absence of such judge from the county in which the action is pending, by the county judge," after "judge thereof," (5) substituting "thirty" for "twenty" before "days," and (6) adding

"without the consent of the adverse party," at the end of section.

3. Amended by Code Amdts. 1880, p. 7, (1) changing "the" to "a" before "judge thereof," and (2) omitting "or in the absence of such judge from the county in which the action is pending, by the county judge."

4. Amended by Stats. 1889, p. 45, substituting "the judge of the superior court in and for the county in which the action is pending, or by the judge who presided at the trial of said action" for "court in which the action is pending or a judge thereof."

5. Amended by Stats. 1895, p. 12, adding the exception.

6. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 182; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

7. Amended by Stats. Extra Sess. 1906, p. 9, (1) in first clause, substituting "justifications" for "justification," in the phrase "or the justifications of sureties"; (2) adding a proviso, at the end of the exception added in 1895, reading, "provided, however, that from and after the passage of this act to and including the twenty-eighth day of February, nineteen hundred and seven, the judge shall have power to extend the foregoing time as to any matter enumerated in this section for not exceeding ninety days, and shall also have power during said period to extend by order, for not exceeding ninety days, the time for filing and serving notices of appeal and for the performance of any act in any action or special proceeding required by this code to be done within a specified time."

8. Amended by Stats. 1915, p. 203, (1) in first clause, (a) striking out "of statements, or," from the phrases "or the preparation of statements, or of bills of exceptions," and (b) inserting "unless otherwise expressly provided," after the words "the time allowed by this code"; (2) striking out the proviso added in 1906 (which see, par. 7, supra).

Construction of section. There is no time "within which an act is to be done," within the meaning of this section; hence, it has no application in the case of publication of summons. Savings and Loan Society v. Thompson, 32 Cal. 347. This section simply limits the power of the court to extend the time for giving notices or for the service of proposed statements or bills of exception without the consent of the adverse party; it does not limit the authority of attorneys under § 283, ante, nor prescribe the exclusive mode for giving notices or making service. Simpson v. Budd, 91 Cal. 488; 27 Pac. 758. The provision of § 940, ante, that an appeal is ineffectual for any purpose unless an undertaking is filed within five days, is subject to the provision of this section, that the time for filing an execution may be extended not exceeding thirty days. Wadsworth v. Wadsworth, 74 Cal. 104; 15 Pac. 447. Where the time for the doing of an act has not been extended by order of court, such act must be done within the time prescribed. Tregambo v. Comanche Mill etc. Co., 57 Cal. 501.

Application of section. This section is limited, by its terms, to cases where time is allowed by some provision of the code for the doing of some act, and was designed to enable the court or judge to grant time additional to that allowed by the code, upon good cause shown. Vestal v. Young, 147 Cal. 715; 82 Pac. 381. It has no application to an act required to be done in a justice's court, in order to perfect an appeal to the superior court; hence, an order by the superior court, extending the time for the justification of the sureties on an undertaking on appeal, filed in a justice's court, is void. McCracken v. Superior Court, 86 Cal. 74; 24 Pac. 845. Nor has this section any application to the time which the court may allow in which the plaintiff may file an amended complaint; and the extension of time allowed therefor is within the discretion of the court. Vestal v. Young, 147 Cal. 715; 82 Pac. 381. The service and filing of a memorandum of costs is fairly within a proper construction of this section, being substantially a notice "other than of appeal." Beilby v. Superior Court, 138 Cal. 51; 70 Pac. 1024.

Power of court to extend time. Where time has been extended by stipulation of the parties, the court has power to grant a further extension, not exceeding thirty days, if the application is made before the time as extended by stipulation has expired. Curtis v. Superior Court, 70 Cal. 390; 11 Pac. 652. The consent of the adverse party to one extension of time beyond thirty days does not give the judge any additional authority to make any further extensions. Bunnel v. Stockton, 83 Cal. 319; 23 Pac. 301. An extension of time to plead, for a certain time after the receipt of the remittitur in another case, is void, and beyond the power of the court, to any extent beyond the thirty days permitted by this section. Baker v. Superior Court, 71 Cal. 583; 12 Pac. 685. In cases to which this section applies, an extension can be granted only within the period during which the right to give a notice is still alive. Union Collection Co. v. Oliver, 162 Cal. 755; 124 Pac. 435. It is essential that any order extending time shall be made before the party seeking such extension is in default; and if he permits the time within which he may act to elapse without acting, any subsequent order giving him time to act does not avail to revive his right. Freese v. Freese, 134 Cal. 48; 66 Pac. 43. Where the statute absolutely fixes the time within which an act must be done, it is peremptory; the act cannot be done at any other time, unless during the prescribed time it has been extended by an order made for that purpose, under authority of law. Connor v. Southern California Motor Road Co., 101 Cal. 429; 35 Pac. 990; and see Tregambo v. Comanche Mill etc. Co., 57 Cal. 501; Wills v. Rhen Kong, 70 Cal. 548; 11 Pac. 780. When a statute fixes the time within which an act must be done, the court has no power to enlarge it, although it relates to a mere matter of practice; thus, where a statute declares that a judge at chambers may grant a new trial if application is made within ten days after judgment, an order granting an application, made on the eleventh day, is void. Roush v. Van Hagen, 17 Cal. 121. The statute providing that an act must be done within a certain time, or within such further time as may be granted, is peremptory, and an omission to perform the act is a waiver of the right conferred. Easterby v. Larco, 24 Cal. 179. An order extending time cannot be made by a disqualified judge. Johnson v. German American Ins. Co., 150 Cal. 336; 88 Pac. 985.

Time to plead. An order extending the time of the moving party to plead, until one day after the decision of the motion to vacate the service of summons, is an attempt to extend the time to plead, beyond the thirty days, without the consent of the plaintiff, and is void. Kennedy v. Mulligan, 136 Cal. 556; 69 Pac. 291. An order extending the time to answer, until after the decision of a motion relating to the complaint, but not fixing the date for filing the answer, must be held to grant such time as the court might fix when it ruled upon such motion, or in case no time was then fixed, a reasonable time thereafter, which, by analogy, would be the statutory time allowed for answering in other cases; hence, a default entered immediately after the denial of such motion is unauthorized. Willson v. Cleaveland, 30 Cal. 192. Orders attempting to extend the time to plead, more than thirty days, are in excess of jurisdiction, and, there being no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy, are reviewable on certiorari. Gibson v. Superior Court, 83 Cal. 643; 24 Pac. 152; Baker v. Superior Court, 71 Cal. 583; 12 Pac. 685. The fact that the defendant relied upon an order extending his time to plead, which was in excess of the jurisdiction of the court, is an important fact to be considered upon a motion to set aside a default. Kennedy v. Mulligan, 136 Cal. 556; 69 Pac. 291. No advantage can be taken of the court's act in extending time to plead, demur, or move, beyond thirty days, if within the time covered by stipulation between the parties. Voorman v. Superior Court, 149 Cal. 266; 86 Pac. 694.

Notice of motion for new trial. Before the expiration of the ten days allowed by statute within which to move for a new trial, the court, or a judge thereof, may extend the time, not exceeding thirty days, within which to serve and file a notice of the motion; but such extension cannot be made after the time fixed by statute has expired. Burton v. Todd, 68 Cal. 485; 9 Pac. 663. The time for service of notice of intention to move for a new trial may be extended within the limits of this section. Estate of Richards, 154 Cal. 478; 98 Pac. 528. The time named in an order extending the time to give notice of intention to move for a new trial commences to run at the expiration of the ten days allowed by statute for the notice, no reference having been made to the date of the order as the point of time from which the extension was to be computed. Emeric v. Alvarado, 64 Cal. 529; 2 Pac. 418. An order extending the time to prepare and file a motion for a new trial has the effect of extending the time to prepare and file a notice of motion for such new trial. Cottle v. Leitch, 43 Cal. 320. Where the transcript fails to show that any objection was made in the trial court to the hearing of a motion for a new trial on the ground that it came too late, the appellate court will presume that the time was extended by consent of the parties. Patrick v. Morse, 64 Cal. 462; 2 Pac. 49.

Statement and bill of exceptions on motion for new trial. This section has no applicability, where express provision is made for a particular subject in another section; as, where the section regarding the time for filing a statement on motion for a new trial provides that no extension for a longer period than twenty days shall be made. Cottle v. Leitch, 43 Cal. 320. The judge who tries the case has power to make an order extending the time to prepare and serve a statement or bill of exceptions on motion for a new trial. Matthews v. Superior Court, 68 Cal. 638; 10 Pac. 128. An order extending the time within which to prepare a statement on motion for a new trial, carries with it the same extension of time to serve the statement. Bryant v. Sternfeld, 89 Cal. 611; 26 Pac. 1091. The time to prepare and serve a bill of exceptions may be extended thirty days, in addition to the ten days allowed by § 659, ante. Moffat v. Cook, 65 Cal. 236; 3 Pac. 805. A judge cannot grant an extension of time to present a bill of exceptions, exceeding in the aggregate a period of thirty days, without the consent of the opposite party; nor can he grant two or more extensions of thirty days each, nor an extension of time after the moving party has made default. Cameron v. Arcata etc. R. R. Co., 129 Cal. 279; 61 Pac. 955. An extension of time in which to prepare a statement on motion for a new trial, though within the limit of thirty days, is void, if the time previously allowed to the moving party had fully elapsed while the mover was in default. Freese v. Freese, 134 Cal. 48; 66 Pac. 43. An order granting a party time within which to file a statement to be used on a motion for a new trial, made before a notice of intention to move for a new trial has been given, must be construed as extending the time from the date of the order, and not from the time the notice is given. Easterby v. Larco, 24 Cal. 179; Jenkins v. Frink, 27 Cal. 337. Proposing amendments to a statement on motion for a new trial, filed too late, will not operate as a consent to a void extension of time, if an objection is at the time expressly reserved: the better practice is, to reserve such objection, rather than to move to strike the statement from the files. Cottle v. Leitch, 43 Cal. 320. The court has power, under this section and the third subdivision of § 659, ante, to extend the time within which to give notice of the time for presenting a proposed statement on motion for a new trial, and amendments thereto, to the judge for settlement, and to extend the time for the settlement of the same for a corresponding period, the only requisite being that when such notice is given, the adverse party must have five days' notice of the presentation. Douglas v. Southern Pacific Co., 151 Cal. 242; 90 Pac. 538.

Statement on appeal. Neither the court nor judge has power to extend the time for appellant to make and file a statement on appeal from a judgment more than thirty days beyond the twenty days allowed by law, without the consent of the other party; but an order extending the time more than thirty days beyond the twenty days allowed by law, is good for the thirty days, without the consent of the other party. Bryan v. Maume, 28 Cal. 238. An adverse party does not consent to an extension of time for more than thirty days because he fails to object thereto; nor, if a statement on appeal is not filed and served in time, does he waive the default by not returning the copy of the statement served on him. Bryan v. Maume, 28 Cal. 238.

Affidavits on motion for new trial. An application for an extension of time within which to file affidavits on motion for a new trial should show substantially what the intended affidavits will contain; should indicate the misconduct of the jury; should state the nature of the newly discovered evidence, etc. People v. Winthrop, 118 Cal. 85; 50 Pac. 390. Under the first subdivision of § 659, ante, the court has power to extend the time for filing affidavits on motion for a new trial to more than thirty days beyond the statutory time: the limitation on the court's power of extending time in other classes of cases, imposed by § 1054, has no application to such a case. Oberlander v. Fixen, 129 Cal. 690; 62 Pac. 254.

Notice of appeal. The reason for excepting matters of appeal from the power to extend the time was, that to allow an extension of time to file a notice of appeal would be, virtually, to allow the court the power to extend the time for taking an appeal. Harper v. Minor, 27 Cal. 107.

To file undertaking on appeal. The time to file an undertaking on appeal may be extended. Schloesser v. Owen, 134 Cal. 546; 66 Pac. 726.

Notices other than of appeal. Under this section, the power given to superior courts, and the judges thereof, to extend the time for the service of notices, other than notices of appeal, includes the power to extend the time for filing such notices. Burton v. Todd, 68 Cal. 485; 9 Pac. 663. Under this section, there may be an extension of time in which to give actual notice. Douglas v. Southern Pacific Co., 151 Cal. 242; 90 Pac. 538.

Order may be made where. An order extending time need not be made in court: it may be made in any part of the state, by the judge of the court. Matthews v. Superior Court, 68 Cal. 638; 10 Pac. 128.

Made how. An order extending the time fixed by statute should, in all cases, be in writing, and either entered on the minutes of the court, in open session, or signed by the judge, and filed with the papers in the case within the time prescribed. Campbell v. Jones, 41 Cal. 515. Although the code does not require that an order extending time shall be filed or served, yet the correct practice is to file and serve it; and where a default was entered before the expiration of the time as extended, the plaintiff being ignorant of the order, it should be opened upon payment of costs. Swift v. Canovan, 47 Cal. 86.

Computation of time. Where the last day of the period of extension fixed by an order is Sunday, that day should be excluded; that is to say, it is not to be computed as any portion of the time granted by the order, but is a supplementary day superadded by law. Muir v. Galloway, 61 Cal. 498. Where the time in which to serve a bill of exceptions, as extended by order of the court, expires on Sunday, the moving party has the following Monday in which to make the service; and, notwithstanding previous orders have been made extending the time for service for twenty days, the court has power, on such Monday, to grant a further extension of ten days. Frassi v. McDonald, 122 Cal. 400; 55 Pac. 139. A stipulation extending the time to answer for the week ending July 4th, that day and the next being holidays, has the effect of permitting an answer to be filed on Monday, July 6th, and a default entered on that day is premature. Crane v. Crane, 121 Cal. 99; 53 Pac. 433. A fraction of a day may be regarded when the question relates to the relative order of occurrences happening on the same day, involving the legality or priority of prior rights; but it is not to be regarded when measuring or computing the time from one date to another. Scoville v. Anderson, 131 Cal. 590; 63 Pac. 1013.

Power of judge pro tem. to extend time given for preparing or filing bill of exceptions. See note 42 L. R. A. (N. S.) 623.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. Computation of time. See § 12 of this code, and note. The word "month" means a calendar month, unless otherwise expressed. § 17, subd. 6, of this code; Savings and Loan Society v. Thompson, 32 Cal. 347.

§ 1055. Action against officer for official acts. If an action is brought against any officer or person for an act for the doing of which he had theretofore received any valid bond or covenant of indemnity, and he gives seasonable notice thereof in writing to the persons who executed such bond or covenant, and permits them to conduct the defense of such action, the judgment recovered therein is conclusive evidence against the persons so notified; and the court may, on motion of the defendant, upon notice of five days, and upon proof of such bond or covenant, and of such notice and permission, enter judgment against them for the amount so recovered and costs.

Legislation § 1055. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 645, which read: "If an action be brought against a sheriff for an act done by virtue of his office, and he give written notice thereon (sic) to the sureties on any bond of indemnity received by him, the judgment recovered therein shall be conclusive evidence of his right to recover against such sureties; and the court or judge in vacation may, on motion, upon notice of five days, order judgment to be entered up against them for the amount so recovered, including costs." When § 1055 was enacted in 1872, (1) "is" was substituted for "be" before "brought," (2) "gives" for "give," (3) "thereof" for "thereon," and (4) "is" for "shall be" before "conclusive."

2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1880, p. 73, substituting (1) "be" for "is" before "brought," (2) "give" for "gives," and (3) "shall be" for "is" before "conclusive."

3. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 182; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

4. Amended by Stats. 1907, p. 309; the code commissioner saying, "The amendment extends the provisions of the section to all persons entitled to rely upon bonds of indemnity, instead of restricting such provisions to the sheriff, as in the present section."

Jurisdiction of motion for judgment. A motion for a several judgment against the sureties upon an indemnity bond, where the several liability of each surety is less than three hundred dollars, is not without the jurisdiction of the superior court, the motion not being an independent action against the sureties, but simply a supplemental motion, made for judgment against the sureties, in an action, of which the superior court had jurisdiction, and in which it had already proceeded to judgment against the sheriff as a defendant. Moore v. McSleeper, 102 Cal. 277; 36 Pac. 593.

Notice to indemnifier. Full notice should be given to the indemnifier, of the pendency of the suit, what will be required of him, and the consequences liable to follow his failure to defend the action; mere knowledge or information is entirely insufficient; and unless the party to the action so notifies the indemnifier, a reasonable time before the trial, he may well suppose that the party needs no assistance from him, and may rely upon that supposition. Sampson v. Ohleyer, 22 Cal. 200. Where judgment is recovered against a sheriff for an act done by virtue of his office, he cannot afterwards have judgment against the sureties on the indemnifying bond upon a notice of five days, unless he gave them written notice of the action against him. Dennis v. Packard, 28 Cal. 101.

Judgment on indemnifying bond. A motion for a judgment against the sureties on an indemnity bond may be made under this section, although the judgment is a several judgment, in different amounts, against the sureties on the bond, the obligation of the sureties being for several different amounts, for which they have become liable on the bond. This section should be construed as authorizing the entry of judgment against the sureties for the amount named in the bond, and for which each has become liable, but not to exceed the amount recovered, including costs of the action. Moore v. McSleeper, 102 Cal. 277; 36 Pac. 593. The provision of this section, making the judgment conclusive evidence against the indemnifier, when notified of the action, is founded upon the principle, that, under such circumstances, the action is, in substance, against the indemnifier, and that he has, in that action, an opportunity to make any defense that may exist; therefore, where the indemnifier has been notified of the action, he cannot maintain a bill in equity to set aside the judgment, except under such conditions as would have enabled him to maintain it had he been the nominal as well as the real party defendant in the first action. Dutil v. Pacheco, 21 Cal. 438; 82 Am. Dec. 749. The recovery of a judgment against a sheriff is a sufficient showing for a prima facie case against the sureties; and the burden is upon them to show that the judgment has been satisfied by themselves, or by a return of the property sued for, or that the property with which to satisfy it is, or should be, still in the possession of the sheriff. Moore v. McSleeper, 102 Cal. 277; 36 Pac. 593.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. Dennis v. Packard, 28 Cal. 101; Dutil v. Pacheco, 21 Cal. 438; 82 Am. Dec. 749. An indemnifying bond takes effect from its delivery. Buffendeau v. Brooks, 28 Cal. 641.

§ 1056. Corporations may become sureties on undertakings and bonds. In all cases where an undertaking or bond, with any number of sureties, is authorized or required by any provision of this code, or of any law of this state, any corporation with a paid-up capital of not less than one hundred thousand dollars, incorporated under the laws of this or any other state of the United States for the purpose of making, guaranteeing, or becoming a surety upon bonds or undertakings required or authorized by law, or which, by the laws of the state where it was originally incorporated has such power, and which shall have complied with all the requirements of the law of this state regulating the formation or admission of these corporations to transact such business in this state, may become and shall be accepted as security or as sole and sufficient surety upon such undertaking or bond, and such corporate surety shall be subject to all the liabilities and entitled to all the rights of natural persons' sureties; provided, that the insurance commissioner shall have the same jurisdiction and powers to examine the affairs of such corporations as he has in other cases; shall require them to file similar statements and issue to them a similar certificate. And whenever the liabilities of any such corporation shall exceed its assets, the insurance commissioner shall require the deficiency to be paid up in sixty days, and if it is not so paid up, then he shall issue a certificate showing the extent of such deficiency, and he shall publish the same once a week for three weeks, in a daily San Francisco paper. And, until such deficiency is paid up, such company shall not do business in this state. In estimating the condition of any such company, the commissioner shall allow as assets only such as are allowed under existing laws at the time, and shall charge as liabilities, in addition of eighty per cent of the capital stock, all outstanding indebtedness of the company, and a premium reserve equal to fifty per centum of the premiums charged by said company on all risks then in force.

Legislation § 1056. Added by Stats. 1889, p. 215; a codification of the act of Stats. 1885, p. 114, entitled "An Act to facilitate the giving of bonds required by law." The original code § 1056 (based on Practice Act, § 646) was repealed by Code Amdts. 1880, p. 111, and provided for the prosecution of actions in the Spanish language in the counties of Monterey, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Los Angeles, and San Diego.

Construction of code sections. The provisions of this section and § 1057, post, do not make the acceptance of such surety corporation as sole and sufficient surety upon an undertaking imperative, no matter what the disparity between its amount and the amount of the corporation assets, but it may be required, upon exception to its sufficiency as surety, under § 948, ante, to show surplus assets equal to the amount of its undertaking. Fox v. Hale etc. Mining Co., 97 Cal. 353; 32 Pac. 446.

Execution of surety bond. An undertaking on appeal, signed in behalf of the corporation surety, by its second vice-president and its assistant secretary, with the seal of the corporation affixed, will not be held void, as not being properly signed, in the absence of anything to show that such officers were not authorized to sign and deliver the undertaking. Gutziel v. Pennie, 95 Cal. 598; 30 Pac. 836.

Designation of agent by foreign surety corporation. When a foreign surety corporation has filed with the insurance commissioner the designation of its agent, as required by § 616 of the Political Code, that is all that is required of it in the matter of naming an agent upon whom process may be served, to entitle it to do business in this state; and the certificate of the commissioner is prima facie evidence that the surety company has complied with the requirement of that section, although it does not expressly so state. Gutzeil v. Pennie, 95 Cal. 598; 30 Pac. 836.

§ 1057. Undertakings mentioned in this code, requisites of. In any case where an undertaking or bond is authorized or required by any law of this state, the officer taking the same must, except in the case of such a corporation as is mentioned in the next preceding section, require the sureties to accompany it with an affidavit that they are each residents and householders, or freeholders, within the state, and are each worth the sum specified in the undertaking or bond, over and above all their just debts and liabilities, exclusive of property exempt from execution; but when the amount specified in the undertaking or bond exceeds three thousand dollars, and there are more than two sureties thereon, they may state in their affidavits that they are severally worth amounts less than the amount specified in the undertaking or bond, if the whole amount is equivalent to that of two sufficient sureties. Any corporation such as is mentioned in the next preceding section, may become sole surety on such bond. No such corporation must be accepted in any case as a surety when its liabilities exceed its assets as ascertained in the manner provided in section ten hundred and fifty-six. Whenever an undertaking has been given and approved in any action or proceeding, and it is thereafter made to appear to the satisfaction of the court that any surety upon such undertaking has for any reason become insufficient, the court may, upon notice, order the giving of a new undertaking, with sufficient sureties, in lieu of such insufficient undertaking. In case such new undertaking so required shall not be given within the time required by such order, or in case the sureties thereon fail to justify thereon when required, all rights obtained by the filing of such original undertaking shall immediately cease.

Applied to guardians. Post, § 1809.

Legislation § 1057. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Practice Act, § 650, as amended by Stats. 1854, Redding ed. p. 71, Kerr ed. p. 100, § 62, which read: "In all cases where an undertaking with sureties is required by the provisions of said act, the judge, justice, clerk, or other officer taking the same, shall require the sureties to accompany the same, with an affidavit that they are each worth the sum specified in the undertaking, over and above all their just debts and liabilities, exclusive of property exempt from execution; provided, that when the amount specified in the undertaking exceeds three thousand dollars, and there are more than two sureties thereon, they may state in their affidavits that they are severally worth amounts less than that expressed in the undertaking, if the whole amount be equivalent to that of two sufficient sureties." When § 1057 was enacted in 1872, (1) "this code, the" was substituted for "said act," (2) the words "judge, justice, clerk, or other" were omitted, (3) "must" was substituted for "shall," in both instances, (4) "it" was substituted for "the same" after "accompany," (5) the words "are each residents and householders or freeholders within the state, and" were added, and (6) "but" was substituted for "provided that" before "when the amount."

2. Amended by Stats. 1889, p. 216, to read as at present, except for the amendment of 1907.

3. Amendment by Stats. 1901, p. 183; unconstitutional. See note ante, § 5.

4. Amended by Stats. 1907, p. 308, (1) substituting (a) "is" for "be" before "equivalent," (b) "sole surety on such bond" for "one of such sureties," (c) "must" for "shall" before "be accepted," (d) "when" for "whenever" before "its liabilities," (e) omitting "shall" before "exceed," and (2) adding the last two sentences; the code commissioner saying, "The change consists in the addition of the last two sentences, and authorizes the court to exact a new undertaking in any case in which it is shown that any surety on a bond has become insufficient, thus avoiding all possible doubt of the court's power in the premises."

Sufficiency of undertaking. An affidavit to a stay bond, which fails to state that the sureties are freeholders or householders, omits an element essential to the validity of the bond. Maze v. Langford, 16 Cal. App. 743; 117 Pac. 929. An undertaking on attachment is insufficient to sustain the writ, if the affidavit of the sureties omits to state the material fact that they are householders or freeholders; and a writ issued upon an undertaking, not accompanied by an affidavit of the sureties, as required by this section, is irregularly and improperly issued, and must be discharged upon application. Tibbet v. Tom Sue, 122 Cal. 206; 54 Pac. 741. The requirement of this section, that the sureties shall justify by affidavit, is intended solely for the protection of the obligees; and it does not lie in the mouth of the sureties to object to the sufficiency of the bond, because of their failure to comply with this provision. Carpenter v. Furrey, 128 Cal. 665; 61 Pac. 369.

Justification and qualification of sureties. A prima facie justification of the sureties is established by the affidavit required by this section; and where no counter-showing is made against the sufficiency of sureties, the justification will be deemed complete. Bank of Escondido v. Superior Court, 106 Cal. 43; 39 Pac. 211. The qualification of sureties on a bond, as distinguished from their justification, is a material part of the bond. Maze v. Langford, 16 Cal. App. 743; 117 Pac. 929.

Waiver of justification of sureties. See note ante, § 978a.

Bond of surety corporation. Surety corporations are exempted, by the provisions of this section, from annexing to their undertakings the usual affidavit required of natural persons, as to being freeholders, etc.; but from the language of another provision of the section, it seems to be implied that the undertakings of such a corporation shall be accompanied by an affidavit showing that its liabilities do not exceed its assets, computed according to the rule of the statute; that is, the corporation may execute bonds in such amount as other provisions of the statute authorize. Fox v. Hale etc. Mining Co., 97 Cal. 353; 32 Pac. 446. Any corporation organized for the purpose of carrying on the business of becoming a surety on bonds and undertakings is included within the term "surety companies," and is authorized to become the sole surety on any undertaking or bond required by any law of this state, and may be accepted as such by the approving authority in lieu of a bond with natural persons as sureties. San Luis Obispo County v. Murphy, 162 Cal. 588; Ann. Cas. 1913D, 712; 123 Pac. 808.

Filing of new undertaking. Where an objection is made to the sufficiency of the undertaking, as that the affidavit fails to state that the sureties are freeholders or householders, the defect may be supplied by filing a new undertaking in the appellate court, as provided by § 954, ante. Schacht v. Odell, 52 Cal. 447.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. The affidavit is sufficient if it substantially complies with this section. Taaffe v. Rosenthal, 7 Cal. 514. An undertaking stands on the same footing with a bond. Canfield v. Bates, 13 Cal. 606. If the undertaking is defective, but has been given in good faith, the court should permit the party to file a sufficient one. Cunningham v. Hopkins, 8 Cal. 33; Coulter v. Stark, 7 Cal. 244; Bryan v. Berry, 8 Cal. 130. An undertaking executed by plaintiff to the defendant by a wrong name, may be sued upon by the defendant, and he may describe it as given to him, and show that he was the party intended. Morgan v. Thrift, 2 Cal. 563.

§ 1057a. Justification by corporate security on bonds. Procedure. County clerk to issue certificate. Fee. Whenever the surety on a bond or undertaking authorized or required by any law of this state is a corporation of the state or a foreign corporation, authorized to become surety on bonds or undertakings in the state, and exception is taken to the sufficiency of such surety as required by law, such corporate surety may justify on such bond or undertaking as follows:

Any agent, attorney in fact, or officer of such corporation shall submit to the court, judge, officer, board or other person before whom the justification is to be made:

First—The original, or a certified copy of, the power of attorney, by-laws or other instrument showing the authority of the person or persons who executed the bond or undertaking to execute the same;

Second—A certified copy of the certificate of authority issued by the insurance commissioner as required by section 596 of the Political Code, showing that the corporation is authorized to transact business;

Third—A certificate from the county clerk of the county or city and county in which the bond or undertaking is filed, showing that the said certificate of authority has not been surrendered, revoked, canceled, annulled or suspended, or in the event that it has been, that renewed authority to act under such certificate has been granted, as provided for in section 625a of the Political Code;

Fourth—A financial statement showing the assets and liabilities of such corporation at the end of the quarter calendar year next preceding the date of the execution of the bond or undertaking; such financial statement must be verified under oath by the president, or a vice-president and attested by the secretary or an assistant secretary of such corporation.

Upon complying with the foregoing provisions and it appearing that the bond or undertaking was duly executed, that the corporation is authorized to transact business in the state, and that its assets exceed its liabilities in an amount equal to or in excess of the amount of the bond or undertaking, the justification of the surety shall be complete and it shall be accepted as the sole and sufficient surety on the bond or undertaking.

The county clerk of any county or city and county shall, upon request, issue the certificate hereinbefore provided for, which certificate shall state whether or not the certificate of authority of such corporation has been surrendered, revoked, canceled, annulled or suspended, and in the event that it has, whether or not renewed authority to act under such certificate of authority has been granted as provided in section 625a of the Political Code. For each certificate issued the county clerk shall receive a fee of fifty cents to be paid by the person obtaining the certificate.

Legislation § 1057a. Added by Stats. 1911, p. 412. The act adding this section had a repealing clause at the end thereof, reading, "All laws and parts of laws and all sections of either of the codes in conflict herewith are hereby expressly repealed."

§ 1058. People of state not required to give bonds when state is a party. In any civil action or proceeding wherein the state, or the people of the state, is a party plaintiff, or any state officer, in his official capacity or on behalf of the state, or any county, city and county, city, or town, is a party plaintiff or defendant, no bond, written undertaking, or security can be required of the state, or the people thereof, or any officer thereof, or of any county, city and county, city, or town; but on complying with the other provisions of this code the state, or the people thereof, or any state officer acting in his official capacity, have the same rights, remedies, and benefits as if the bond, undertaking, or security were given and approved as required by this code.

Legislation § 1058. 1. Enacted March 11, 1872; based on Stats. 1856, p. 26, and Stats. 1863–64, p. 261.

2. Amended by Code Amdts. 1880, p. 76, inserting "city and county" after "county."

Necessity of bond by state. The state, when it is a party defendant, comes within the exemption of this section, as well as when it is a party plaintiff. San Francisco Law etc. Co. v. State, 141 Cal. 354; 74 Pac. 1047.

By county. An ordinance of a county, providing that in an action by the county to recover a license tax a writ of attachment may issue without bonds, is in harmony with this section, and also with § 3360 of the Political Code, and is not void as being a special law regulating the practice of courts of justice. San Luis Obispo County v. Greenberg, 120 Cal. 300; 52 Pac 797.

By county officer. Although county officers are not mentioned in this section, yet, where the county is the real party in interest, and is represented by a county officer, not acting in his individual right, but in behalf of the county, the case is within the reason of the rule prescribed by this section. Lamberson v. Jefferds, 116 Cal. 492; 48 Pac. 485. A county officer, who is defendant in a suit, and appeals, is not exempted from filing an undertaking on appeal (Von Schmidt v. Widber, 3 Cal. Unrep. 835; 32 Pac. 532); but the court has refused to dismiss the appeal of a county auditor, representing the county, where no undertaking was given. Lamberson v. Jefferds, 116 Cal. 492; 48 Pac. 485.

By city and county. This section applies to the city and county of San Francisco. Morgan v. Menzies, 60 Cal. 341.

By board of education. The board of education of a city and county must give an undertaking on appeal. Mitchell v. Board of Education, 137 Cal. 372; 70 Pac. 180.

By corporation. A corporation joining with a municipality in an appeal is not relieved from the necessity of filing a proper undertaking, and, in the absence of such undertaking, the appeal of such corporation will be dismissed. Meyer v. San Diego, 130 Cal. 60; 62 Pac. 211.

Undertaking by city and county is void. An undertaking on attachment, given by a city and county, is in contravention of the policy of the law, and therefore void as a common-law bond. Morgan v. Menzies, 60 Cal. 341.

CODE COMMISSIONERS' NOTE. Stats. 1864, p. 261; 1856, p. 26.

§ 1059. Surety on appeal substituted to rights of judgment creditor. Whenever any surety on an undertaking on appeal, executed to stay proceedings upon a money judgment, pays the judgment, either with or without action, after its affirmation by the appellate court, he is substituted to the rights of the judgment creditor, and is entitled to control, enforce, and satisfy such judgment, in all respects as if he had recovered the same.

Subrogation of surety on appeal bond. See ante, § 709.

Legislation § 1059. Added by Code Amdts. 1873–74, p. 344.

Reimbursement of surety. Payment must be made by a surety, before he can proceed under this section; he can be reimbursed, under it, only for what he has expended. Estate of Hill, 67 Cal. 238; 7 Pac. 664.
